SEEDSHYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price per 100 seed, $1.00
 Price per 100 seed, fancy selected, 3.00
 Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener, Co., Kentfield, Cal.
 Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light.

Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

The Famous AGMCO Riveted Truss

“Put It Through in '22”

You have been waiting for the right time to carry out your building plans and in our opinion that time is now. That prices are at the low point is indicated by the advances in the steel market and the firm prices in other commodities.

Get an estimate now and you will find out that your building plans can be carried out this year at prices that will enable you to make a good return on your investment. AGMCO houses are arranged to produce more at a lower cost. We are ready to show you.

Better send that inquiry today.

March 29, 1922.

Dear Friends:

I am indeed pleased to advise you that I have this day placed our order with your representative for two Houses, 50 x 400 feet; this order was given only after careful survey of all types and makes of Greenhouses, which speaks well of your Company. I have always been pleased with your material and service; in my estimation, there are no better Greenhouses made.

Sincerely yours,

Right you are, this is
Mr. Kohout himself.

Joseph Kohout of Libertyville, Ill. Builds A Number Two Construction House 40 by 500

For the few, the very few, who haven't either the pleasure of knowing, or knowing of, Mr. Kohout, here are just a few of his tags.

At present he is the man, who as President of the Chicago Florists' Club, steps on the gas.

He was only recently re-elected President of the Illinois State Florists' Association.

He is an Ex-President of the Commercial Flower Growers' Association and is an affiliated Director of the Society of American Florists, not to mention a lot of other things we haven't room to mention.

It's enough, however, for you to kind of suspect that he's one of the big men in the business.

There are two kinds of so-called big men.

One, the kind that has a big range of houses and so just naturally is considered big.

The other, the kind that would be big if he only had one little house. The kind that is as big with the little things as the big. Born big and was big enough to stay big.

No need to point out what kind Kohout is.

To be frank, it was with no little pride that we sold him one of our houses.

It wasn't easy. He had to be shown. He admitted L & B had the reputation of building the best house built.

But he said he wasn't buying a reputation, he was buying just a greenhouse, and that's all he intended paying for.

So that's how the matter stands.

But regardless of his paying for just the house, he is getting more than just a house. He is getting a permanent investment and that satisfaction which can only come with a knowledge that you have the best there is.

The products from Mr. Kohout's present range of greenhouses and from the new greenhouses we are now building for him, will all be sold through the Joseph Foerster Company, 160 N. Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we will be there.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

MCCRAY

REFRIGERATORS for ALL PURPOSES

This McCray installation in the store of the Dahl Floral Company, Atlanta, Ga., shows what effective display the McCray enables

WITH a stock so perishable as flowers, almost the first need of your business is efficient refrigeration. You are paying for a McCray and will continue to pay, so long as you go without the service which this quality refrigerator will give you.

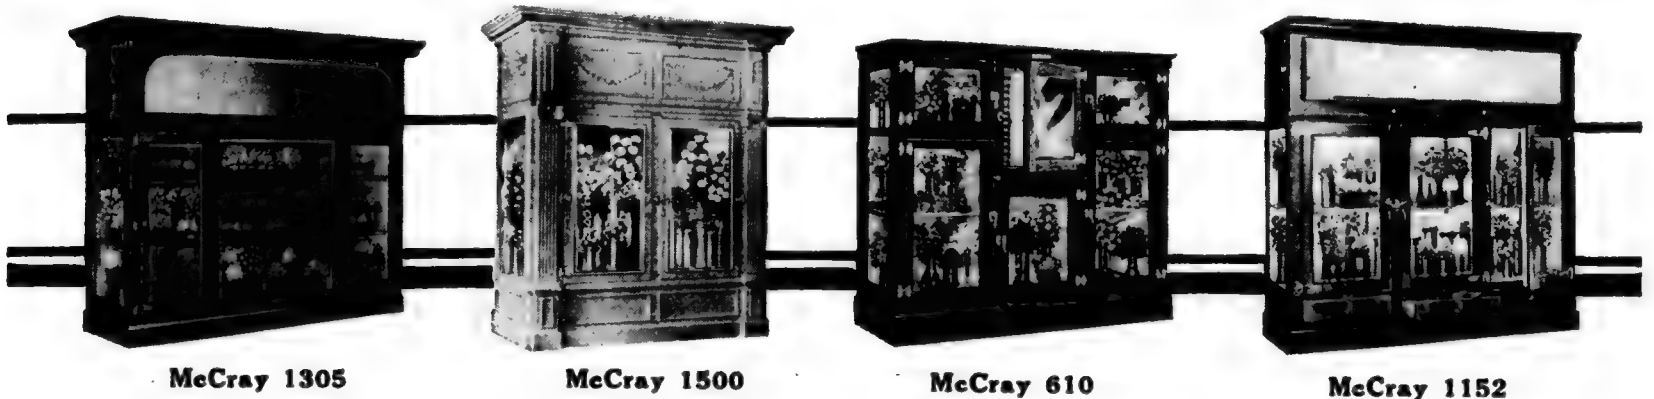

Invest the money you are charging to loss from spoilage. Stop this constant drain on profits and increase your sales. There is no need to go without a McCray any longer; easy payments may be arranged if desired.

We carry various styles and sizes of florists' refrigerators in stock for prompt shipment. Besides, our Service Department will gladly prepare plans for specially built equipment if you will send a rough sketch of your requirements.

Send for Your Free Book. In it your refrigeration needs are thoroughly discussed, the complete McCray line is illustrated and described.

"Do it right, or not at all"

The following letter was written by "Father John" Davey to the men in the Davey organization. It is reproduced here to give you an idea of the spirit behind these master Tree Surgeons

DEAR "BOYS": "DO IT RIGHT, OR NOT AT ALL." It was my father's and has been my slogan for seventy-two years. Here is its history, as I know it: I was nearly four years old. My father was planting potatoes, in front of our neat little cottage, on a fine May evening.

I asked him if I could plant some. He opened up a trench at the end nearest the house. Then took a potato and said: "If I let you plant it will you do it RIGHT?" "I will do what you tell me." Then, looking at me tenderly, he said, with a firm voice: "YOU MUST DO IT RIGHT, or NOT AT ALL." He then went into the house and brought out a big iron spoon, and remarked: "Here is your shovel; keep it clean." He then cut the potato in two, and made a mark for each piece, telling me I must put the cut side down, and went on to his work. I carefully laid the two halves in place, then took my shovel and looked at (what appeared to me) a big ditch that I had to fill.

Well, by sundown I had this huge hole filled, and father showed me where I could improve on the level, or grade. After saying my little prayers I retired, but father's voice was heard: "Do it RIGHT, or not at all." In the morning I awoke, and still that voice was ringing, "Do it RIGHT, or not at all."

Then came those long days of waiting. "Will they NEVER come up?" A heavy rain packed the ground. Then I was presented with a new garden implement, a steel table fork; but it must be kept clean. With it I must keep the soil stirred. Finally a gentle rain came and, next morning, the ground was cracking and mother told me, "two little baby plants will be born." And the next day; what a miracle! It was not two plants, but two groups of triplets, six new-born plants! Then came the instructions, "never let the ground pack, keep it loose, and give the plants water—in hot weather." I was shown how to push the fork into the soil and keep the ground loose, and, in hot weather, I would hear mother calling: "Johnnie, your plants are thirsty; come and give them a drink." Then she would give me a little pail with water, and a little tin cup, and oh! how my plants would drink! And they grew and went away ahead of any of dad's; and when the crop was dug, he had nothing that could compare with mine! I did it RIGHT!

Dear "Boys": Here is something you never had known, namely: THE SEED of The Davey Institute of Tree Surgery was sown 72 years ago, in front of the little cottage where I was born. That seed was: "Do it right, or not at all." That kindly but manly voice went with me through boyhood's days, and particularly through young manhood. As a result, I have never known what it was to be OUT OF WORK, but have frequently been in dire need of procuring others to help me execute what has been forced upon

PUTTING THE BON IN BON VOYAGE

"Bon voyage" is the French way of saying "Good luck" to a departing traveler. But the luck is not "bon," or good, if the well-wisher's floral token miscarries. Errors in handling steamer orders may be lessened by care in the matters indicated in this article.

BEFORE many days have passed the maritime horizons will be heavily flecked with incoming and outgoing passenger ships, carrying the usual summer traffic to foreign parts. "The heaviest movement of first-class travel to Europe and Mediterranean ports since the end of the world war is indicated for early spring by heavy bookings now recorded on the leading steamship lines," says a New York Journal of Commerce of recent date. And a representative of one of the steamship lines said recently: "Advance demands for de-luxe and single berths have not been so heavy this far in advance in many years. We have practically sold all our best quarters for several months. The lower-priced first-class accommodations and second-class bookings are also heavy, but not so heavy as for the higher-priced rooms."

These statements carry a gratifying portent to the live telegraph delivery florists of this country, who know that the heavy business forecasted by the steamship companies points to orders and profits for the man who keeps pace with the steamer sailings listed weekly in the Pink Part of The Review.

"Time and Tide."

To demonstrate the scope of the opportunities offered, a glance at what was done before the world war will give an idea of what can be done this year. The effects of the war on sailing are diminishing rapidly. Before the war the average number of persons leaving New York daily was 500, all cabin passengers. At the height of the season, the daily average approached 1,000 persons and at times the number ran as high as 5,000 people per day.

The speed of the telegraph will put flowers on any of the ships sailing, but there is many a slip 'twixt the sender from inland to the seaport florist; from the seaport florist to the harbor itself, and even there, mishap is possible if the proper care is not taken. An insight into actual conditions should enable florists to avoid many mistakes; pointing out the cardinal difficulties and suggesting ways of circumventing them are the main points of this article.

Two parties are mainly involved—the florist who sends the order, whether by wire or letter, and the one who receives and fills it. If each of these would fully appreciate the other's difficulties, a clearer understanding and better coöperation could be obtained. First, then, what can the inland florist who sends the order do to insure perfect service in filling the order? This can best be stated by quoting some constructive criticism offered by David Clarke's Sons, of New York:

"While many of the larger steamship lines dock in Manhattan and are quite accessible, yet there are other lines in Hoboken, and some in South Brooklyn, which require an hour or more for making deliveries. We should suggest that all orders be sent as much in advance of the date of sailing as possible. They should state the name of the steamer as well as that of the line, and, when possible, the number of the stateroom of the person sailing. The latter is not always necessary, but it helps to locate the passenger more quickly.

"The Cunard line is exacting as to the delivery of flowers intended for passengers sailing on any of the line's steamers, and so informs the florists of New York by mail as to the date and hour of sailing of each steamer. This line insists that the delivery of flowers must be made before a certain hour prior to the sailing time, and the line refuses to accept or receipt for the flowers otherwise. This, of course, makes it necessary to have all orders in hand early to insure the delivery. The Cunard line gives receipt for delivery on board, but no guarantee will be given as to the flowers' reaching the passengers addressed. In the majority of cases the flowers do reach the proper persons, but now and then, in the confusion and excitement of getting away, the flowers, intended as a surprise gift, are overlooked, lost or, possibly, stolen.

Receipts.

"Quite often, too, the passenger neglects to acknowledge the receipt of the flowers to the sender, which all tends to make no end of trouble for the florist. No doubt, the steamship companies do their utmost to see that patrons receive the packages, but no deliveries can be guaranteed further than the steward's receipt at the time of delivery on board the steamer."

Along the same lines, but with two additional suggestions, H. G. Perry, general manager of Charles A. Dards, Inc., New York, writes on the subject of steamer orders as follows:

"If florists who send orders would be careful at all times to obtain the full initials of the recipient, it would make things easier all around. One must remember that the average transatlantic liner of today is a huge floating hotel, in which there may be several Smiths, Joneses, etc. The above suggestion would greatly help the stewards, who have the final delivery of steamer orders, to make a much quicker disposal of them to the right persons.

"Then, again, much time would be saved if the name of the steamship line were always given, as well as the boat. We all know whether such internationally known and famous liners as the Olympic, Aquitania or Mauretania belong to the White Star or the Cunard line, but today there are hundreds of smaller boats plying to little known ports, such as those of South America. When an order comes in at the last minute for a certain steamer—which may sail from New York, Brooklyn or a New Jersey port—and the name of the line is not given, the shipping department has to do quite some hustling to find out where this particular boat docks. I would, therefore, suggest that florists try to get this information, which would greatly help their seaport brethren."

The statements above suggest that care, accuracy and consideration are essential to insure safety in delivery. The lessons included are briefly:

The sending florist should aim to get his instructions to the seaport florist in plenty of time.

He should send the full name of the customer, with the proper initials, because there are many of the same name who may be sailing coincidentally.

He should obtain and send the exact name of the steamer and of the line, as well as the date of departure.

In brief, the sender should make his instructions as specific and complete as possible. Correctness goes far in eliminating the possibility of error.

Verify Customers' Information.

It is well to remember that the customer who orders flowers for delivery to a steamer may be mistaken as to the sailing date, the name of the steamer, the name of the line, or some other point. Therefore, when a customer comes into the store and says, "I should like to have you get a bouquet to Miss So-and-so, who will sail from New York on the Marco Polo, May 6," the alert florist will at once refer to the list of steamer sailings in the Pink Part of The Review and see if the date of sailing is correct. By this immediate reference, a possible error can be straightened out with the customer at once.

The florist inland who receives telegraph orders from other cities for hotel guests and hospital patients has troubles to an oversufficiency—with guests not arrived, or else departed, with wrong addresses, with inconsiderate hotel clerks and bell boys, with careless hotel managers, thoughtless nurses, etc.—but still more troubles descend upon the heads of those who receive orders for flowers to be put on outgoing vessels for passengers about to sail. Indeed, it is quite surprising that, under the circumstances, so few orders miscarry. A prominent New York florist estimates the number of such mishaps as two per cent of the total number of orders. Before the war, he says, they amounted to less than one per cent. Logically, with the disturbing effects of the war still mingling with commerce, the florist must take especial precautions.

Suppose, for instance, that a New York florist receives the following telegram from a Pittsburgh retailer: "Deliver fifteen-dollar corsage, roses, valley, to Miss So-and-so, sailing steamer Marco Polo, May 6." This is an explicit message as far as it goes, but to the alert New Yorker the following interrogations at once arise: What line? Where sailing? What time of day? Does she sail May 6? Will Miss So-and-so be on the boat for a certainty? Is the sailing postponed for any reason? Can I get a receipt from the purser for the flowers delivered?

Regarding the last interrogation, reference to the line supplies the answer. But possibly, after he learns the line, the dock and the sailing hour—from information on hand or by telephone call—there may be doubt that the addressee is to sail as a passenger on the vessel named. To learn this, it is necessary to send a messenger to examine the passenger list at the steamship line's office. Suppose he finds that Miss So-and-so is not listed? A journey to the offices of the other steamship companies may disclose that she is to go on the North Pole, and not the Marco Polo. If she is on the latter, however, and the number of her stateroom is ascertained, there is reasonable certainty that the flowers will reach her properly and expeditiously. All this verification, briefly stated here, but sometimes a long and laborious task, can be done if a steamer order is received in time. On a last-minute order, however, the flowers must be rushed to the steamer named in the telegram and the chance taken that no error has been made.

Individual florists at the ports each have their own methods of procedure; the foregoing is merely to point out what chances there are for error and the necessity for care in sending orders. As much care as possible on the part of all persons concerned is necessary to keep the number of errors to the minimum. The continued growth of the telegraph delivery business, for bon voyage flowers and others, depends upon its absolute reliability. We must not fail our customers or the brother florist's customers, who are, after all, also ours.

KEEPING AFTER 'EM

SMALL TOWN FLORIST'S WAYS.

To Build Big Business.

The florist who is located in a small country town has two courses open to him. One is to rest content with the business which normally comes to him, being reasonably sure that there is no room for a competitor to develop such strength as to be able to take his business away from him. The other course is to develop business not only in his own town but in the country round about. Persons who come from the country immediately adjacent will purchase direct. Those in neighboring towns can be made customers through local agents.

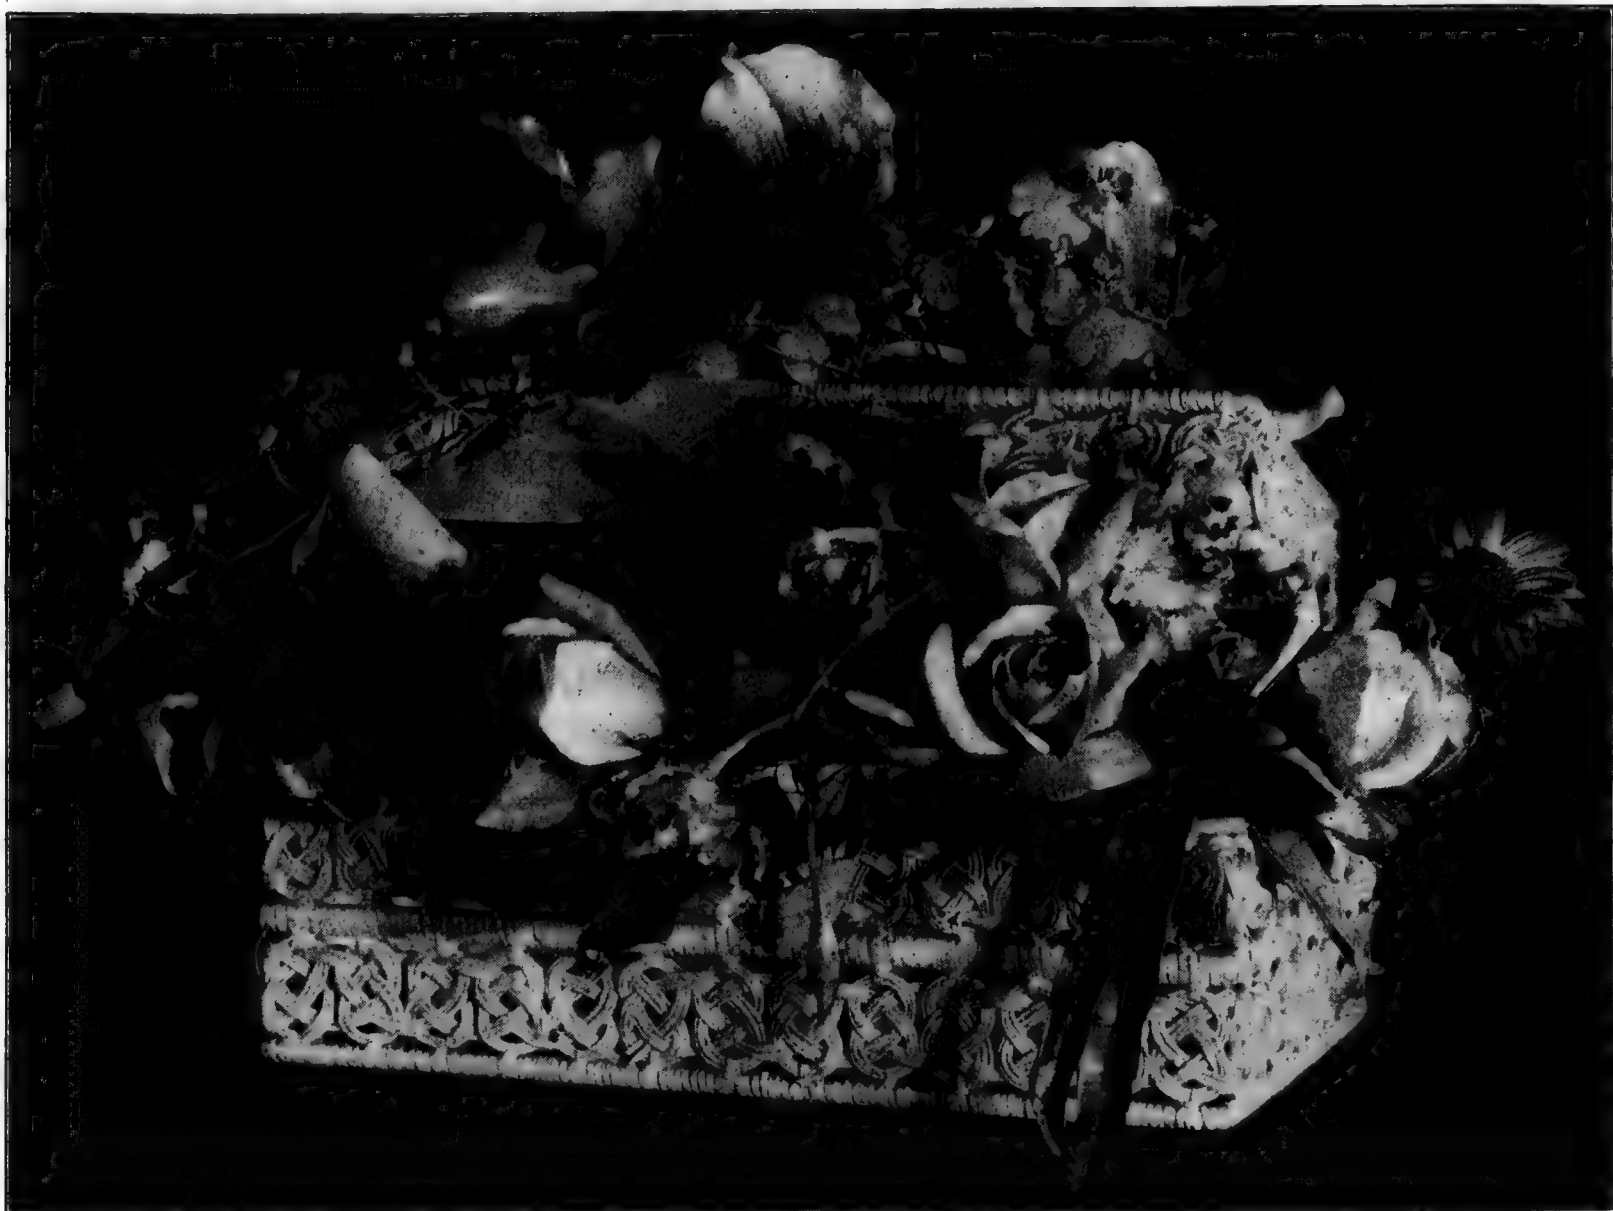

The agency business has been developed by some florists to an elaborate extent, chiefly in unsettled districts of the country. By far the largest part of the agency business, however, is confined to funeral orders. Undertakers are favored as agents for this reason. But there is no question that the agency business can be made something more than taking orders for funerals. There are many other occasions for the purchase of flowers, which have been developed to their largest degree in the cities. In the country, as well, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day and Memorial day could be celebrated to a much larger extent with flowers if the florist in the small town would develop this business as he could.

An instance of how this has been done might be given in the case of the firm of Joseph Bancroft & Son, at Cedar Falls, Ia. Cedar Falls, Ia., has a population of 8,000 inhabitants. It has, in addition, a normal school, the Iowa State Teachers' College, at which are from 1,700 to 2,600 students, according to the season. Between the citizens of the town and the faculty and the students of the college, a fair florists' business could be supported. But if it had relied on this section of business alone, the firm of Joseph Bancroft & Son would not be so large or so widely known among the trade as it is today.

Well Directed Advertising.

The basis of the business so built up by Joseph Bancroft & Son has been constant and well directed publicity at all seasons of the year, supported, of course, by a well organized staff of agents. For each of the special holidays during the year Bancroft & Son send out a large sheet, from twelve to fourteen inches wide and sixteen to eighteen inches long, on which are illustrations of seasonable flowers and quotations of prices on these and other flowers and plants available, with particular mention of those items which are to be featured at the time the sheet is issued. In addition to the price lists sent out to agents for the principal holidays, similar lists are sent out between times, one quoting summer flowers, from August 1 to October 1, a fall price list covering the period from Thanksgiving to December 15 and a winter price list covering the period from January 15 to April 1. These price lists are so got up that they can be distributed by the agents and orders may be given by flower buyers direct from them. At the special flower days the advertising run in the local newspaper is combined in a 4-page leaflet to be sent out to agents and others. One for Mothers' day, for instance, contained a cut of a hydrangea on the first page, a poem about "Mother" on the second page, a price list of cut flowers on the third page and the prices of pot plants on the fourth. The poem was run in the local newspaper advertising a week to ten days before Mothers' day.

Such a Bon Voyage Creation, One of Max Schling's, Should Not Fail of Its Destination for Want of Care.

The price list of pot plants was run four or five days before and the price list of cut flowers immediately before the holiday.

Newspaper Campaign.

The newspaper advertising is designed in a most careful way. A definite series of advertisements are prepared in anticipation of the holiday and then inserted in a certain order. For instance, at Christmas a small space, five or six inches, is used to advertise Christmas trees, about December 12 to 15. This is followed by an advertisement a couple of inches larger, which quotes prices on offerings of wreaths of various kinds. This is succeeded by a still larger advertisement, featuring plants, prices being quoted on the various offerings for the holiday. In turn succeeds the advertisement of cut flowers, which appears immediately preceding Christmas. The newspaper advertising for the holidays is particularly devoted to quotations of prices of the special items under advertisements for that occasion. Little is contained in them in the way of general talk aside from the headings, which are inclined to be brief. "Specials for Decoration Day," heads a price list of wheat sheaves, magnolia wreaths, galax wreaths, cape jasmines and plants. "Your Table, Your Friend's Table Will Not Be Complete Without Our Beautiful Flowers," heads a price list for Thanksgiving day.

Holiday Folders.

At holiday time, also, folders are sent out to those on the firm's books. Some of these are the forms prepared by the advertising services catering to this trade, done in colors; others are prepared under the direction of George H. Bancroft, who, though the duties of general manager rest upon his shoulders, gives his personal attention to all the firm's advertising. This Easter a particularly neat and attractive folder has been issued. It is printed on light-weight enameled paper and consists of four pages measuring 7x10½ inches. The first page is decorated with sketches of Easter plants and flowers in mauve, and a border of this same color decorates the other three pages. The first page emphasizes the appropriateness of flowers at Easter and asks that orders be placed early. A cut of Easter lilies on the second page heads quotations on plants and flowers of this variety. An attractive illustration of Columbia heads a price list of roses and miscellaneous cut flowers, while the back page gives a list of plants in pots under a cut of a rambler rose. Bancroft & Son keep up their newspaper advertising continuously, particularly in winter, when the advertisements appear every day. When particular offerings of flowers are not made, the space is devoted to the firm's facilities, to the various uses of flowers, or to telegraph delivery service. What the firm's advertising expense will total this year it is too early to say, but in a recent year $2,000 was spent, of which approximately $500 went into newspaper space. The rate in the local paper at the time was 22½ cents an inch. Much business is obtained from the students and faculty of the Iowa State Teachers' College and the firm finds it profitable to advertise in the college weekly, chiefly by means of cartoons. The telegraph orders from the teachers are in fair number. At Mothers' day considerable business is obtained from the students, not many of whom go home at that time. An offer to send flowers by special delivery for the day at $2, plus 20 cents for postage, brought over 500 orders from the students.

Some Business-Getters.

A set of catchy envelope stuffers were purchased by Bancroft & Son, and they have gained considerable notice for the firm. Each contains a small figure sketched in cartoon manner, illustrating the phrase which appears in heavy type. Some of the phrases are, "Our Flowers Will Keep Your Honeymoon Shining Brightly," "It's Old-Fashioned to Write Congratulations—Send Flowers," "Your Girl Has a Heart—It's Yours if You Bring Flowers," "Brave Heart and Flowers Will Win Fair Lady," "A Few Flowers Mean a Lot to a Sick Friend."

For the benefit of both their customers and their agents, Bancroft & Son annually publish a price list of flowers and plants and designs in a 40-page booklet. This is well printed and illustrated. It explains the facilities of the firm for handling cut flower orders from its 55,000 feet of glass and tabulates prices for different seasons in the year. Lodge designs and other funeral pieces are listed, with prices. Bulbs, bedding plants, house plants, material for the home flower garden and nursery stock are listed in convenient manner. For instance, a bed of castor beans, cannas, pennisetums and geraniums is depicted in an illustration. Beneath is a list of the plants the bed contains and the prices are quoted on each and also on an assortment of plants sufficient to fill a small bed. Collects of hardy plants and of tender plants and other special offers make ordering easy.

These are the means by which one firm has made its business grow far beyond the limit which a population of only 8,000 might otherwise impose upon a small town florist. The methods are described in detail because they are different from those used by the city florist, whose ways in promoting business and advertising have been more frequently commented upon than those of his small town fellow. Behind such means as those above described must be a well-defined and coördinating system, as well as untiring attention, in order to gain a position such as that advertised by Joseph Bancroft & Son, "the largest and oldest establishment of its kind in northern Iowa."

Ill.; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill., and Maj. P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.

Major O'Keefe presented proofs of the series of advertisements which had been sent to the various magazines in accordance with the last appropriation made by the committee. Copies of the proofs have been mailed to all subscribers to the fund and many other florists.

Consideration was given to a number of cases where the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," had been perverted and, after some discussion, it was decided that such perversions made an extended use of the slogan proper more necessary than ever.

Secretary Young presented a financial report, which, on motion, was accepted. The auditor's report was also submitted.

Discussions and Reports.

In reply to questions as to the probability of the fund being sustained, the secretary pointed out that an optimistic view could be taken, as he had found that in districts where business had not been quite up to the mark, the deficiency seemed to be attributed to a cessation in publicity.

Treasurer Hess submitted a report which showed a balance sufficient to allow further advertising and, after some discussion, a motion by J. F. Amman was carried appropriating a further sum of $10,000 for a series of advertisements which should run through the summer months.

The matter of income from the flower booth at the national flower show, Indianapolis, was brought up and discussed, and it was pointed out that this income was to be apportioned to the national publicity campaign fund. A vote of $200 toward the special advertising of the show was passed.

Mr. Asmus, in view of the thoughts brought out in the discussion, moved that it be recommended that the national flower show committee be asked to appeal to every organization having an opportunity to sell flowers where florists were willing to donate them, to do so and turn the receipts in to the publicity committee.

On motion of Secretary Young, it was directed that the secretary's office send out to subscribers and others 5,000 copies of the proofs of the proposed advertisements for the summer advertising. John Young, Sec'y.

GLADIOLUS MEN'S CONFERENCE.

A special conference of the officers and committees of the New England Gladiolus Society was held in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., April 7. The meeting was called to order by President Charles F. Fairbanks. There was a discussion on having two boards of judges to simplify matters at the next show and about a new silver cup, which is to be awarded at our next show.

It was voted that the president appoint a committee of three to make arrangements with Stanley Thorpe, of Medway, Mass., for his new paper, the Gladiolus Bulletin, to become an official organ of the New England Gladiolus Society. The committee appointed is as follows: S. E. Spencer, Woburn; B. R. Norley, Roslindale, Mass.; Dr. S. Irving Moody, Brockton, Mass.

The feasibility of buying more vases and containers for the use of the society was also discussed.

Robert R. Walker, Sec'y.

AFTER THE SHOW

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Receipts.

The work of winding up the affairs of the fifth national flower show, held at Indianapolis, is engaging the close attention of the administration offices of the society, and is gradually approaching completion. It would not be just or advisable to issue an authentic statement at this time, but it may be said that there is no occasion for misgivings as to a satisfactory financial issue. The matter of the return of the subscriptions to the guarantee fund is receiving early attention and, as the gross receipts from the show are pretty well determined, checks will be forwarded to the subscribers shortly.

Rentals of trade space produced a little over $13,000, and the catalogue about $2,500. Gate and trade tickets yielded nearly $28,000, and the special premiums presented amounted to about $5,300. Receipts from other sources amount to a sum in the neighborhood of $12,900. With the exception of a few bills covering trade space, practically all moneys to be credited to receipts have been turned into the treasury.

The sum to be paid out in premiums amounts to about $13,000. The awards are in process of checking and confirmation, and checks covering money prizes, and medals and other material prizes will go forward to the winners shortly.

The expense side of the account is, necessarily, requiring considerable time, operating expenses, rentals and petty expenses not being as easily determined as receipts. As soon as everything can be tabulated, a detailed report will be prepared and the national flower show committee is in hopes this may be accomplished within the next two weeks.

The secretary is pleased to report that over 1,000 railroad certificates were presented, many more than necessary to secure to out-of-town visitors the concession of one-half return fares.

Chairman George Asmus, whose foresight and energy made the show possible under circumstances which at one time were most distressing, may be congratulated upon the successful issue of the show, which to many is most remarkable.

Awards.

The judges in the trade section were Charles E. Russell, George Wienhoeber and W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., who made the following awards:

Certificates of merit were awarded to W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for sweet peas; department of conservation of Indianapolis, for display of fancy fish; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, for refrigerator, and Wertheimer Bros., New York, for Vanity Fair corsage shield.

Honorable mention went to E. C. Ambling Co., Chicago, display of cut flowers; Mrs. A. Hamburger, Brooklyn, N. Y., adjustable plant stand; Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, gladiolus bulbs; Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Chicago, display of cut flowers; Basket Shop, Bellefonte, Pa., baskets, and Morris H. Levine, New York, ribbons.

The following also made displays which, in the opinion of the judges, were highly creditable:

William T. Usinger, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind.
De Witt Sisters, Battle Creek, Mich., feather flowers.
Bergmann-Koropp Co., Chicago.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Meeting of Publicity Committee.

A meeting of the publicity committee of the S. A. F. was held in the Manufacturers' building, Indianapolis, Ind., Monday, March 27, with Chairman Henry Penn presiding. The following were present: Chairman Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; President S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville,

ECHOES OF EASTER

ST. LOUIS USES TWO PAGES.

Page advertisements are not large enough for florists, even in the high-priced metropolitan newspapers. For Easter the trade in St. Louis, that enterprising center of florists' cooperative advertising, ran a 2-page spread in the three leading newspapers. The total cost of this advertising was $4,054.60, which was borne about equally by growers and retailers. Each insertion of the 2-page advertisement cost as follows:

	Retailers paid	Growers paid
Times	$ 496.00	$ 427.95
Star	585.60	569.80
Globe-Democrat	1,080.00	895.25
Total	$2,161.60	$1,893.00

In addition, about $150 was expended for cuts and electrotype plates, which was borne by the growers. Their share came from the local publicity association, which in St. Louis is supported solely by the growers. The retailers, of whom there were twenty-five, paid according to the space each used.

The center third of the two pages advertised Easter flowers in large type, with an appropriate illustration. Down either side were arranged two columns of advertisements, each four and one-fourth inches wide and varying in depth from an inch and one-fourth to ten and one-half. The firms represented were: Fred C. Weber, Browne, A. Waldbart & Sons, Bergstermann Floral Co., J. W. Boerm, Charles Beyer, H. J. Weber Nursery Co., Common Floral Co., Julius E. Schaeffer, C. Young & Sons Co., Rose Bud Florist, Koenig Floral Co., Henri Pasteur, F. H. Weber, A. Oppermann Floral Co., Fred W. Bruenig, Paul T. Heil, Ayres-Tubbesing Floral Co., Sanders Nursery Co., Mullanphy Florists, Joseph Witek, Aurora Florist, Westover Nurseries, Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis Seed Co.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, who is one of the leaders in the St. Louis cooperative organization, says of this advertisement: "This has long been my dream for true local cooperative advertising. The large advertisement in the center represents the growers' advertising, for which they are contributing one per cent of their total wholesale sales. The advertisements surrounding are the individual retailers' wonderful tie-up. This is a true spirit of cooperation."

CLEVELAND EASTER DISPLAYS.

Last week's issue of The Review told of the thousands of persons who visited the greenhouses of the J. M. Gasser Co. Palm Sunday to see the array of Easter stock in full bloom. The same success attended other displays of a similar nature in Cleveland. One of the finest was that staged by Albert Barber at the conservatories of the Park Floral Co., at 13336 Euclid avenue. This lasted four days. During that time 10,000 visitors viewed the flowers and many expressed their delight at the opportunity. Photographs of these artistically arranged conservatories were used on the pictorial pages of the local newspapers. A view of the display at the Park Floral Co. greenhouses appears on this page.

EDITORIAL ASSISTANCE.

The Nashville Banner assisted the florists of its city by an editorial in the Saturday evening edition, April 15, headed, "Easter and Flowers." Aimed to do no more than comment upon the abundance of flowers to observe this Eastertide, it nevertheless was felt to be of value by members of the trade. It began:

"The Easter season, among its many other pleasing suggestions, impressive associations and generally bright and joyous spirit, brings an abundance of flowers, that most agreeably accord with the significance of the day and all its sacred envelopment. It would be difficult to conceive a real Easter without a profusion of flowers. Lilies have usually been made especially typical of Easter, but so many other flowers come at that season that all add to the color and brightness of the celebration."

Tracing the observance of Easter by means of flowers, down through history, the editorial went on to encourage florists more directly, thus:

"Nashville enjoys the pleasing reputation of being the chief center of the florists' industry and business in the central south. Flowers are grown and shipped from this point to many distant places, and systematic arrangement exists by which they may be supplied from this city to any point that may be desired."

"The sale and shipment of flowers from Nashville on an occasion like the present, Easter, runs into figures that are really astonishing in their bulk.

"Nashville has reason to be proud of its primacy in the flower industry and should give it all possible encouragement. But aside from the commercial aspect, there is something especially pleasing in the flowers that have come with an unusual abundance at this particular Easter time."

No wonder the Joy Floral Co. wants to know, "How's this for some good publicity?"

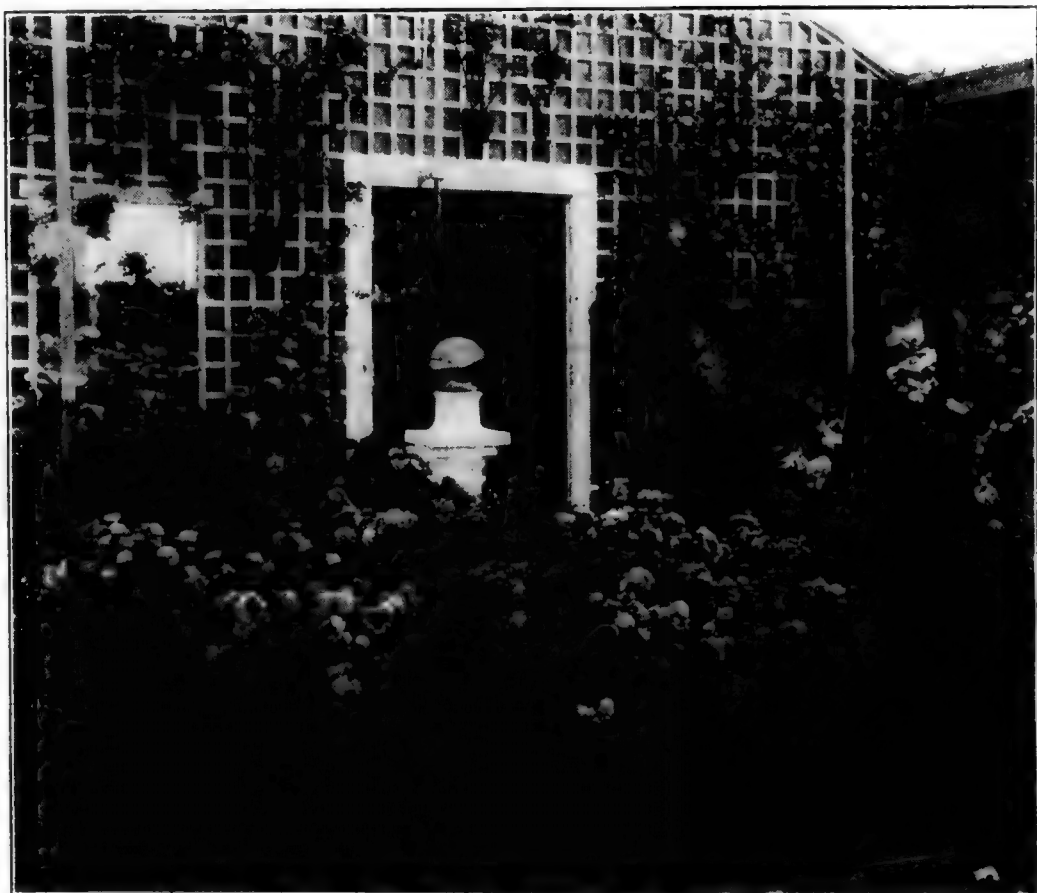

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Easter Stock Abundant.

Flower shops throughout central Pennsylvania were crowded with both flowers and customers during the week preceding Easter. Hyacinths, tulips and daffodils predominated, although Easter lilies, narcissi, sweet peas, valley and roses were to be had in quantities at fairly reasonable prices.

Some of the florists assert that the warm weather that prevailed a week or more before Easter brought on the flowers a little too rapidly and thus made an oversupply in some places. In Harrisburg flower stands were erected along the principal streets by hucksters and merchants who are not ordinarily engaged in selling flowers; potted plants were also hawked about the streets like turnips and cabbage. Legitimate florists felt this competition because of cut prices. Similar conditions prevailed at Lancaster and Reading.

ECHOES OF EASTER

ST. LOUIS USES TWO PAGES.

Page advertisements are not large enough for florists, even in the high-priced metropolitan newspapers. For Easter the trade in St. Louis, that enterprising center of florists' cooperative advertising, ran a 2-page spread in the three leading newspapers. The total cost of this advertising was $4,054.60, which was borne about equally by growers and retailers. Each insertion of the 2-page advertisement cost as follows:

	Retailers paid	Growers paid
Times	$ 496.00	$ 427.95
Star	585.60	569.80
Globe-Democrat	1,080.00	895.25
Total	$2,161.60	$1,893.00

In addition, about $150 was expended for cuts and electrotype plates, which was borne by the growers. Their share came from the local publicity association, which in St. Louis is supported solely by the growers. The retailers, of whom there were twenty-five, paid according to the space each used.

The center third of the two pages advertised Easter flowers in large type, with an appropriate illustration. Down either side were arranged two columns of advertisements, each four and one-fourth inches wide and varying in depth from an inch and one-fourth to ten and one-half. The firms represented were: Fred C. Weber, Browne, A. Waldbart & Sons, Bergstermann Floral Co., J. W. Boerm, Charles Beyer, H. J. Weber Nursery Co., Common Floral Co., Julius E. Schaeffer, C. Young & Sons Co., Rose Bud Florist, Koenig Floral Co., Henri Pasteur, F. H. Weber, A. Oppermann Floral Co., Fred W. Bruenig, Paul T. Heil, Ayres-Tubbesing Floral Co., Sanders Nursery Co., Mullanphy Florists, Joseph Witek, Aurora Florist, Westover Nurseries, Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis Seed Co.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, who is one of the leaders in the St. Louis cooperative organization, says of this advertisement: "This has long been my dream for true local cooperative advertising. The large advertisement in the center represents the growers' advertising, for which they are contributing one per cent of their total wholesale sales. The advertisements surrounding are the individual retailers' wonderful tie-up. This is a true spirit of cooperation."

during the week, but on Saturday the price jumped to 25 cents a spike. A pot of daffodils with a half dozen blooms, and tulips with nearly as many, could be bought for 25 cents, although some dealers asked 10 cents a bloom. Easter lilies, which were not shown in large quantities, brought a better price; a blooming plant sold for about $2, with the cut flowers bringing around 50 cents each. Violets fluctuated in price quite strongly and could be purchased from $1 to $4 a hundred.

At Middletown.

At Middletown, Pa., a few days before Easter the greenhouses of Harry R. Bauder were crowded to the utmost with potted plants. It was reported that Mr. Bauder had 17,000 pots of hyacinths, 12,000 pots of narcissi, a like number of tulips, about 8,000 Paper Whites and around 15,000 geraniums. A large part of this stock went to small towns nearby, and Mr. Bauder says that prices were practically the same as in 1921.

Another firm in Middletown, catering chiefly to local trade, expected to dispose of around 10,000 pots of hyacinths, tulips, narcissi, lilies and geraniums.

In Harrisburg Stores.

One of the finest displays of Easter plants that the Rambler has seen in many a day was shown by Walter S. Schell, Inc. A display of this sort seems to be an annual event in the Schell store. There were potted roses trained in globe, fan, basket and cross shapes, using Tausendschoen, Excelsa, Paul's Scarlet Climber and other varieties. There were the new French hydrangeas in pink and blue, golden calla lilies, spiræas, lilacs—in fact, almost anything that could be desired for Easter decorations.

As usual, the Berryhill Flower Shop staged a fine display of potted plants and cut flowers. This firm has a strong grip on the flower trade of Harrisburg, solely because of the quality of stock, the care used in making up designs and the service rendered to customers. Price competition does not seem to be much of a factor, as the customer is reasonably sure of getting value received.

become ordinary, in comparison. "By such means," added our versatile confrere, "we are now able to deliver country-wide and open up fields that were never covered before."

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., featured a telegraph delivery window before Palm Sunday and reports the largest number of Easter orders ever executed in the history of the business.

Bellamy Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., had, among other good things for Easter, 1,200 Lilium giganteum bulbs that averaged three blooms, and but fifty of them were thrown away—a fine feather for the house that furnished the bulbs. At this place is also seen a Matchless carnation identical with the white variety in habit, but a real Christmas red, a valuable addition to the limited list.

The Humphrey Floral Co., Rome, N. Y., reports a good demand for Easter plants. These plants were home-grown and fully up to the usual high standard maintained by the two Humphrey sisters for many years. These plants were appreciated by the trade, as was evidenced by the annual clean-out sales.

FLORIDA FLORISTS TO MEET.

The first annual convention of the Florida State Florists' Association will be held May 5, at Lakeland, Fla.

A practical demonstration of the different classes of designing will be given by Mr. Whipp, at the show rooms of the Westmoreland Floral Gardens. This demonstration will include examples of how funeral sprays, wedding bouquets, corsages and basket arrangements can be quickly put together. Owing to the limited amount of space available for the demonstration, this feature will only be open to members of the association.

The program of the convention will be carried out as follows:

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 9 A. M.

Call to order by President Whipp.
Invocation by Rev. A. C. Pinkston, Christian church, Lakeland.
Address of welcome by E. R. Giddings, of the Westmoreland Floral Gardens, Lakeland.
Response by F. W. Fletcher, of Rosalind Gardens, Orlando.
President's address by C. Leslie Whipp, of Mills the Florist, Jacksonville.
Report of secretary-treasurer by N. A. Reasoner, of the Royal Palm Nurseries, Oneco.
Business hour: Induction of members; election of honorary members; adoption of by-laws, and appointment of nominating, resolutions and special committees.
"Basic Principles Governing the Successful Florist," by S. S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F., Philadelphia.
"Commercial Rose Growing in Florida for Cut Flower Purposes," by Wheatley & Losey, of the Evergreen Gardens, of Miami; discussion led by James Donn, Exotic Gardens, Miami; H. H. Hume, Glen St. Mary Nurseries; W. D. Griffing, Interstate Nurseries, Jacksonville, Fla.
"Florists' Planting Calendar for Cut Flowers," by F. A. Knoll, Knoll Floral Co., Tampa; discussion led by E. R. Giddings, Westmoreland Floral Gardens, Lakeland; J. M. Caruthers, Violet Dell Florist, Orlando; W. B. Curry, Deland.
Luncheon for members, their families and invited guests at the Elks' dining room; tickets, $1 a plate. See Mr. Giddings, of the local committee.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 2 P. M.

Report of committees; election of officers; selection of meeting place.
"Novelties 1922 Model," by J. M. Caruthers, Violet Dell Florist, Orlando, Fla.; discussion led by N. A. Reasoner, Royal Palm Nurseries, Oneco; W. B. Knoll, Knoll Floral Co., Tampa; L. F. Darnell, Daytona Cut Flower Shop, Daytona.
"The Asparagus Grower's Problem," by W. H. Schulz, Jr., Auburndale; discussion led by F. W. Fletcher, Orlando; W. P. Newell, Apopka; R. J. James, Yalaha.
"Bulb Opportunities," by C. S. Tait, Tait Bros. Co., Brunswick, Ga.; discussion led by G. Gerbing, Fernandina; T. L. Mead, Oviedo; T. K. Godbey, Waldo; George J. Backus, Stuart.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Unforeseen circumstances prevented us from taking an active part in and attending what we must allow was a crowning success, at Indianapolis," observed George B. Hart, of Rochester, N. Y., adding that now that the rush preceding Easter is past, one has time to reflect upon the whole situation, beginning with the show in New York city and ending in a grand climax at Easter. The whole will be one pleasant memory.

"Palm Sunday was fully equal to an average Easter Sunday with us," observed Gustav Bartholme, Syracuse, N. Y. "We were glad, as much of our stock was far advanced, and this enabled us to arrange for what proved a satisfactory Easter. A splendid crop of carnations, Enchantress Supreme and Matchless, materially aided our sales." Some fine old plants of the rose Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, now in crop, to continue through the summer, are considered valuable property. A bank of Swainsona alba flourishes against a concrete wall.

M. B. Kay, Syracuse, N. Y., is among the contented, touching Easter trade. A fine dwelling is being erected for him, adjoining the greenhouses.

L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., intend to build a new boiler room and change over to the vacuum system of heating. This will necessitate erecting a chimney seventy-five feet high to accommodate the new house, 40x150 feet, together with the old range. More roses will be grown, as all the leading kinds flourish. Carnations are also in prime condition. Lilies of the valley, hyacinths, tulips and daffodils led in popularity in single and combination baskets at Easter. Albert Stroh was unable to help during the rush, being a sufferer from the "flu," but Walter Stroh has the force well trained for such an emergency.

"Brighten up," commented David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y., referring to the "Say It with Flowers" signboard, facing the railroad. It is agreed that it is well worth keeping fresh, for to allow any of these signs to become weather-beaten will reflect discreditably upon the subject represented. "Cleaned up completely at Easter" is the satisfactory record here.

Robert H. C. Bard, Syracuse, N. Y., was found opening the morning mail. Some letters contained checks and are termed love letters," for," observed our genial friend, "like the fickle goddess, they are only won by ardent work. Just now, at any rate, it is so. Yet, withal, we are still going strong and found Easter fully up to our fondest expectations."

Valentine Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., opened a new store, the third of a chain, in time for Easter business and they report progress.

P. R. Quinlan, Syracuse, had a grand lot of rambler and hybrid roses at Easter, among other fine stock that sold like hot cakes.

The W. E. Day Co., Syracuse, N. Y., found its best sales on combination baskets, among trade of the better class. With these baskets a greater variety of effects is possible. Some fine roses, in pots and cut, were noted, particularly Hadley in floral pieces for funeral work.

Ivar Ringdahl, Rome, N. Y., observed that the possibilities of the business were never greater and handed Henry Ford a bouquet for being the pioneer in the manufacture of a speedy delivery car. The day of the special delivery has

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

FORCING FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

For Easter and Other Occasions.

French hydrangeas are really French. At least, they are of French origin, though many of them are fast becoming Americanized. They are the results, principally, of the work of such famous French hybridizers as Lemoine, Mouillere, Nonin and Foucard. Though these hydrangeas differ distinctly from Hydrangea otaksa, yet they are closely related to it. The new French varieties and the old otaksa are all descendants of Hydrangea hortensis. Or, according to other botanists, they all belong to the Hortensia group of the species Hydrangea opuloides. In other words, Hydrangea hortensis, or H. opuloides, sometimes known also as H. japonica, is the progenitor of the whole family of favorite greenhouse varieties. The name japonica has reference to the fact that the species is a native of Japan and China and has been extensively cultivated there for centuries. Thus, though the French hydrangeas, as already stated, are really French, their remote ancestors were Japanese or Chinese. The French hybridizers produced new varieties by the manipulation of the old oriental stock.

Distinctive Merits.

French hydrangeas have been increasingly appreciated in recent years, especially as Easter plants. A decade or more ago, when the otaksa type was dominant, hydrangeas in flower were seldom obtainable for Easter, but one of the chief merits of the French sorts is their adaptability for early forcing. There is no difficulty in forcing them into bloom for the earliest possible Easter. In fact, the French varieties are exceptionally pliable in disposition, peculiarly responsive to skillful handling. They are easily propagated, bloom freely even when small and are procurable in numerous beautiful shades of color. A stock of the plants may be easily regulated so as to bloom successively for at least three months.—March, April and May—and for a longer period if desired. The individual plants, also, remain long in flower. H. otaksa still fills an important place, particularly at Memorial day and as a lawn and porch specimen in summer. But for early flowering and for general compliance with the grower's wishes, the French varieties are unequalled.

As regards propagation, French varieties show their accommodating disposition not only by rooting easily, whether the cuttings are taken from young or partly ripened shoots, but also by rooting at almost any time, from early spring until late fall. The ideal time, perhaps, to put the cuttings in the sand is during February and March, but batches may be started at intervals from January till June and even as late as September, and most of the resultant plants may be brought into flower in the following spring, in the various sizes; from miniatures with one good head of flowers to big, strong, many-flowered specimens. In other words, propagation may start as soon as shoots of suitable size are obtainable and may continue indefinitely.

Plants from Late Cuttings.

Plants from late-struck cuttings, of course, will not only be comparatively small, but are likely to be deprived of the period of rest and ripening which usually precedes the final preparation for flowering, or at least the time of rest must be shortened. But even the late fall-rooted cuttings produce salable, dwarf-flowering plants by spring. In most localities there is a strong demand for these small plants. Some growers, therefore, have found it profitable to start a batch of hydrangea cuttings in the first part of September of each year. These cuttings are placed singly in small pots of sandy loam in a frame, which is kept close and moist until roots are formed. The little plants are shifted later to 4-inch and 5-inch pots and are never allowed to rest. They bear big single heads of flowers the following spring.

Let it be supposed, however, that the grower wishes to produce good-sized, well finished plants for Easter and general spring sales and that he expects the process to occupy about a year. The early cuttings, taken from young growths that show no signs of bearing flowers, are inserted in sand in the propagating bench over slight bottom heat. They are potted as soon as sufficiently rooted and are repotted promptly when a shift is needed; they should not be allowed to become potbound during their period of active growth. They usually receive at least a second potting before the arrival of the time for transferring them outdoors.

For the plants spend the summer outside the greenhouse, either planted out in rich ground or plunged in their pots in a frame. The grower has his choice of these two methods, plunging the plants or planting them out, and his choice is determined by the object he has in view—whether he wants the largest possible plants or is willing to sacrifice some of the size for the sake of early blooming.

Pot-grown or Field-grown?

The plants that are grown in the open ground will be larger than the pot-grown ones, but not so suitable for early forcing. Usually it is advisable that some, at least, of the first batch of cuttings be grown along in pots, so as to be in bloom for the earliest market. And, as a general rule, all cuttings rooted after May 1 give better satisfaction if entirely pot-grown.

The plants intended for field culture are generally planted out in the latter half of May—say about May 20—after they have been potted a second time and after their tops have been pinched out to induce a branching habit. They are planted far enough apart to provide ample space for cultivation. They need a rich soil, with plenty of water throughout the summer and perhaps an occasional application of liquid manure. In September the plants are lifted and potted in good compost, containing some bone meal and old cow manure. They are kept in shade and syringed occasionally until root action is resumed; then they are placed in a sunny spot where they can be easily protected from heavy rains and sharp frosts. Until established in the pots, they are watered freely; then the water supply is gradually reduced. The great object, be it noted, is to insure a strong growth in summer and well ripened, nutty-brown wood in autumn. Before the arrival of severe frosts, the plants are placed in a cool greenhouse.

Plunged in the Frame.

Having been thus treated, the field-grown plants are awaiting the proper time for the renewal of their active growth. Now to return to spring and to the little plants that are intended to be pot-grown all summer. The removal of these from the greenhouse is deferred until sometime in June, so as to permit time to shift them to good-sized pots before placing them in the frame for the summer. In the frame they are plunged to the rims in coal ashes or porous soil, where they are protected by lath shades from the direct rays of the sun. During the summer the growth of the plants is encouraged by liberal watering and occasional applications of fertilizer. As autumn approaches, however, and the plants naturally tend toward maturity and semi-dormancy, the water supply is reduced accordingly. When severe frosts threaten, the plants are placed in a cool greenhouse, as in the case of the field-grown plants.

Thus the field-grown and the pot-grown plants have arrived, by their different routes, at the same point in their progress.

Ready for Flowering.

Any time after the middle of December—about Christmas or not later than the first few days of the new year—the plants are initiated into their final stage of development, which will culminate in spring flowering. As a preparatory measure, it is well to remove the plants from the pots, detach a little of the soil from the roots and repot in fresh compost. As already intimated, hydrangeas enjoy a rich, live soil, such as good loam and decayed cow manure in equal parts, but fresh manure does not agree with them.

For the gentle forcing, a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees is sufficient. As growth becomes more vigorous, the temperature is gradually raised to 60 degrees. This temperature should not be greatly exceeded, for overforcing produces soft growth, with weak-stemmed flowers that will not last. Until active growth starts, the plants are watered only moderately, though they may be sprayed freely. But after they are well rooted they receive an abundance of water, with weak applications of liquid cow or sheep manure, or top-dressings of fine bone, about once a week from the time the flower heads show until they begin to change color. As soon as the flowers show their natural color, however, the use of the bone or liquid manure should stop.

Some Finishing Touches.

French hydrangeas, as their flower heads are somewhat softer than those of H. otaksa, need a little shade in order to be free from danger of burning. After the flowers are almost developed, they should be hardened off in a slightly cooler temperature, in preparation for the market.

Since hydrangeas are specially fond of moisture, overwatering them would seem to be the most improbable of mistakes. Yet it is just possible that some novice, by keeping their roots excessively and continuously wet, might create that sourness of the soil which results in yellow foliage. If, in spite of the most judicious watering, the leaves assume too pale a hue, the right color may be restored by means of a little soot water or a weak application of nitrate of soda.

Though comparatively free from pests in general, hydrangeas are subject to attacks from green fly, which should be kept in subjection by regular fumigations.

The finished plants in 5-inch or 6-inch pots will be fairly presentable and marketable if they have three or four large heads or cymes of flowers. Under expert treatment, however, they may bear an average of twice that number of flower heads, and specially fine plants in 6-inch pots may carry as many as twelve to sixteen cymes apiece. The results depend mainly on the two essentials already emphasized—vigorous growth in the period of growth and proper ripening in the period of rest.

Any plants that remain unsold may be planted outdoors in good soil and developed into fine specimens in 12-inch to 16-inch tubs for the following season, if the grower has a market for such plants. The main crop of plants, however, should be propagated annually.

Buying a Stock of Plants.

Beginners in hydrangea culture, having no accumulation of stock or of experience, may find it advisable not to start with a crop of cuttings, but to purchase, instead, some well developed plants early in the fall. If the earliest possible blooms are wanted, pot-grown plants in 5-inch or 6-inch sizes will be desirable. If, however, the intention is that the plants shall be in bloom for an ordinary Easter and shall continue in bloom until Memorial day, field-grown plants will serve equally well, if potted as soon as received. In either case, the subsequent treatment will be the same as that already recommended for home-grown plants.

The requirements of different growers vary so greatly that it would be unwise to attempt to designate here which would be the best French hydrangeas for a beginner to select, but the varieties are so numerous that nearly all tastes or preferences can be satisfied. The following are among the best of the varieties carried in stock by the leading wholesalers:

Avalanche, pure white; Baby Bimbenet, large trusses of silvery rose; Eclairer, carmine rose; E. G. Hill, immense clear pink; Gen. de Vibraye, large, bright pink; Gloire de Boissy, deep, brilliant pink; La Lorraine, pale rose, turning to light pink; Lilie Mouillere, carmine rose; Mlle. de Tremault, white; Mlle. Renee Gaillard, white; Mme. Auguste Nonin, large heads of lovely pale pink; Mme. E. Mouillere, large pure white, with rosy eye; Mme. R. Jacquet, light pink; Mont Rose, early and persistent-flowering pink; Radiant, rich carmine rose; Souvenir de Lieutenant Chaure, large heads of bright rose carmine; Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard, early, free, bright rose; Vieux Chateau, light pink, tinted white.

Among the somewhat scarcer, higher-priced varieties are these: Gracieux, light rose, fringed; Louis Foucard, deep carmine; Mme. Foucard, bright carmine; Mme. Truffault, light rosy pink; Opale, delicate rose pink; Prof. D. Bois, bright carmine rose. Last in this group, alphabetically considered, but first in some other respects, is Trophee, a free-flowering, brilliant carmine.

HYDRANGEAS AT POLLWORTH'S.

The popularity and abundance of hydrangeas for Easter sales was much in evidence in many sections of the country this year. The accompanying cut shows a bench of French hydrangeas in full bloom and in good season for Easter at the establishment of the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis. Several thousand of these plants were grown this year by the firm mentioned. As a competitor for laurels with the bench of Easter lilies to the left in the same illustration, these hydrangeas, with their large, "snowball" flowers and abundance of foliage, made a strong showing in the race for popularity.

AMEND CORN BORER ORDERS.

The Federal Horticultural Board has amended the quarantine orders issued originally in October of last year, on account of the spread of the European corn borer, so as to limit the application of its restrictions to those areas in the various states which have been designated as actually infested by this pest. This has been accomplished by providing that in any state where quarantine measures have been adopted which are sufficient to prevent the spread of the corn borer from the infested regions to other parts of the state, the noninfested sections may be released from quarantine. In those states, however, where the state authorities have failed to take protective measures, the whole state will remain under restrictions.

As a matter of fact, all the states which have been named in the various quarantine orders of the board, with the exception of Ohio and Michigan, have already established quarantines which will enable them to secure the release of uninfested sections, and it is probable that those two states now will take the action necessary for securing like privileges. The other states which have

They are kept in shade and syringed occasionally until root action is resumed; then they are placed in a sunny spot where they can be easily protected from heavy rains and sharp frosts. This temperature should not be greatly exceeded, for overforcing produces soft growth, with weak-stemmed flowers that will not last. Until active growth starts, the plants are watered only moderately, though they may be sprayed freely. But after they are well rooted they receive an abundance of water, with weak applications of liquid cow or sheep manure, or top-dressings of fine bone, about once a week from the time the flower heads show until they begin to change color. As soon as the flowers show their natural color, however, the use of the bone or liquid manure should stop.

Some Finishing Touches.

French hydrangeas, as their flower heads are somewhat softer than those of H. otaksa, need a little shade in order to be free from danger of burning. After the flowers are almost developed, they should be hardened off in a slightly cooler temperature, in preparation for the market.

Since hydrangeas are specially fond of moisture, overwatering them would seem to be the most improbable of mistakes. Yet it is just possible that some novice, by keeping their roots excessively and continuously wet, might create that sourness of the soil which results in yellow foliage. If, in spite of the most judicious watering, the leaves assume too pale a hue, the right color may be restored by means of a little soot water or a weak application of nitrate of soda.

Though comparatively free from pests in general, hydrangeas are subject to attacks from green fly, which should be kept in subjection by regular fumigations.

The finished plants in 5-inch or 6-inch pots will be fairly presentable and marketable if they have three or four large heads or cymes of flowers. Under expert treatment, however, they may bear an average of twice that number of flower heads, and specially fine plants in 6-inch pots may carry as many as twelve to sixteen cymes apiece. The results depend mainly on the two essentials already emphasized—vigorous growth in the period of growth and proper ripening in the period of rest.

Any plants that remain unsold may be planted outdoors in good soil and developed into fine specimens in 12-inch to 16-inch tubs for the following season, if the grower has a market for such plants. The main crop of plants, however, should be propagated annually.

Buying a Stock of Plants.

Beginners in hydrangea culture, having no accumulation of stock or of experience, may find it advisable not to start with a crop of cuttings, but to purchase, instead, some well developed plants early in the fall. If the earliest possible blooms are wanted, pot-grown plants in 5-inch or 6-inch sizes will be desirable. If, however, the intention is that the plants shall be in bloom for an ordinary Easter and shall continue in bloom until Memorial day, field grown plants will serve equally well, if potted as soon as received. In either case, the subsequent treatment will be the same as that already recommended for home-grown plants.

The requirements of different growers vary so greatly that it would be unwise to attempt to designate here which would be the best French hydrangeas for a beginner to select, but the varieties are so numerous that nearly all tastes or preferences can be satisfied. The following are among the best of the varieties carried in stock by the leading wholesalers:

Avalanche, pure white; Baby Bimbenet, large trusses of silvery rose; Eclairer, carmine rose; E. G. Hill, immense clear pink; Gen. de Vibraye, large, bright pink; Gloire de Boissy, deep, brilliant pink; La Lorraine, pale rose, turning to light pink; Lilie Moulere, carmine rose; Mlle. de Treneault, white; Mlle. Renee Gaillard, white; Mme. Auguste Nonin, large heads of lovely pale pink; Mme. E. Mouillere, large pure white, with rosy eye; Mme. R. Jaquet, light pink; Monte-Rose, early and persistent flowering pink; Radiant, rich carmine rose; Souvenir de Lieutenant, Chaire, large heads of bright rose carmine; Souvenir de Mme. E. Chantard, early, free, bright rose; Vieux Chateau, light pink, tinted white.

Among the somewhat scarcer, higher priced varieties are these: Gracieux, light rose, fringed; Louis Foucard, deep carmine; Mme. Foucard, bright carmine; Mme. Truffault, light rosy pink; Opale, delicate rose pink; Prof. D. Bois, bright carmine rose. Last in this group, alphabetically considered, but first in some other respects, is Trophee, a free flowering, brilliant carmine.

HYDRANGEAS AT POLLWORTH'S.

The popularity and abundance of hydrangeas for Easter sales was much in evidence in many sections of the country this year. The accompanying cut shows a bench of French hydrangeas in full bloom and in good season for Easter at the establishment of the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis. Several thousand of these plants were grown this year by the firm mentioned. As a competitor for laurels with the bench of Easter lilies to the left in the same illustration, these hydrangeas, with their large, "snowball" flowers and abundance of foliage, made a strong showing in the race for popularity.

AMEND CORN BORER ORDERS.

The Federal Horticultural Board has amended the quarantine orders issued originally in October of last year, on account of the spread of the European corn borer, so as to limit the application of its restrictions to those areas in the various states which have been designated as actually infested by this pest. This has been accomplished by providing that in any state where quarantine measures have been adopted which are sufficient to prevent the spread of the corn borer from the infested regions to other parts of the state, the noninfested sections may be released from quarantine. In those states, however, where the state authorities have failed to take protective measures, the whole state will remain under restrictions.

As a matter of fact, all the states which have been named in the various quarantine orders of the board, with the exception of Ohio and Michigan, have already established quarantines which will enable them to secure the release of uninfested sections, and it is probable that those two states now will take the action necessary for securing like privileges. The other states which have been infested by the corn borer are Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania.

In announcing the amendment of its regulations, the Federal Horticultural Board points out that the necessity for state coöperation arises from the fact that the federal quarantine controls only interstate movement and that shipments within any state of material originating in an infested area may be controlled only by the state authorities.

FLORAL ARTS CLUB MEETS.

A regular meeting of the Floral Arts Club, of Des Moines, Ia., was held Tuesday evening, April 11, at Harris-Emery's. The speaker of the evening, L. S. Goode, from Successful Farming, used as his topic, "How to Make the Most of Planting on a Small Scale." He brought out the thought that, after all, the man who plans and carries out his plans makes the most of his property. Even porch boxes or window boxes will add to the beauty of a home, if nothing else is available, and then we found, as Mr. Goode went on, that his real thought was "The Apartment House Dweller's Lament."

However, as it was nurserymen's night, the discussion centered about the effort to get every property owner interested in planting shrubbery—not a few scattered shrubs, but a few well chosen groups of shrubbery about his home. Not only does it add to the owner's pleasure, but in event of wishing to sell his property, it adds greatly to its attractiveness and value.

Those of the club who attended the national flower show, at Indianapolis, gave short accounts of it, but words fail in trying to tell of all its beauties.

It being "Better Homes" week, in Des Moines, at 8:30 p. m. the club adjourned to attend the lecture at the auditorium on "Planning and Laying Out the 50-foot Lot," by F. A. Cushing Smith, of Chicago. Mr. Smith first showed slides of many and varied kinds of gardens, always with the end in view that the garden, whether of flowers or vegetables, was a part of a picture. Later, with a model, he developed a 50-foot lot, showing the best arrangement for house, gardens and lawn space; truly he made each unit a part of the picture.

CURING POISONED HANDS.

I can sympathize with anyone who has been so unfortunate as to contract greenhouse poisoning, but I believe that I have found a remedy for it. Wash the hands three times, or more if necessary, with Packer's tar soap. Dry the hands well and then wash them with a first-class peroxide of hydrogen and rub in well. Use the peroxide as often as the soap and use both of these before retiring at night.

G. W. C.

HOW STRIKE STANDS

THE COAL SITUATION.

Strike Issues.

There is a decided difference in the situation as regards the anthracite and bituminous branches of the coal industry in the present strike.

The anthracite miners have demanded substantial increases in wages and have asked changes in working conditions which would add still further to the cost of coal. The anthracite fields are not widespread and are thoroughly unionized; the operators are at present holding a conference with the miners to negotiate an agreement.

The union bituminous coal miners wish to retain the peak wage scale agreed upon in 1920 and desire a national agreement, to neither of which the operators agree. The latter hold that conditions do not warrant a continuation of high wages; only by the reduction of labor cost can fuel prices be brought down. The operators wish to effect separate agreements in each coal field, partly because competitive conditions make it desirable and partly because of legal reasons. Indictments, found in 1920, still lie against 226 operators and union officials on the grounds that the 4-state agreement made in that year constitutes a conspiracy under the Sherman law. The operators do not wish to be liable to further indictments. Their apprehension is given greater basis because of Attorney-General Daugherty's statement recently that the government would not permit coal operators and miners at any wage conference to repeat acts which, he said, had brought on the federal indictments charging conspiracy to monopolize the coal industry in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Non-Union Fields' Production.

To force the operators to make a national agreement, the miners are seeking to unionize all the coal fields, only two-thirds of which were under union control at the outset of the strike. The first week of the strike the non-union fields produced 3,500,000 tons of coal, about one-third the weekly production the month before. It is said that the figure might have been a third higher had there been a strong demand.

The geological survey estimated at least 63,000,000 tons on hand April 1, but as that figure did not include coal in transit, on the Great Lakes docks and in the cellars of private domestic consumers, the impression is that there is at least 100,000,000 tons of soft coal above ground. Consequently, a slow market is reported.

Slack Demand.

"The week's output falls short of what the mines not affected by the strike can produce if the demand is active," said the National Coal Association. "From mines in many non-union districts reports of 'dull market' and 'no orders' have been received, and there is a large number of loaded cars unbilled on the sidings, some of which are in fields closed by the strike. While 4,000,000 tons is below the capacity of the non-union fields, the only reason for the restricted production is to be found in the inability of the operators to find a market for their coal."

For this reason the administration at Washington is not taking any part, as yet, in the coal controversy. Reports in the hands of administration leaders concerning the progress of the coal strike are said to have convinced the President that no serious results may be expected at this juncture.

No change in price conditions, either in the bituminous or anthracite markets, has taken place, a fact that adds credence to the report of large stocks on hand. These will last forty days after the beginning of the strike, it is said. Production in non-union fields will carry consumers farther, so no apprehension is felt concerning the supply for another month. Ere it has elapsed, perhaps negotiations leading to an agreement will have been begun.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—With $170,000 worth of unfilled orders on its books, the John C. Moninger Co. found itself in need of an extension on its liabilities and new capital or credit to swing its business. A meeting of creditors was held April 18, at which it was shown that assets approximate $190,000, while liabilities outside of sums due the officers of the company for rent, salary and loans amount to $93,000. It was decided to organize a creditors' committee, managed by James C. Walsh, of Upham & Walsh, lumber dealers; H. N. Booth, of the U. S. Radiator Co., and W. A. Davis, of the W. A. Davis Lumber Co., to arrange for the necessary extension of time and the continuation of the business. It was shown that 117 creditors have claims aggregating only $3,200 and it was arranged that these are to be paid in full at once. The other creditors, numbering eighty-three, are to be asked to extend time in order that the company may employ its assets in the development of its reviving business. It was stated by the committee which had looked into the affair, that "while the company has suffered, as have practically all other concerns, during the recent depression, we believe the company to be sound and that if its business were efficiently and economically managed it could in a reasonable time pay every dollar of its indebtedness." The business is the oldest of its kind in the middle west, having been established by the late John C. Moninger in 1868. The present officers, E. F. Kurowski, president; R. E. Kurowski, vice-president, and Walter Rupp, secretary and treasurer, have devoted their entire business lives to the company, which has built up an extremely valuable good will.

New York, N. Y.—Sam Seligman, lately engaged in the sale of florists' novelties and supplies, at 116 West Twenty-eighth street, filed schedules in bankruptcy April 17, listing liabilities of $25,083, and assets of $9,205, the main items of which are accounts, $4,928, and stock, $4,000. Principal creditors listed are Jacob Braunstein, $1,000, secured; Elizabeth Seligman, $3,500.

New Orleans, La.—Notice has been given creditors of the bankruptcy of Sam Guerrara, who conducted a seed store at 528 St. Phillips street. He sold seeds principally to the local truck farmers.

HEAD OF OHIO CHAIN

HOW ZETLITZ BUILT CHAIN.

Heads Eight Establishments.

The chain store idea has found a champion with remarkable organizing ability in this trade, if the aggregation of eight Ohio greenhouse ranges—three at Dayton, two at Lima, one at Middleton, one at Ada and one at Columbus—may be considered as sufficient material evidence of the accomplishments of Rolf Zetlitz.

Mr. Zetlitz came from Norway in 1892 with his father, who established himself in a small greenhouse at Lima, O. Young Rolf was then only a boy 8 years old, but he was a great help to his father and it was here that he learned to love flowers and laid the foundation for the brilliant career which lay before him.

When but 17 years of age he left Lima and went to Chicago, where he secured employment in a large greenhouse establishment. His knowledge of plants soon won him a position of responsibility. His intense desire to get on in the world, however, led him two years later to undertake the establishment of a business of his own. With $300, his entire savings, in his pocket, he returned to Lima, O., and engaged in business in direct competition with his father. The fact that either he or his father might starve to death as a result of two greenhouses in a town the size of Lima never entered the younger man's head, because he believed that the outside world was large enough for all of the flowers that could be grown. His climb to success was the subject of a feature story in the Dayton News recently.

When asked how his first venture succeeded, he said, "I'll tell you how much of a competitor I was to my father. I took in just $42 the first month I was in business. I didn't go out and hunt for business when I started in. I went where I knew the business was—I set up right across the street from the Lima cemetery. Three hundred dollars was precious little capital when it was all going out and nothing coming in, but I sold my flowers and kept my stock from freezing, and soon had a comfortable start, as far as growing plants were concerned.

Hail Destroys Range.

"When I had accumulated a little money I went over to Ada, O., and bought a greenhouse that was specializing in roses. That move was a success from the start. My rose business grew by leaps and bounds. Then one October day, about four years ago, a terrific hail storm hit the outskirts of Ada and seemed to center right over my greenhouses. I had an investment of $30,000 there. The hail storm lasted three minutes and when it was over all I had was a mass of broken glass and twisted timbers, all lying on top of my stock.

"For a whole day (I don't think it was longer than that) it seemed to me the world was running backward. Then I remembered that I started once with nothing and still had my best asset, good health, so I determined to show my own little part of the world that a thing like a hail storm couldn't make a quitter out of me. I looked over the mess in Ada and turned my steps toward Dayton. I wanted to get the atmosphere of a town that had been wiped off the map and then, rising and brushing the mud off herself, had builded bigger than before. I came to Dayton and bought a florist's establishment.

Continued Expansion.

"That was just three years ago. Since then I have replaced the Ada range, enlarged it and added a retail store, and I have bought out another competitor in Lima. I didn't quit there, but went over to see how father was getting along, found him ready to retire and bought his business.

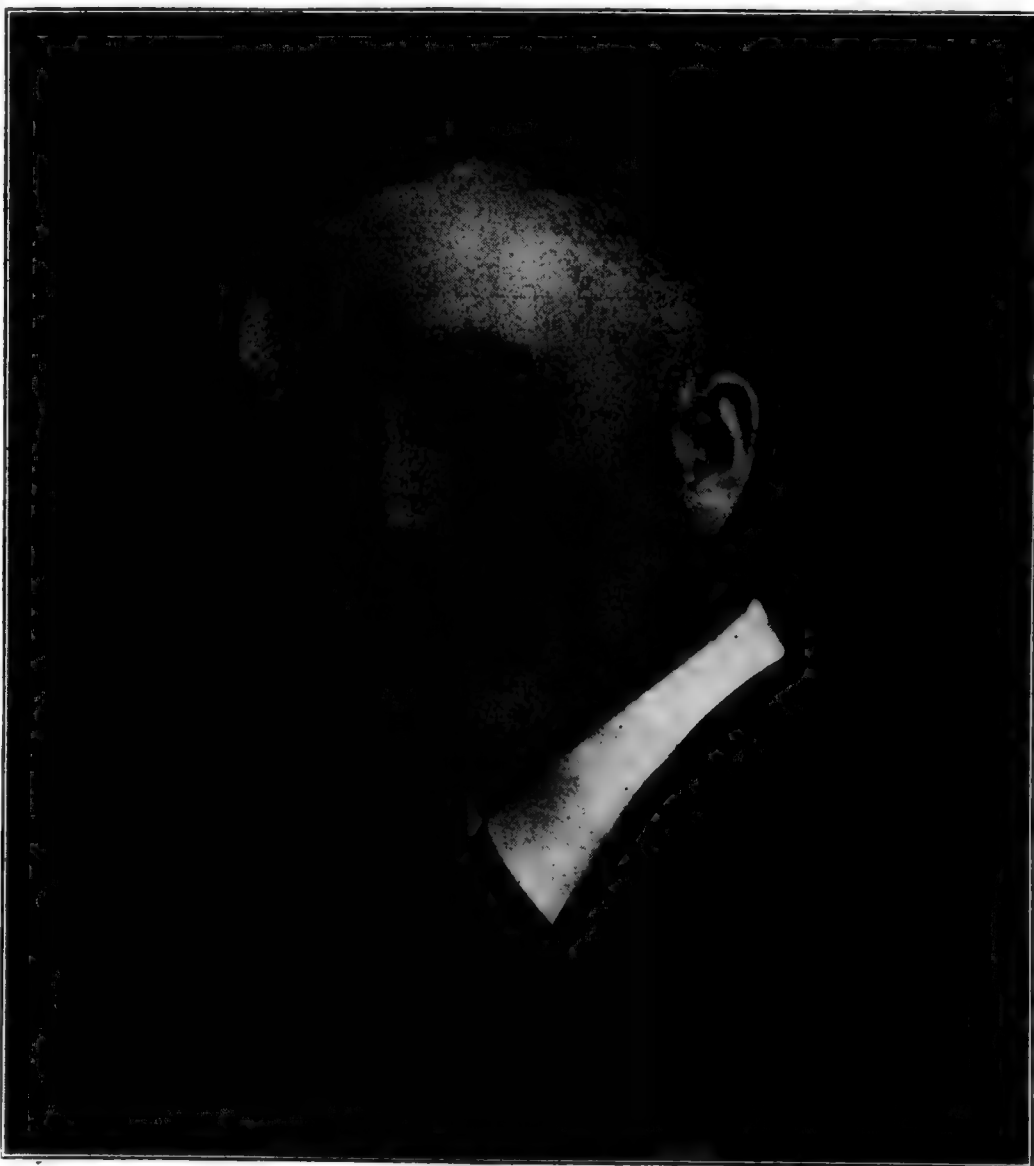

"Back to Dayton, with my sleeves rolled up, I found the town possessed of the very fighting spirit I needed, and I sort of absorbed more than my share. One day a year ago I called on Warren G. Matthews, Dayton's pioneer florist. Everybody knows Warren and his sunny disposition. But when I dropped in, Warren was suffering with an aggravated attack of the blues. He had reasoned it out that he'd been in the business long enough and when he said he thought he'd sell out and I asked for his figures, the sun seemed to start shining again. To make a long story short, I bought his establishment the same day I asked for his figures.

Buys a Coal Mine.

"There are two grave things to consider in growing flowers for the trade. One is hail and the other is low temperature. Last winter, when a coal famine was threatened and when coal prices promised to land up around $15 a ton, it occurred to me that I had bought insurance against hail, but I hadn't insured against frost. So I bought a coal mine at Nelsonville, O. It isn't a whopper of a mine, but we take from three to six carloads a day out of it, or did up to a few months ago, when the coal market shifted to the point where we could buy West Virginia coal laid down in Dayton cheaper than we could load it on the cars at Nelsonville.

"The coal mine bought, I turned my attention to the Columbus field, as we were developing a wonderful business throughout that region. I looked over the greenhouse establishments there and bought one, the biggest of those of which I am now at the head. And while it has been a struggle to get the organization there that I should like to have, it is growing steadily and reaching out into a wider field every day."

Roses a Specialty.

Today, still on the sunny side of 40 by several years, Rolf Zetlitz owns outright or has controlling stock in eight different florists' establishments. Altogether these ranges contain more than a million square feet of glass. Last year they held over 200,000 rose plants, and the quota for this season is 300,000. They will also produce 300,000 cyclamens this season, as well as an assortment of other blooming plants and cut flowers.

"What is the secret of business success?" In Mr. Zetlitz's words: "The secret of success in any business is, first, being in love with your business, and second, refusing to sit down and grieve when the sun quits shining and calamity hits you."

THE ALVIN CAPE JASMINES.

The unusually warm and wet autumn and open winter at Alvin, Tex., permitted an unusually fine growth on the cape jasmines for which that region is famous, but the late spring that prevails there, as well as over most of the country, is delaying the development of the buds, so that they will mature several weeks later than last season. Shipments will start moving about May 18. Unfortunately, there will be none ready for Mothers' day. Growers at Alvin have found that all of their outdoor flowers, such as jonquils, freesias, narcissi, sweet peas, Easter lilies, etc., have been from ten to fourteen days late this spring. One grower picked his first peas April 12, while under normal conditions he would have been picking by April 1.

SPRING JOB

MAKING A LAWN.

Springtime Job for Florists.

Those florists who do planting about the homes of their customers are frequently called upon to assist in the making of a lawn. There are plenty of lawns that need an expert's care, and in a neighborhood of new homes, particularly, there is often much of this sort of work to be done by someone who is expert at it. If one can engage a man of some experience, in case the florist has not the time to oversee the work himself, and a small crew of huskies to work under his direction, there is profit in making lawns and planting trees and shrubs about residences in the spring and autumn. In case the florist is attempting service of this kind, these remarks on the care of the lawn will be of value:

In the spring, as soon as the coarser portions of the winter mulch, if any, have been raked off, the lawn should be rolled to press the soil closely about the grass roots and to iron out small lumps and inequalities of the surface. If a roller is not available, recourse may be had to a tamper, made from a short length of 2-inch plank and a broom handle, or the soil may be compacted by beating it with the back of a spade.

To renovate bald spots, the soil of those areas that are bare or sparsely covered with grass should be scratched with an iron-toothed rake and grass seed sown rather thickly. Cover the seed thinly with finely sifted soil and firm with tamper or roller.

If the lawn has been properly prepared with a good depth of soil, it is seldom necessary to water the lawn except in dry seasons. When watering is necessary it should be done before the grass turns brown, and should be thorough. Surface sprinklings are of no avail—enough water should be applied to penetrate to the moist soil below. Perhaps the best method of applying water is by means of a lawn-sprinkler, but care must be taken to allow it to play long enough to achieve the effect desired.

Adding Fertilizers.

Fertility may be maintained by the use of an annual mulch of well decayed stable manure or by the use of more concentrated fertilizers. One of the best lawn fertilizers is ground bone applied in the fall at the rate of ten pounds to 400 square feet. This will supply phosphorus and some nitrogen. To provide all the elements it is usually necessary to supply, this may be supplemented by a dressing of unleached hardwood ashes in the spring at the rate of fifteen to twenty pounds to 400 square feet. When growth begins, nitrate of soda at the rate of one to two pounds to 400 square feet may be applied to advantage. Later in the season, about the beginning of June, another dressing of nitrate of soda may be given. This helps to promote a rich, dark green color in the grass.

Another means of supplying fertility is to use a complete commercial fertilizer analyzing about three per cent nitrogen, eight per cent phosphoric acid and five per cent potash at the rate of ten to fifteen pounds to 400 square feet.

When it is desired to promote the growth of Kentucky blue grass and clover, lime at the same rate as the above may be put on during the fall.

Getting Rid of the Weeds.

The best way to eliminate weeds from the lawn is to provide conditions favorable to growth of grass. Good soil, reseeding of bare patches, frequent mowing, and keeping up fertility by application of fertilizers, all help to keep down weeds. Some perennial weeds, such as dandelion and plantain, are almost sure to occur. These should be uprooted with the help of a stout-bladed knife, or something similar, before they have a chance to flower and produce seeds. Weeds of this character show up plainly during a dry season when the grass has become brown, owing to their ability to withstand drought and remain green. Under these circumstances it is easy to find even the small ones without hand and knee work, and advantage should be taken of the first rain that softens the soil to get them out.

Another method of eradicating these weeds is to apply gasoline or common salt to the center of the weed. The quantity to use is to be determined by experiment; it will be about a teaspoonful to a good-sized weed. If too much gasoline or salt is used, it may kill the grass in the vicinity; if too little is used, the weeds will not be killed. Gasoline can conveniently be applied by means of an oil can, such as is used for oiling machinery.

Some weeds of a creeping nature, such as the perennial chickweeds, can be dealt with by tearing them up, by raking with an iron-toothed rake and then sowing grass seeds. Adding fertility to the soil so as to encourage the growth of grass is a great help in overcoming these pests and also in getting rid of sheep sorrel, which is sometimes bothersome in lawns.

Crab grass is sometimes a bad weed in lawns made on poor soil, insufficiently fertilized. Affected areas should be fertilized, spaded over and reseeded with good grass seed.

Extremely weedy lawns are usually most satisfactorily dealt with by digging or plowing them up and starting afresh.

INDIANA FLORISTS MEET.

Add New Members.

President Hitz presided at the April meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association, which was held at the Chamber of Commerce, Indianapolis, Tuesday, April 11, at 7:30 p. m.

The following names were proposed for membership: John Schliesman and Charles Lockwood, both of Indianapolis; C. G. Anderson, Terre Haute; Louis G. Pleiss, New Albany, and William H. Kuhn, of Kokomo, Ind. The following were elected to membership: William Horn, James Lowry and Edward Rieman, of Indianapolis, and Henry Miller, of Kokomo.

The secretary read a communication from E. G. Hill thanking the state association for its remembrance of his fiftieth wedding anniversary.

It was voted to suspend the May meeting of the organization, on account of the amount of work at this time.

L. E. Hitz called attention to some good posters for the fifth national flower show that were made in the city schools of Madison, Ind.

A fall show, to be held at the city greenhouses, was discussed. The following committee was appointed to investigate the advisability of this exhibit there: Lennis Elder, chairman; Herman Young, E. E. Temperley, Morris Marer and Charles M. Balluff.

Other Business.

It was recommended to the state fair committee that the time was ripe to appeal to the board for a flower hall at the state fair grounds, since other branches were being favored with new structures. The committee was also urged to try to increase the premium list and to try to increase the number of competitors.

A joint meeting with the Illinois,

Kentucky and Indiana florists was suggested and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the secretaries of these associations to try to arrange a meeting.

The subject of the floral parade was given attention. In order to keep the subject alive, it was agreed to discuss the parade at each meeting until October, when it will be held.

E. E. Temperley brought up the subject of getting an appropriation in the Purdue budget for the furthering of floriculture at this college. After a general discussion, this was referred to the Purdue committee.

The next regular meeting of the association will be held in June, at New Albany, through the invitation of Anders Rasmussen. This will be an unusually attractive occasion, as it will be of two days' duration and will include a trip through Mammoth Cave. This will not be held until after school closes, so that the various members may include their families in the excursion. The exact date will be announced later by the program committee.

O. E. Steinkamp, chairman of the S. A. F. committee, reported three new members for the organization.

The various interesting features of the fifth national flower show were discussed. This was followed by adjournment. E. E. T.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Easter Business.

A good supply of stock was available for Easter and, the demand being extremely good, the market was cleared. The variety was limited, on account of the lateness of the season. Most of the bulbous stock was gone and, as this is usually a leader, more could have been used.

Easter lilies and hyacinths were leaders. As usual, potted plants were more in favor than cut flowers, although none of the latter went begging. Rose bushes, hydrangeas, azaleas and ferns were active.

That the national flower show had caused a boom in business was shown by the increase in cash customers this year. This led the florists to believe that a great number of these were new flower buyers.

Church decorations were numerous.

The Market.

Market conditions are good. Roses are plentiful at $6 to $25 per hundred; the quality is fine. Prices on carnations are $4 to $8 per hundred. These have been excellent. Laddie brings $10 and $12 per hundred. Easter lilies are more available in quantity and sell at $3 per dozen. Callas are abundant at $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen.

A wide range in the quality of snapdragons is seen. Those finest quality sell at $2 per dozen, while inferior grades range from $6 to $8 per hundred.

Short-stemmed peas are plentiful at $1 per hundred. Better qualities bring $2 to $2.50 per hundred.

Violets are out of the market. Outside bulbous stock is becoming plentiful. Other available flowers include candytuft, stocks, mignonette, marguerites and calendulas.

Various Notes.

A. F. J. Baur was sick all last week, but he is better now and back at work.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

ORLANDO HARRISON.

THE Harrison Nurseries, at Berlin, Md., are a big enterprise and demand a correspondingly big manager. At their head is Senator Orlando Harrison. Besides taking a leading part in the management of the 5,000 acres of orchard and nursery stock, Senator Harrison finds time to promote the affairs of state as well. In 1902 he was elected mayor of Berlin. In 1906 he was chosen for the lower house of the Maryland legislature and since 1914 he has served as state senator. In this office he has accomplished much toward road building and similar improvements. He is also active in the Masonic order and in church work. He is president of the Exchange & Savings Bank of Berlin and a director in the Berlin Building & Loan Association. He has served as president of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, as president of the Maryland State Horticultural Society and also of the Peninsula Horticultural Society.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting some excellent snapdragons.

Hartje & Elder lost some flowers when burglars broke into their greenhouses last week. Some glass was broken and other minor losses were involved.

William Horn's new Bungalow Flower Shop, at Thirtieth street and Washington boulevard, is nearing completion. Mr. Horn has been at Richmond helping Fred Lemon over the Easter rush.

E. Morner reported a brisk Easter business at Shelbyville, Ind.

A wind storm swept Broad Ripple early April 17, doing some damage to telephone poles, trees, etc. Temperley's lost some glass and had some ventilators torn loose. People of this vicinity are worrying over the high waters, which are continuing to rise and which have already flooded the lowlands.

The Bankers' Trust Co. has sent letters to the various florists telling of their contest for amateur growers and asking their cooperation. April 13 a full page of advertisements with the heading, "Bankers' Trust Company's Amateur Flower Show," was run in the News. Among these were the advertisements of various seed companies, a nursery, a hardware store and several florists. This is a new combination, a bank and florists advertising together. If we just keep up the good work we shall have it correlated with numerous walks of life. E. E. T.

West Grove, Pa.—About 3,000 square feet of glass have been acquired by C. H. Miller, who will enter the trade.

NEW YORK.

The Easter Market.

The Easter market in New York was highly satisfactory to growers, wholesalers and retailers alike. There was a bountiful supply of flowers, which moved at prices considered entirely reasonable. Warm weather preceding Easter forced into the market large quantities of stock, which was generally of low grade, soft and unattractive, but as Saturday approached, somewhat cooler weather boosted quality and there was little complaint as to arrivals, and, save such as showed unmistakable signs of holding, offerings generally were of highly satisfactory quality.

The plant supply was good and growers report a satisfactory clean-up, with surpluses light. Plant quality was high, with the exception of roses. Azaleas were few in number; that is, the Ghent varieties, but the Japanese sorts were available and filled the gap acceptably. Hydrangeas were quite plentiful, but sold up well and were most showy. Bougainvilleas were fine this year and commanded attention. Spiræas, genistas, acacias, wisterias, abutilons, daisies and many other items sold well. Bulbous stock, such as hyacinths and tulips, was most plentiful, despite the late date, and there were potted and cut stock galore. Cut tulips sold at as high as $1.50 per dozen, but most arrivals brought $1 down to 60 cents, according to quality.

Lilies were in great supply, and the surplus was large. There was a wonderful series of grades, from short stock, six inches high, with foliage lateral freely at $60 to $100 per hundred, with a top grade at $125.

Carnations moved well, but, outside of Laddie, did not do better than $8 per hundred, with most sales around $6. The surplus was largely of white varieties.

Cattleyas were not overplentiful this year, but there was a supply sufficient to go around, within a price range of $1 to $2 per flower, with a few fine hybrids bringing $3.

Miscellaneous flowers had good innings. Sweet peas moved freely at $2 to $5 per bunch. Violets were plentiful, but met a small demand, as the quality, except of late arrivals, was poor. Delphinium Belladonna brought as much as $6 per bunch. Bouvardia sold well, as also did mignonette, myosotis, wallflowers, freesias, cornflowers, snapdragons, pansies, stocks, ranunculi, primroses, iris, camellias and buddleia.

Both wholesalers and retailers appear to be satisfied with the Easter trade, which is conceded to have been the largest in recent years.

This Week's Market.

Monday, April 17, the market was not lively, and shipments were light. There was a small supply of American Beauty at $50 to $75 per hundred, and an abundance of hybrid teas at prices within a range of $4 to $35 per hundred, all selling well, except white varieties, which dragged.

Carnations were in good supply, selling at $3 to $6, with concessions for clearances. White varieties were not taken freely.

Cattleyas are in moderate supply at $75 to $150 per hundred. White lilies are plentiful, moving slowly at $12 for the rally of florists at the meeting which is to be held Friday, April 21, in the Engineering Societies' building, under the auspices of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York. About 2,275 notices of the meeting have been mailed to florists and auxiliary tradesmen, and a large attendance is expected. Publicity for flowers is, of course, the main object of the meeting. The association will distribute at the meeting an official badge; this is rather unique, being a button showing a half-blown Ophelia rose on a background of dark blue, with the legend, "Member Allied Florists' Association."

Alexander S. Georgiades, a florist of New Brighton, L. I., is held in bail of $10,000 for irregularities alleged to have occurred while he was in charge of a substation postoffice in New Brighton. The government claims he is short in his accounts to the extent of $992.50. His explanation is that burglars took this money November 12.

Robert G. Wilson, the Brooklyn retailer, filled the telegraph order sent from the national flower show at Indianapolis by Mayor Samuel Lewis Shank to Mayor Hylan. The token was a handsome basket of flowering plants, and Mr. Wilson had it photographed, and the picture was reproduced in the New York Evening Journal and Brooklyn papers.

G. A. Billings, Morristown, N. J., is to lecture before the monthly meeting of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, at the Elks' hall, Morristown, Thursday evening, April 27, his subject being, "Spraying." At the meeting an exhibit of iris is expected to be staged.

Among the recent New York state incorporations listed was the name of George Hanjes, the uptown retail florist.

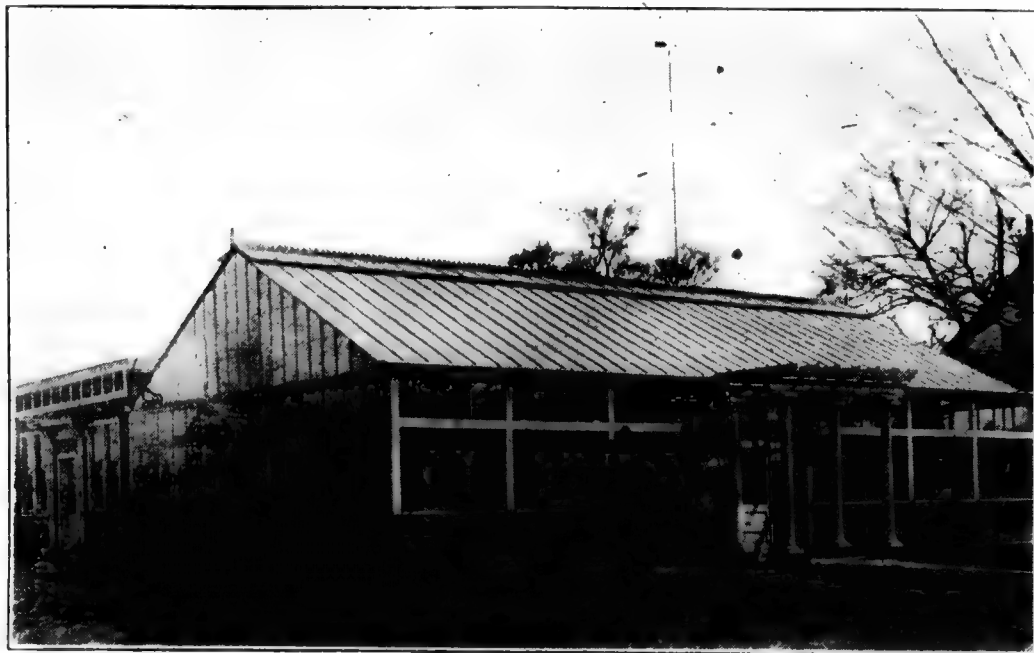

Funeral services for the late John I. Raynor were held at Campbell's funeral chapel, Sixty-sixth street and Broadway, Monday afternoon, April 17. Among those present representing the trade were F. H. Traendly, John Young, C. B. Weathered, Benjamin Warendorff and W. L. Bogert. Bogert's furnished the floral blanket, a handsome piece made of Ophelia roses. J. H. P.

PROGRESS IN EVANSVILLE.

Down in Evansville, Ind., the firm of Julius Niednagel, now managed by the two brothers, C. L. and E. H. Niednagel, believes in keeping up to date and, perhaps, a jump or two ahead of the times. A manifestation of this is a new show house, built recently in connection with the firm's office. An illustration of it is shown on this page. The house was built by the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., Chicago, which is now building a new greenhouse for the Evansville firm. The new house will be about 29x262 feet in size. The Niednagel range now comprises more than 100,000 feet of glass. Five acres of outside stock is grown.

BEARDSTOWN, ILL.

The flood which covers this town with from two to fifteen feet of water inundated the Rose View Greenhouses, at 409 West Fifth street, to a depth of seven feet. The stock in them is a complete loss. The office files are likewise buried in water, so that business is suspended. The proprietors, Ede & Anderson, report it impossible to predict when the flood will abate; it may be two or three weeks.

Show House That Should Make Selling Easier for Evansville Firm.

rather than perpendicular, to plants three feet high. The top price, both for plants and cut flowers, was 25 cents per flower and bud, the range downward running to 12 cents. Lilies of the valley were plentiful and sold well, with the top grade bringing $12 per hundred sprays.

Roses were plentiful and went off at prices anything but inflated, the range being $4 to $35 per hundred for ordinary varieties. Hadley specials sold at $60 and perhaps one or two other varieties ran out of range. American Beauty was rather scarce and special grades moved to $20 per hundred. Lilies of the valley are back to the pre-Easter range of $2 to $6 per hundred.

Various Notes.

John I. Raynor, for many years a Twenty-eighth street wholesaler, died Saturday morning, April 15, in his apartment at the Hotel Teresa. He returned March 6 from a trip to Florida, suffering from rheumatism, and at once took to his bed, and this trouble, with the malignant cancer with which he had been suffering for some years, hastened his death.

Great preparations have been made

John I. Raynor.

John I. Raynor, retired wholesale florist, died in his apartments at the Hotel Teresa, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Seventh avenue, New York, Saturday, April 15, after a lingering illness of cancer. In January he, with his wife, went to Florida, returning to New York March 6, when he took to his bed, suffering from rheumatism. With his other ailment he slowly sank until he passed away.

Mr. Raynor was born and brought up in Queens, L. I., and lived there for many years. For the last four years he had made his home at the Hotel Teresa. He started in the wholesale florists' business with the late W. S. Allen and continued with him for several years. About twenty-four years ago he formed a partnership with A. S. Burns and started in business at 11 West Twenty-eighth street. Four years later he succeeded to the business, ultimately moving to 49 West Twenty-eighth street, where he remained until he retired twelve years ago. He was in his sixty-third year at the time of his death. He was greatly liked in the trade, and his demise is regretted by all. He was a life member of both the S. A. F. and the New York Florists' Club. J. H. P.

John B. Keller.

John B. Keller, for many years a florist of Rochester, N. Y., died Monday, April 10, at the family home, 541 Clinton avenue, south, at the advanced age of 83 years. Mr. Keller had been ill for a long time.

He immigrated to this country from Germany at an early age, coming to Rochester to live in 1860. He started a florists' establishment at 1023 South avenue, under the name of John B. Keller, and for more than forty-five years continued there. About thirty years ago he retired, turning over his place of business to his sons, who now operate it as J. B. Keller Sons.

He leaves his widow, Josepha; six sons, E. E. Keller, F. J. Keller, George J. Keller, J. Michael Keller, John W. Keller and William L. Keller; one step-daughter, Mary Keller; fourteen grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

He was a member of Humboldt Lodge of Odd Fellows.

The funeral services were private and were held at the home at 4 p. m., Wednesday, April 12. There were many beautiful floral pieces, several coming from members of the trade.

H. J. H.

Henry T. Clinkaberry.

Henry T. Clinkaberry, formerly well known in the east as a successful orchid grower and hybridist, died suddenly of heart failure at his home on Franklin avenue, Hollywood, Cal., April 8. He was apparently in his usual health in the morning, but later he complained of feeling chilly and started a fire in the stove. A few minutes later he was found dead on the floor.

The deceased was English by birth and came to this country twenty-three years ago. He first worked for Pitcher & Manda, of Orange, N. J., later taking charge of the famous Roebling collection of orchids. He was with Mr. Roebling for fourteen years, during which time he raised many fine hybrid orchids, including Cypripedium Clinkaberryanum, Cattleya Mrs. Washington A. Roebling and others. Later he was in several other private places in the east and some years ago he came to Los Angeles, where he had charge of the Doheny collection of orchids.

After that time he was in several good private places. He was a most interesting man, his conversation being always enlightening and bright. He had a thorough knowledge of plant life, especially of orchids, among which he spent his best years. He was 62 years of age and leaves a wife, four sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. H. R. R.

Henry Schwab.

Just at the dawn of April 4, Henry Schwab, of Zanesville, O., passed away at his home in that city. Mr. Schwab was born in Alsace-Lorraine, fifty-three years ago, and came to America with his parents when he was a small boy. He received his education in the public schools of Zanesville and in early life showed a liking for the study of flowers. When a young man he established a greenhouse, where he conducted a flourishing business with the aid of his sister, Louise.

Mr. Schwab was expert as a designer and a strict follower of the golden rule. He was a member of the S. A. F. and a number of local organizations. He was always a staunch supporter of his chosen church. The funeral took place April 6, at which time there were many floral offerings. Mr. Schwab is survived by his aged father and his sister, Louise, who will continue the business.

Joseph Pedro.

Joseph Pedro, for many years gardener and caretaker of Gray Craig, at Newport, R. I., when it was owned by the late J. Mitchell Clarke and, later, by Gordon Mott, died at his home, on Aquidneck avenue, Middletown, Mass., Monday, April 10, after a long and painful illness. He was one of the older and better known Portuguese residents of the City by the Sea, where he had lived for many years. He is survived by Mrs. Pedro and children.

W. H. M.

Edith F. Kyrk.

Edith F. Kyrk, brief notice of whose death appeared in last week's Review, passed away, after a short illness, at her home, 900 East Rockdale avenue, Cincinnati, O., Tuesday, March 21, 1922.

The deceased was born in Cincinnati of Scotch-Irish parentage, October 20, 1870. She started in the trade at the age of 16 years in the employ of the late Frank Huntsman, learning her trade from her only brother, who was designer there at that time. About eighteen years ago she opened a place of her own at 3446 Reading road, Avondale, continuing in the same stand until her death. She is survived by a brother, Louis H. Kyrk, the well known wholesale florist, and a sister, Mrs. John Reid.

Miss Kyrk was a life member of the Ladies' S. A. F., a member of the Ladies' Rotary Club and the Business Women's Club of Cincinnati. The wealth of blooms from admiring friends and fellow florists proved how well she was loved. The funeral was held Friday, March 24, with burial at Spring Grove cemetery.

Albert Sunderbruch paid the following tribute to Miss Kyrk: "The deeds of real valor, of the real heroes in life are, unfortunately, rarely told to the world at large, a world that today can use such stories. In an age when dollars and per cent and scandal form so much of our tattle, what a relief to turn from such topics to testify to the inestimable worth of a good woman who departed this life March 21, 1922! Edith F. Kyrk died that day, a plain and simple soul, a good Christian, a true friend and a likable neighbor. She was liberal to those she loved and strong in her defense of the poor, the aged and the weak. She was a lover of nature, too, in all its beauty, a strong and courageous protector of bird and beast, unselfish in spirit and considerate of the welfare of others. Brave at all times under trying conditions, her equal would be hard to find. Although but 50 years of age, we could ill afford to spare her and yet if, by her upright living here below, she has pointed the way to better things, we shall believe that all is not vanity, and bow to the dictates of an unknowable destiny."

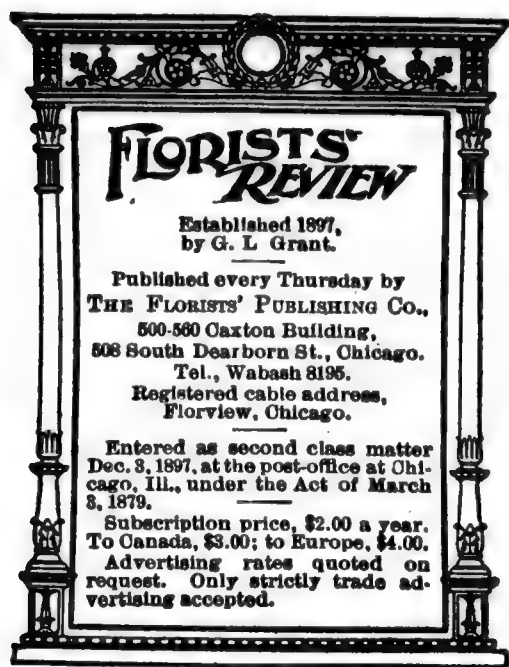

William Hendrickson.

The death is reported this week of William Hendrickson, of Marion, Ill. Mr. Hendrickson died suddenly and Mrs. Hendrickson has not yet decided whether or not she will be able to continue the florists' business in which they were engaged.

Richard M. Saltonstall.

Richard M. Saltonstall, senior member of the well known Boston legal firm of Gaston Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt, died at the Corey Hill hospital, Brookline, Mass., April 16, following an operation for gallstones March 24. He was born at Newton, Mass., sixty-two years ago and was a graduate of Harvard. He was a most enthusiastic horticulturist and at his charming estate, in Chestnut Hill, loved to spend many hours in his gardens and greenhouses. He had been a trustee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for many years and served efficiently as its president for two years. At the time of his death he was a member of the committee on finance and also of the executive committee. He attended the spring exhibition, March 23, and his head gardener staged a fine group of plants on that occasion. The following day he underwent an operation, from which he failed to recover. He was an estimable gentleman, and his death is a distinct loss to horticulture. He is survived by a wife, two sons and one daughter. W. N. C.

Connersville, Ind.—A modern retail flower shop is to be established by C. A. Rieman. This store will be located at 1224 Grand avenue, just south of the Rieman residence and west of the present office at the local greenhouses. The building is already completed, with the exception of the finishing touches, and Mr. Rieman says that he will specialize in cut flowers and potted plants.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

TELEGRAPH orders were many this Easter. Perhaps it was because effort was made to get them.

"SAY IT with Asters" is the slogan of J. Dobberty & Son, Rochester, N. Y. You can guess what their specialty is.

ONE of the most valuable of a business man's assets is his credit. Careful regard for it in times when it seems unimportant often is of great value when conditions are changed.

ANOTHER paraphrase of our slogan is "Say It with a Night Letter," used by the Western Union Telegraph Co., which should have greater regard for the florists and the business they give it.

REDUCTIONS in the prices of boilers have been announced by the American Radiator Co., amounting to twelve and one-half per cent. Prices are now but thirty-three and one-third per cent above pre-war levels.

SOME firms, in this trade as well as others, look upon sales as the measure of success. But, after all, sales are not so important as the profits they bring, and the profits on the books not so important as money in the bank.

REPORTS of Easter business as the "best yet" occur with a frequency that is surprising when one considers the slackness of trade in other lines. With a Mothers' day and Memorial day in keeping with Easter, the trade will enjoy a record spring season.

THE gladiolus incites more of its devotees to become publishers in its behalf than any other flower. One more has entered the field with the Gladiolus Bulletin. Stanley Thorpe, Medway, Mass., is the publisher. The second issue, dated April, contains eight small pages. Its interest is chiefly for amateurs.

IN a booklet sent a florist's customers is the statement that 100,000,000 roses are sold in the United States every year and the price paid for them amounts to $6,000,000, while the carnations sold have a value of $4,000,000. The compiler of those data must have figured carnation sales at Mothers' day prices, or else his figures on roses are much too low. Undoubtedly, far more than 100,000,000 roses are sold annually.

LIQUID assets are among the most important a concern has. No business policy ought to be followed that tends to impair them.

THE high profits and wages of post-war days brought many new buyers into flower stores. A fair proportion of these continue their purchases, augmenting the florists' list of customers of former days.

VRATISLAV CESTMYR NEJEDLIK.

Who knows a man named Vratislav Cestmyr Nejedlyk, his present whereabouts or fate? He worked for Otto Schwill & Co., Memphis, some years ago and his relatives have not heard of him since the war. Help The Review quiet their anxiety.

IT WAS A BANNER EASTER.

Aided by the weather man, florists this year had as heavy a holiday business, for the most part, as they have ever enjoyed. The enthusiastic reports coming in from all parts of the country as this issue goes to press show how generally the trade has shared in the success of the occasion. Doubts that arose with a sluggish demand early last week were dispelled as Easter neared. Bright weather the latter part of the week, save in a few localities, impelled the buyers to the flower shops. Saturday was as fair a day of spring as could be wished, except in some places along the Atlantic coast. But these had a bright Sunday, which brought out the buyers who wait to purchase until the holiday itself is upon them. Most florists were as nearly cleaned out as they wished to be when they closed their doors.

While the weather man helped at the eleventh hour, he caused many anxious moments earlier. The warm weather had brought on much bulbous stock somewhat more rapidly than was desirable, and many pots and pans of tulips were inclined to be "leggy," if, indeed, the blooms did not keel over. This was the more to be regretted since this class of stock, moderate in price, was what was most wanted. The public showed itself disinclined to pay high prices; and there are, here and there, rose bushes and other plants of extra fine quality that lacked buyers. The cloudy weather handicapped the sweet pea growers in some localities—a misfortune to them, for this was the flower most wanted for corsages to adorn the promenaders.

The worst misfortune of the season, however, was the lack of stem on the lilies. Few stately specimens were to be seen, and they commanded good prices. In largest numbers were plants with blooms not much above the covers on the pots. There were, happily, many buyers who believed that only a lily was appropriate to the day; so the short lilies were sold.

Hydrangeas of the French varieties were numerous and excellent. These and rose bushes furnished the holiday's leaders in point of quality. There was a wide variety of other plants, as well.

Available cut flowers were sold easily and quickly, especially if not too high prices were asked. Most stores had empty iceboxes when they closed Sunday and buyers were in the markets strong Monday morning.

The trade may congratulate itself on its Easter sales. The dullness of other businesses was notably absent from ours on this occasion. If we will put forth the effort necessary to duplicate our success at Mothers' day and Memorial day, the trade's spring record will be a notable one. And, after selling the flowers, let us not forget to collect our money for them without undue delay. It is not the stock which goes out, but the money which comes in that really counts.

BUSINESS COMING BACK.

Many florists have noted that certain classes of customers are buying flowers more freely than they have for a long time. Rich people, who reduced their purchases during the silk shirt era, have resumed their customary mode of living. People with fixed incomes have more money for the things not indispensable. And, of course, people are "getting used" to the prevailing conditions. One of the concerns which sell business advice summed it up as follows in a recent bulletin:

"One important difference between the summers of 1921 and 1922 will be in the attitude of people's minds. Last summer there was a sense of worry and fear in the air that made people refrain from even ordinary purchases. There was also a feeling, born of falling commodity prices, that prices were on the down grade and the longer one waited the cheaper things would be. This caused existing purchasing power to be held in abeyance.

"This year there is a feeling of greater confidence that the worst is over and this will go to offset the diminished incomes of most of the people. Summer resorts and businesses that draw their chief support from the patronage of the wage-earning classes will feel the effects of reduced wages, part-time schedules and unemployment. Those patronized chiefly by the higher salaried, professional and wealthier classes will probably find business rather better than last year. The purchasing power of people with relatively fixed incomes is greater."

That must mean the florists' business will continue to improve.

PROMPT RESPONSE.

It never ceases to be a matter of surprise to advertisers that they receive replies to advertisements by the same mail or even before the one in which they receive their copy of The Review containing the advertisement. The matter of fact is that delivery service in some places is much better than in others. Those who get the paper quickly have a decided advantage when it comes to obtaining stock that is scarce; they have the opportunity to write or wire before the man who is on a poorly served rural delivery route has received his paper. The results frequently are like this:

I am pleased to write you that in this morning's mail, together with my copy of The Review, were two orders with cash, one from Indiana and one from Illinois. This is astonishing, considering that I did not get my copy of the paper until this morning. I am on a rural route. Charles H. Sterner, Monmouth, Ill., April 17, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BOSTON.

The Easter Market.

Favorable weather prevailed during the week before Easter, with the exception of April 15, when a cold rain fell practically all day, depressing business somewhat at both the wholesale markets and retail stores. Good Friday perfect weather prevailed and, with an absence of frost and snow, the delivery of plants was much simplified.

The consensus seems to be that Boston never had a better Easter trade. Prices were good and demand remarkably strong. There was some surplus in a few lines, but nothing serious. It was essentially a plant holiday, as it is increasingly each year, and growers of plants were all practically sold out in advance. Lilies were sold out completely and not a pot was obtainable the evening of April 15; far more could have been sold. The quality was not so good as in some previous years, a great part of the plants being dwarf, and a good many showed signs of disease. The average wholesale price was 25 cents per bud. Some candidums appeared at the retail stores and were eagerly bought.

Roses were never seen in greater quantity or in wider variety. Pink was the best selling color and Tausendschoen was the leader, with Dorothy Perkins next in favor. Scarlets did not take so well; neither did whites. There was some surplus of roses at the retail stores.

French hydrangeas displaced azaleas; the latter appeared only occasionally. Never were finer hydrangeas seen. The blues and pinks were in great request and immense numbers were sold. Whites moved more sluggishly. There were only small lots of calceolarias and cinerarias, but some fine bulbous stock appeared. Darwin tulips, like Bartigon, showed up well and the double pink Murillo seemed to find favor. There were fewer hyacinths and narcissi than usual; the intense heat April 10 and 11 spoiled a good many. There were fewer genistas, ericas, acacias and bougainvilleas than usual, owing to the late date of Easter. A considerable number of small scarlet and pink geraniums were sold. For foliage plants there was not much call. All in all, it was a fine plant Easter, but there was a lack of the flowering forced shrubs seen when the holiday comes earlier, there being few prunus, malus, deutzias, lilacs and similar stock.

Coming to cut flowers, everything went well until April 15, when stock began to pile up overwhelmingly. Had the day been pleasant, there would have been a complete clean-up, but persistent rain crippled trade and forced prices downwards. Roses cleaned up well. Columbia, Ophelia, Pilgrim and Premier sold during the week at $6 per hundred for 9-inch, up to $18 to $20 per hundred. Crusader and Hadley made from $10 to $25 per hundred, the latter for 18-inch stock. Ward sold well, 9-inch bringing $10 per hundred and 15-inch double this price. Whites did not sell quite so well as colored varieties. There were plenty of American Beauties at 75 cents to $1 each. Among the hybrid teas a limited number only sold above prices quoted, medium length of stems being mostly wanted.

Carnations had a good week; pink varieties sold at $8 to $10, while Laddie, Rosalia and Maine Sunshine were higher-priced. Whites sold at $6 to $8 per hundred. All good, fresh stock made satisfactory prices, but on the last day the usual big arrivals of pickled flowers and carried-over stock forced values down to $4 to $6 per hundred, some being sold even lower. No violets appeared in the market, but there were pansies galore. The best made $2.50 per hundred. For others any old price was accepted. In spite of large arrivals of sweet peas, there were not enough to go around. Select flowers easily made $5 per hundred, and $6 would have been willingly paid on the afternoon of April 15, but good flowers were then unobtainable. There was a regular avalanche of bulbous flowers, mainly narcissi, and these sold at $4 to $6 per hundred. Even King Alfred could not rise above the $6 mark, and a good number of Victorias sold as low as $2 per hundred.

There were a considerable number of cut Easter lilies, but no one seemed to want them, while there was a famine in pot lilies. Callas were abundant at $2 to $4 per dozen. Calendulas and yellow marguerites showed little change in price. Snapdragons appeared in unwieldy numbers, being now in heavy crop, and, while a great many sold at $2 per dozen and some for more, great quantities were wasted. There were a few gladioli, Blushing Bride and America; small lots of hardy larkspur at $5 to $6 per dozen and some gypsophila, bachelor's buttons and other miscellaneous flowers.

Cattleyas were in demand and decidedly scarce; Schroederae made $12 per dozen and Mossiae $18 per dozen. There was a fine supply of gardenias and plenty of valley. Asparagus sold quite well.

The market April 17 showed the influence of the carried-over stock and was inclined to be sluggish. Values showed considerable declines, owing to a rather weak demand and a good supply, due to the brighter, warmer weather.

Various Notes.

At the funeral of M. H. Walsh, the noted rose hybridist, April 11, there was a large attendance and floral tributes were indeed numerous. Some of his rose introductions were particularly noteworthy. Funeral services were held in St. Joseph's church and interment was in Falmouth cemetery. Mr. Walsh was born in Wales and of his six children, all of whom survive him, Edward and Henry will continue the rose business. John resides in Quincy. The fourth son, Joseph, is a congressman in Washington from the New Bedford district. Two daughters, Elizabeth and Mary, survive.

I am glad to report Patrick Welch as convalescent after a siege of sickness lasting over six weeks. Mr. Welch's friends, who are legion, have missed his genial face and cordially welcome him back. It is worthy of note that Mr. Welch was farseeing enough to locate at his present stand, when others decried such a move, and his keen judgment was seen when practically every wholesale industry connected with the flower trade speedily trekked after him toward Winthrop square.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Horticultural Club, April 5, the tables were decorated with fifteen varieties of acacias furnished by Thomas Roland. Ormiston Ray, superintendent of cemeteries at Montreal, and a member of the club, spoke interestingly for an hour of his experiences in France during the late war, describing visits paid to the noted horticultural establishments of Lemoine, Vilmorin, Chenault, Sebire and others.

April weather is always fickle and uncertain. April 10 a maximum of 86 degrees was recorded. The following day, at 2 p. m., the temperature, due to an east wind, was down to 46 degrees. The intense heat caused florists considerable anxiety and not a little loss; especially was this true of bulbous material.

Violets were practically a minus quantity this year for Easter. The great heat early in the week effectively cooked them. Charles J. O'Brien, of Jamaica Plain, had 500; the only flowers seen locally.

Mayflowers, or Epigaea repens, from the Plymouth woods made their appearance at the stores last week. The bill to protect this charming little native plant, which was sponsored by Albert C. Burrage and others and was defeated recently by an adverse committee report in the legislature, has been re-presented with slight amendments and it is hoped that it will pass and become law next September.

Many salesmen in the wholesale flower markets who had accounts with the defunct Prudential Trust Co. were made happy April 15 by the receipt of thirty per cent of their claims, making ninety per cent now paid since the institution became insolvent, as a direct result of the Ponzi financial gamble.

The retail stores did not seem to be visibly affected even by the damp, cheerless weather April 15. All seemed to be crowded and doing a tremendous business. Penn's, as usual, had the greatest crowd, but the Houghton-Gorney Co., Galvin's, Inc., T. F. Galvin and other leading retailers were busy. Perfect weather Easter day, with cloudless skies, facilitated the making of late deliveries.

Fred Holbrow, of Dorchester, brought in some America gladioli, the first of the season, April 15. J. M. Cohen handled a fine shipment of delphiniums the same day. W. N. C.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

As usually happens in these modern times, the Easter business was not without its disappointments, but, on the whole, those who gain their livelihood in the Chicago market have abundant reason to be satisfied, and so express themselves.

The chief difficulty lay in the weather and its effect on supply and demand in the early part of the week preceding Easter. For weeks the weather was cold, and dark, and rainy. In the early part of the week before Easter the market was crowded with flowers, for which there was little demand. A great deal of the stock was of a character making it risky to ship, and, with dripping skies, the local outlet was decidedly limited. The result was that much stock was lost or sold quite cheaply just before the holiday, during three of the days which were counted in making up the average returns for the Easter week. By the middle of the week the shipping demand was absorbing all the good flowers that came to market, there was an occasional glimpse of the sun and everything brightened up. For three days the market did as big a business as ever in its history, probably a little more than ever before. There may be exceptions, but during the three days immediately preceding Easter the supply was well proportioned to the demand and the market was kept as clean as could be expected in view of the tremendous quantity of stock that was handled. At the same time, no one who was willing to pay reasonable prices was compelled to go without flowers. It was even possible to supply a few lilies right up to the last minute. Roses, which constituted the bulk of the staple supply, were well cleaned up at quoted prices for anything that had the requisite quality and in most of the houses carnations sold clean at quoted prices. There were large quantities of bulbous stock and these moved freely, but there were enough jonquils so that realizing a profitable price for the growers presented something of a problem for the wholesalers.

During the height of the shipping it was apparent that the bulk of the orders had been booked at distinctly moderate prices. Buyers for wholesale houses were scouring the market for roses at not more than 12 cents; they could get all they needed at 20 cents and up, but had difficulty in finding all the flowers required at the lower prices.

There proved to be rather more Easter lilies than had been expected. This was especially true in pot plants, all the local retailers finding something in proportion to the character of their demand; there were good, tall lilies for the high-class stores and quantities of short stock for the popular-price specialties. The demand for cut lilies was largely from out of town. The supply was concentrated in a few houses and the price was held firmly at 25 cents for the best grade and scarcely anything, even the shortest, sold for less than 18 cents per flower. The longest lilies sold best. There were, as usual, some late arrivals that did not clear. There were enough Easter lilies so that callas were not in request and many of these were carried over.

Southern lilac came just in time to help the Easter supply. Valley, which had been accumulating, turned scarce and some old stock had to be picked over and used because there was no other. Violets were in light supply, as they have been all season, but they were not in strong demand, because of the enormous quantities of sweet peas. The supply of sweet peas exceeded anything ever known in this market, in spite of the fact that the weather was not of the suitable kind for this crop. Peas were sold at all kinds of prices, but the strictly first-class stock brought excellent figures and all good peas that were received in time were cleared; more could have been used Saturday and early Sunday morning.

Mention The Review when you write.

The local retailers had been of the opinion that the supply of stock would exceed the demand and in a large number of cases they had placed no orders in advance, relying on finding what they wanted after the shipping orders had been filled. Continued cool weather and the large volume of out-of-town business frustrated their plans for getting their stock cheaply. They came into the market in large numbers April 15 and bought heavily. It was possible for them to find, in one house or another, pretty nearly everything they wanted, but in most cases the supply was so small that the seller could see no reason for

Who Gets Credit for a Funeral?

Well, who wants credit for a funeral?

Funerals, Holidays and Weddings make too large a percentage of the florist's business. These are automatic, self-selling sales, for which he deserves little credit.

His salesmanship is measured by the remainder—sales which he actually digs up. Our use of Flowers, in this country, per capita, is far below that of older and European communities. It is very far away from the saturation point. You can double your sales by hunting for business. If you do, you double ours.

charging less than he had obtained on his shipping orders, though, on the other hand, there was no reason for shoving up the prices.

The market was well cleaned up Saturday night, but most of the houses were open half a day Sunday, and the arrivals of stock that day exceeded expectations. There was a large business early in the day, but flowers continued to pour into the market and toward mid-morning prices began to weaken; by noon no reasonable offer was refused. When at length the wholesalers closed their doors, about 1 p. m., it still would have been possible for them to supply practically anything except valley, but they were happy though tired, as they had the satisfaction of knowing they had done a splendid business, had supplied an excellent quality of stock at moderate prices and reports showed the retailers were doing well with their purchases, which meant few kicks and prompt collections.

The day after Easter the market was heavily supplied with flowers of all kinds, except valley, which was unobtainable, and the demand was small; retailers had cleaned out well, but anticipated little business for two or three days and bought lightly. Prices were easy.

Easter at Retail.

The weather man did the trade an inestimable service by driving away the clouds April 15 and giving us a bright, warm, though windy, Easter day. April 14 there was almost continuous rain and the retailers became apprehensive, though they had booked a fair number of advance orders. With bright skies Saturday, practically all the retail stores enjoyed the greatest rush in history. Most of them sold practically everything they had, or at least as much as could be sold with the limited time, space and number of salespeople. Unfortunately, the retail outlet for flowers cannot expand indefinitely at a moment's notice. Sunday morning most of the stores enjoyed a splendid call for corsage flowers. Most of them closed quite early in the day, for no other reason than that they were sold out. Some of the stores had plants left on hand, but not more than would be expected in view of the large quantity bought and the brief time in which they had to be sold. In only a few cases was anything of moderate price left over. Some poor stock, in lilies, hyacinths, etc., failed to find a purchaser, but nearly all the good-quality, low-priced plants cleaned out quickly, leaving only the larger and more expensive specimens, especially roses.

On the whole, the retailers say the Easter trade was at least as good as ever before, and many of them aver that it was the best ever.

Various Notes.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., whose lease at 70 and 72 East Randolph street expires April 30, has obtained temporary quarters. The cut flower department will be located for a while in the basement at 66 and 68, the supply department remaining on the second floor at that address. The workroom and storage department, now on one of the upper floors at 70 and 72, will be provided for a few doors away, on River street. It is the talk of the street that the Poehlmann company soon will announce the acquisition of a permanent home in the heart of the market district.

A meeting of the creditors of the John C. Moninger Co. was held April 18, at which time it was decided to organize a committee to carry on the business. Details will be found in another column.

One of the week's financial news items of special interest in the trade was the merger of the Oak Park Trust & Savings bank and the State Bank of Oak Park, the latter being the institution of which E. C. Amling was president for several years prior to his removal to California, and of which C. J. Michelsen became a director at the last annual election. The merger deal, a $400,000 transaction, is reported to have been the result of Mr. Michelsen's initiative. The merged bank will occupy a new building, on the site of the Amling bank and Schneider's flower store, which is next door.

N. J. Wietor says that his firm cut more roses last week than in any other six days in the history of the establishment. They were cleaned out when the store closed April 15.

Mrs. John Reding, wife of the Wilmette grower, has returned home from a stay of nearly a month in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. Mrs. Reding is much improved in health and able to be about the house.

Henry Van Gelder had a difficult Easter, as he was suffering with an infection of one of his elbows, which made every movement painful. It is improving now. Mr. Van Gelder says more sales were made than at any other Easter, though the average size was somewhat below that of recent years.

Ernie Anderson, right-hand man for C. L. Washburn, is resting up after Easter, doing jury service in Judge Olson's court.

George C. Weiland is preparing to "doll up" his Evanston store. The old icebox is being moved into the workroom for storage purposes and a new 16-foot box is being built by Buchbinder Bros. Mr. Weiland owns the store he occupies, and it is said in Evanston the property has doubled in value in the last three years.

There were no peonies for Easter. The Gould Nursery had expected to ship at least 1,000 bunches from its new farm in Mississippi, but the crop proved a failure. Not more than three or four crates will be shipped this year and none were ready for Easter. The crop at Halls, Tenn., seems in perfect condition up to this date. In spite of the backward spring, it should be in good time for Mothers' day.

them a nice supply of pot plants for Easter, and one side of the store looked like the Garfield park conservatory, with its showing of lilies and roses. All the plants received early enough sold quickly.

Wendland & Keimel Co. counted last week's hail breakage as 1,485 lights. It is the company's first hail loss in the fourteen years since the range was started.

W. G. Peacock, head of the supplies department of the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., was in Chicago this week. He reports that the florists of Toronto and vicinity, and he believes of all Canada, had the best Easter they have ever enjoyed. The Dale Estate, with a glass area of nearly two million feet, is the principal source of cut flower supply of florists north of the border. All lilies were sold early, and other stock was cleared out almost as expeditiously. The supplies department, established on a pretentious scale only a year ago, has enjoyed the patronage of the company's cut flower customers to such a degree that Mr. Peacock is arranging for additional sources of material.

Promenaders along Sheridan road on Easter day created a heavy demand for sweet peas. By afternoon a large supply of these flowers had followed the rest of the stock across the counter at the Boyar Flower Shop, at 5004 Sheridan road, and nothing but ferns and prepared grasses decorated the store.

record, the wholesale business being especially good. He noted an increase in the number of retail sales, with some reduction in their average size.

A. Henderson says April 15 was the biggest retail day in the history of Henderson's Seed Store.

A. Hall was fortunate enough to obtain an extra store space in the Sheridan-Plaza hotel, at Wilson avenue and Sheridan road, for the week preceding Easter. In this he displayed a large stock of blooming plants, all of which was cleaned out by Saturday night.

W. J. Smyth and wife are planning a summer automobile tour of the Yellowstone. Mr. Smyth has not decided whether to use the big Pierce-Arrow which has given him such excellent service for 65,000 miles or to buy a light enclosed car for the trip. They expect to start about June 15.

Selling boilers to florists has made Fred Lautenschlager a horticulturist by avocation, and so good a one that the neighborhood improvement association of which he was president last year recently reelected him to that office for this season. In that capacity he supervises the planting of shrubs and trees on Alta Vista Terrace, which is one of the prettiest, as well as the shortest, of Chicago's streets.

John Poehlmann is waiting anxiously for a chance to go fishing. A friend has invented a bob that contains a storage battery; when the fish bites a tiny electric light flashes the news to the fisherman. Mr. Poehlmann has the first one turned out by the factory and is impatient to try it. If he reports it works well, the compiler of this column will try substituting a bell for the light.

The warm weather the day before Easter, and his excellent corner location, enabled Harry C. Rowe to catch the eyes of motorists on Sheridan road by means of tables full of bright blooming plants on the sidewalk outside his store. His long frontage on Montrose avenue, on a corner completely open to the south, was a veritable floral sign-

TORONTO, ONT.

Easter Business Big.

All the Toronto florists enjoyed a big Easter trade. A feature of last week was that there was good business every day. Lilies were sold out early Easter Saturday in many of the stores, a price of 35 cents per bloom being the regular charge. There was no objection to the price on the part of the public. While most of the lilies were short-stemmed this year, there were long ones available and good displays of lilies were general. Coupled with them were beautiful, healthy azaleas, spiræas, roses, marguerites, etc. All sold well, as did the cut flowers. There were plentiful supplies of most cut flowers. Roses were available in fair quantities, but more carnations could have been sold.

Telegraph business was good, there being a fair exchange of orders, though the outgoing probably had an edge on the others.

The window and store displays were attractive.

The places of business, stores, etc., were decorated, some of the stores sparing no expense to add to their window displays.

Extra clerks and delivery trucks were necessary both on Thursday, April 13, and Easter Saturday this year. Extra help Saturday was the rule for previous years, the regular clerks and trucks being able to look after orders during the rest of the week.

The florists are to be congratulated on the manner in which stock was delivered this year. Stock was of the best and the retailers generally took the greatest pains in putting on crepe paper

WASHINGTON, D. C.

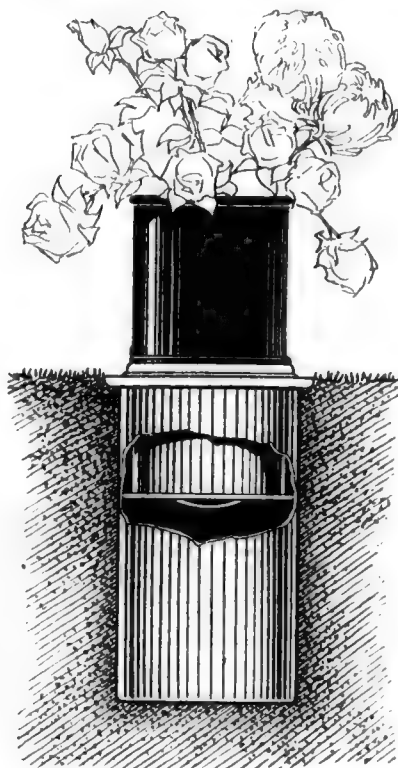

Easter Business.

An excellent Easter business, both as regards sales and prices, is reported by Washington florists. The hot weather immediately preceding the holiday, however, seriously injured much of the Easter stock which was in the hands of the growers, and several of the local producers reported serious losses of lilies from this cause. A feature of the holiday was the volume of business transacted on telegraph orders, Gude Bros. Co. reporting that three clerks were assigned exclusively to the work of handling such business. Other florists also reported many wire orders, both incoming and outgoing.

Everybody sold flowers. Many of the grocery stores, as in former years, put in a stock of lilies; the department stores put in rose bushes and several vacant stores were temporarily converted into flower shops just to handle the Easter business. Some of the established florists also found it advantageous to expand their floor space. Gude Bros. Co. used the vacant store next to their establishment, into which they will soon move, exclusively for the sale of lilies. George C. Shaffer put large stocks of Easter flowers in two vacant stores across the street, and reported that had it not been for this extra space he would not have been able to handle his Easter trade.

Easter baskets ranging in price from $5 to $25, corsage bouquets at from $5 up, orchids, lilies of the valley, American Beauty roses and potted plants moved rapidly, said Mr. Shaffer.

Gude Bros. Co. declared that pink sweet peas and pink roses, which were plentiful, were among the best sellers. All roses, however, moved steadily and at good prices. This firm also reported a surprising demand for lilies of the valley, principally for corsage bouquets. Sufficient violets to supply the demand, which was not heavy, were secured, but the excessive heat of the preceding week had materially injured their quality. Prices were reported to be about the same as those of last year; there was no disinclination on the part of customers to pay the figures asked, and the business as a whole was about equal to that of 1920, which was the high point of post-war prosperity.

According to A. Gude Sons Co., growers and wholesalers, the most popular plant was the hydrangea. Heavy damage to the Easter lily crop resulted from the heat, and lilacs which were forced for the holiday were a total loss. Rose bushes were popular and moved steadily, and there were large quantities of sweet peas, carnations and cut roses available. Hyacinths and other bulbous stock, however, suffered from the heat.

Lilies of the valley had a large call at the store of Z. D. Blackistone. They were used in combination with orchids, roses and sweet peas for corsage purposes, and it was necessary for two men to devote their time exclusively to the making of corsage bouquets for out-of-town orders. The hot weather affected the potted plants, and Mr. Blackistone did not push them because of their inferior quality, but instead concentrated as far as possible on cut flowers.

T. N. S.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It was the worst Easter in fifteen years. The behavior of the weather was simply outrageous. To break heat records when perishable stock is rounding into form is unpardonable.

The conditions were exceedingly queer. The volume is believed to have been as large as ever before, yet the loss of stock was appalling. The heat drove the blooms forward so rapidly that, as fast as they opened and passed, others took their places. Stock that seemed at one time fairly well timed was over before Easter arrived. The loss fell most heavily on the growers of sweet peas; stock that was apparently in good condition when shipped into the market Monday and Tuesday before Easter arrived spoiled and it had to be thrown out.

Worse still, the heat on these days put many sweet pea vines out of commission. Several large sweet pea growers reported that their crops were over. Violets were so badly affected that only those that came in Easter Saturday could be used. Daffodils, which are almost at an end of their season, were sadly softened. Cut lilies of all three sorts, Easter, calla and valley, were badly demoralized. Out of one shipment of 300 callas, one-half had to be thrown out when they arrived. These unusual conditions are given at length to make clear the history of the week.

The market opened badly. Hot weather is not flower weather. There was much stock and few buyers. By comparison prices were lower than at any time since last fall. The out-of-town shipping started Wednesday preceding Easter and increased in volume throughout the following Thursday. While it was, undoubtedly, heavy, it made little impression upon the market and none whatever on the open stock, of which there was so much. The local buying started Friday, April 14. This demand, added to the day's shipping orders, made a really good market for the city's fresh stock. The open stock was apportioned to the cemetery florists and the street merchants, who reaped a harvest. Good stock from Thursday night, April 13, until the market closed Easter Saturday brought good prices; viz., carnations, $8, $10 and $12 per hundred, with Laddie at $15 to $18; sweet peas, $2, $3 and $4 per hundred; lilies, $20 to $25 per hundred; daffodils, $3 to $4 per hundred; valley, $6 to $8 per hundred; orchids, $100 to $200 per hundred; gardenias, $25 to $50 per hundred; Beauties, $100 per hundred; fancy Russell, $35 to $40 per hundred; long roses, $8 to $15 per hundred, and violets, $1 per hundred.

There was a break in the lily market Friday night, April 14, and on the Saturday following a lower level prevailed. Despite this fall, there were many lilies left over in the wholesale houses and in the greenhouses. The surplus of poor plants was large.

The Plant Market.

The plant market suffered less from the heat than the cut flower market, although it, too, suffered. It was fortunate that there were so many hydrangeas and that the water supply held out, the chief plant loss being in the over-ripe lilies, and there were some full-blown roses. Generally speaking, plants sold well, both out of town and locally. Many of the retailers did not do quite so well as usual. They were dull up to Thursday, April 13, and, while fearfully busy from that time until Easter Sunday, the bad start was not overcome. The street merchants fared much better than usual in buying, but had to contend with cold winds Easter Saturday, their banner day. Most of them did pretty well. We hope the thermometer will not rise to between 80 and 90 degrees again before Easter.

Many of our retailers were more than usually successful in selling all their plants. Good judgment in buying, aided by favorable weather, enabled them to avoid carrying any stock over Easter. They think that it was a plant Easter and satisfactory.

City Hall plaza was a scene of great activity Easter evening. An immense lot of stock was offered there for sale and a rushing business was done in left-over blooming plants.

Various Notes.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer changed his steamer, but not his date of sailing. He sailed on the Resolute April 12. He is due here April 19.

Those who saw the exhibit of Lilium multiflorum nobile from Joseph Goetter, of Lansdowne, staged before the Florists' Club April 4, may be interested to know that the London Flower Shop makes a specialty of this lily.

M. Rosen is New England representative of the M. Rice Co.

There was more fine snapdragon than usual in the cut flower market this Easter. Most of it sold; a little was left over.

H. S. Price, of the Joseph G. Neidinger Co., paid a visit to Baltimore just before Easter. Mr. Price was pleased with his reception there.

The April meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in the Finance building Tuesday, April 18.

Pennoek Bros. note a gratifying increase in Easter business, both in plants and cut flowers. Their plant combinations were indeed popular. Most gratifying of all was the support given their French corsage bouquets made up of a few sweet peas, a few rose buds, some heather, forget-me-not, lilies of the valley, etc., daintily combined.

deplored having to use inferior sweet peas, owing to the heat, instead of the beautiful stock he expected. He favored specimen plants, dressed. Mr. Fox considers the sweet pea the leading corsage flower for a late Easter.

Robert A. Craig said he was satisfied that Easter business with the Robert Craig Co. was as good as last year's. Mr. Craig was greatly pleased with the Easter demand and thought that good assortment had much to do with the results. He thinks that it is impossible to grow enough good French hydrangeas at from $1 to $2.50 each. He added that the sale of arecas for decorating had doubled his expectations.

Charles H. Grakelow did a rushing Easter business in both his uptown and downtown stores.

H. B. Cartledge says that the Easter corsage is increasing in popularity.

The Premier Floral Shop disposed of an immense quantity of hamper plants. The firm had nothing left.

Harvey N. Jones said that J. J. Habermehl's Sons had done fully as much decorating in the churches as in any previous year at Easter. There was a good demand for plant combinations and for corsage bouquets.

At the Bellevue-Stratford Flower Shop large bunches of pansies in one color made an effective corsage bunch, purple being especially rich.

Frank X. Alter said that the Charles F. Krueger Co. had a fine Easter at the Reading terminal flower stand, both in plants and flowers. Mr. Alter missed the violets and daffodils.

Robert Craig had a busy Easter in Porto Rico, packing and shipping arecas, dracaenas, aspidistras and some cocos to fill up the greenhouses at Norwood Station after Easter.

The Strafford Flower Farm marketed an immense quantity of lilies, both in pots and cut, for Easter.

Martin J. Gannon opened a store on Market street, west of Sixteenth street, for the sale of Easter plants just for the week.

William C. Lynch, manager of the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market, was pleased with the Easter business.

Two outsiders, said to represent a leading drug firm, sold plants in a store next the Garrick theater until Easter evening.

Prohibition has hurt the city hall plant business on Easter eve. People who went to the theater and then to

The Allman Nurseries, at Holmsburg, Pa., have just signed a contract with the Lord & Burnham Co. for two iron-frame greenhouses, each 40x200 feet. These houses will be planted almost entirely to the new snapdragon, Philadelphia Pink, originated by this firm. This variety has been in such demand, having proved successful under trial in many parts of the country, that the Allmans are increasing their planting in order to meet the calls for seed and for flowers. When the two new houses are erected, the heating system will be changed to steam, a tubular boiler will be installed and other necessary changes will be made.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Easter Market.

Easter Sunday dawned bright and warm. It had been preceded by several good days, although Easter Saturday was marred by a fine, drizzling rain. This, however, did not deter the crowds of buyers of plants and flowers, and reports from everywhere indicated one of the biggest Easter businesses ever experienced. While Easter lilies were not up to standard, there was a big demand and the short-stemmed plants sold as readily as taller ones have in previous years. They retailed at 35 to 60 cents per bloom.

Potted bulbous stock was on the market galore. Every department store had aisle after aisle of special counters of them, every drug store and corner grocery had great quantities and the florists had stocks that exceeded anything ever before seen. Prices were reasonable, ranging from pots with single bulbs of hyacinths to large pans containing a dozen bulbs.

In cut flowers violets were practically eliminated, only a few that were the final cut of the local growers or imported from Boston, New York or Philadelphia being offered, and these were at prices that were almost prohibitive. Sweet peas ran considerably short of the demand, but there was a better call for orchids than is usually the case in the Providence trade. Roses and carnations were plentiful and fine, while marguerites, mignonette, calendulas, pansies, wallflowers, snapdragons and valley moved steadily and actively.

Thousands of rambler roses in pots and tubs sold readily, though spiræas and pleton, at the Westminster Greenhouses.

"It was some week!"

"I never before had such a cut of roses from my houses as in the last week," said Joseph Koppelman, "but I could have used several times as much stock as I did, if I could have got it."

Lawrence Hay, at East Providence, had one of the finest stocks of bulbous plants seen anywhere and his houses looked pretty bare when the rush was over.

The pans of daffodils put out by Swan Peterson, of East Providence, were wonders and commanded good prices. His other stock was equally good.

T. O'Connor, on Union street, had to shut the doors of his downtown store, so great was the rush, while the greenhouses on Blackstone boulevard were overrun with customers.

Eugene McCarron, on Hope street, had all that he and half a dozen extra helpers could attend to in handling the crowds.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe was somewhat apart from all the other stores, for, in addition to the regular cut and potted stocks, a chance was taken on a great variety of novelties, which they were fortunate in moving at a good margin.

Some of the best potted bulbous stock brought into the city came from E. E. King, of Attleboro, and found ready sale wherever handled.

Smith the Florist, on Washington street, handled several thousand pots and pans of bulbs, besides other plants and cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, has recently added a fine automobile to his shipping department.

William A. Bowers furnished the floral decorations for the forty-fourth annual dinner of Redwood lodge of Masons last week.

Max Viller has resigned his position as store manager with Joseph E. Koppelman to devote himself to another line of business.

The Rhode Island Seed Co. has opened a new store, at 85 to 87 Fountain street, with a full line of garden and flower seeds.

Mrs. Eliza M. Collamore, widow of Edward J. Collamore, for many years a florist of this city, died Thursday, April 13, in her ninety-second year.

J. E. Koppelman has just added a handsome automobile to his shipping department.

An automobile belonging to Johnston Bros., of Dorrance street, caught fire while making Easter deliveries Good Friday, but the fire was extinguished before the machine was much damaged. Several hundred dollars' worth of plants were damaged, however. W. H. M.

WILL GO TO ROME.

A number of officials of the Department of Agriculture have been named as members of the American delegation which will attend the general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture, at Rome, next month. Among the members of the delegation are Dr. Parley Spaulding, pathologist of the Bureau of Plant Industry; Nat C. Murray, chief statistician of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates; L. C. Gray, economist of the Office of Farm Management and Farm Economics; E. A. Foley, agricultural commissioner stationed at London for the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, and Louis G. Michaels, consulting specialist of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates.

The International Institute of Agriculture, which was established in Rome in 1905, numbers forty countries in its membership. T. N. S.

Westerly, B. I.—The employees of the greenhouses of George L. Stillman, on Newton avenue, gave William E. Spear, foreman, a surprise party Friday afternoon, April 14, in honor of his sixtieth birthday. When Mr. Spear returned from an errand downtown he was invited into the main office, where a table had been set with a large birthday cake, bearing sixty lighted candles gracing the center. Refreshments were served, and the cake was cut and served to all those present. Mr. Spear has been in the employ of G. L. Stillman for the last thirty-eight years.

ROGERS HEATING CO., Ransomville, N. Y.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Corvallis, Ore.—A combination of cut flowers and blooming plants was prepared by the Leading Floral Co. for the mayor of this city as a greeting from the mayor of Indianapolis on the occasion of the latter's opening the fifth national flower show recently. The result was plenty of newspaper publicity as well as the mayor's thanks.

Huntington Beach, Cal.—On checking up his stock of dahlias, Joseph Vavra, proprietor of the Huntington Beach Nurseries, finds that the damage caused by the frost and excessive rainfall last winter is so great that he will not issue a complete catalogue for the season of 1922. Though there are ample quantities of a considerable number of varieties to fill all orders, the stock is so broken up that any list would be incomplete.

WARD'S PURCHASE.

David S. Ward, president of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., who recently purchased the land belonging to the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, at Eureka, Cal., has purchased all of the nursery stock and other personal property of the latter firm from the receiver. The purchase was made on behalf of the Cottage Gardens Co., of Queens, N. Y., and the property will be run as a western branch of this concern.

W. B. Clarke, who was the sales manager for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries from the time the firm first put stock on the market until he started in business for himself as a broker in bulbs and nursery stock, at San Jose, Cal., has concluded arrangements with Mr. Ward whereby the former will have the entire and exclusive sale of the output of the western branch for the whole of the United States and Canada. Sales will be handled only through Mr. Clarke's office at San Jose. Those who are acquainted with Mr. Clarke and are aware of his extensive knowledge of the trade along the Pacific coast, will appreciate being able to correspond with him direct and obtain all particulars, at first hand, of the great collection of stock at Eureka and elsewhere. All through the history of the above firm, its triumphs and vicissitudes, Mr. Clarke stuck, combing the country from north to south at regular intervals and keeping closely in touch with all that went on. He has the confidence of everyone, big and little, in the trade and well deserves it, for there is not a man on the coast today that has a keener and more up-to-date knowledge of all connected with the trade than he.

VISIT TO ARMACOST'S.

Discloses Much of Interest.

A call at the place of Walter Armacost & Co., Sawtelle, Cal., showed the Easter stock in all lines timed to the minute and in such quantities that, apparently, the firm's customers did not suffer from want of stock this year.

Easter lilies were in especially good condition. About 30,000 bulbs were planted, some singly, some several in a pot or pan, and before Easter it looked as if at least seventy-five per cent of them would "make the grade" for the holiday. The stock was ideal for shipping, not too tall, yet vigorous and well flowered, averaging three to four flowers to the stem. Giganteum is the only variety of lilies grown for Easter sales, formosum all being cut out before the holiday.

Many thousands of Erica persoluta alba were ready for the market, the plants varying in size from small stock for filling in baskets to quite nice specimens in 6-inch pots. Every one was perfectly grown, healthy and full of flower. Hydrangeas are grown in large numbers, the old otaksa being apparently still in high favor here. The plants are mostly made up from small stock; consequently dwarf specimens, with large, prize individual trusses, result. Both in color of flower and foliage the plants were perfect and there were large numbers of them ready in time.

Worthy of Pride.

The rose houses have been mentioned so often that it is hardly necessary to say they are in perfect shape. The new range, consisting of sixteen houses, each 30x300 feet, is in full crop and a finer lot of roses was never seen in or out of southern California. Standing at one end and looking through the great range is like looking over an immense field, while, getting down to details, every plant is perfect and is contributing its part to the wonderful crop and splendid display. Mr. Armacost may well be proud of his achievement here.

As soon as Easter is over the shipping of young cyclamen stock com-

AFTER EASTER

Spring and summer business gets better every year.

We used to turn out the fires in the Greenhouses after Easter and never start them again until October.

Everything is changed since that time. There is lots of business to be done if stock is nice and prices moderate.

Roses are in heavy crop. We expect to have plenty of good stock for Mothers' Day, Decoration Day and right through June. Let us anticipate these special days and advertise and prepare for them.

For the grower we have young Rose Stock and Cyclamen Plants.

We have the largest stock, and can quote better prices on Baskets and Supplies than any Wholesale house in the West.

mences, and there are about 100,000 plants now in all stages, from 2-inch up to 4-inch, ready for the rush. Growers at a distance who do not wish to pay the high express rates on finished plants and yet have their houses full up to Easter depend upon Sawtelle to supply them with stock to grow on for Christmas sales. In order to space this immense number of plants properly and prevent crowding, some of the rose houses had to be cleared, but the rule here is to go to any length to give the customer what he wants; so out the roses had to go, benches were built for cyclamens and—there you are.

The orchids are now all practically in their new quarters, two new houses being built especially for them. Two more are being built and will be roofed in after Easter. Under the hands of a most skillful grower, the plants are rapidly rounding out into one of the best trade collections in the state. The majority of the stock is of the labiate variety of cattleya; some good Mossiae is in bloom. A considerable batch of Cattleya Skinneri was also in flower, as well as a number of phalaenopsis, for which a special house has been set aside. These are only a few of the outstanding features of a wonderful place, noted on a more or less hurried visit. H. R. R.

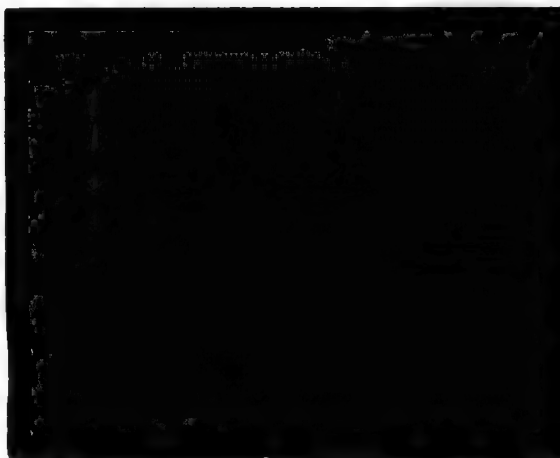

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Writing a few days before Easter, there seems every reason to believe that the business will be good. There is plenty of stock of all kinds and the weather is cool and favorable for long-distance shipping. At the wholesale houses there is the usual bustle before the holiday, while the retailers are making a fine display in their windows. Easter lilies, both cut and in pots, are plentiful and of better quality than usual. Daffodils are scarce and bring high prices. Local tulips were a little on the short side, but a good many were shipped in from the north, thus easing the market, although all brought good prices. Roses are at their best and practically all the growers are in with Plumosus is scarce, the plants not yet having gotten over the effects of the frost. J. C. Hansen and V. Rito are now in partnership at Sawtelle, growing stock for the market. Winter asters have been one of their lines and, in spite of the unfavorable season, some fairly good-stemmed stock has been sent in, although most of it is short. Linaria is also well grown by them, and Mr. Hansen is at the American Florists' Exchange daily.

The Market.

Growers brought in their stock in good season for Easter sales. Business was good and the market was cleaned up well every day, though stock was plentiful and in sufficient quantities to take care of all orders. Easter lilies were plentiful. In many cases the stems were shorter than they were last year, but the blooms were good. The market was flooded with Darwin tulips and there were plenty of roses for all demands. Good carnations were somewhat scarce, but more of them will soon be in. Violets are still good and plentiful, but they are slightly softer than they were. Iris is increasing in quantity. A good deal of the purple wild iris is being picked for the market. California poppies were also plentiful. Anemones and ranunculi were being cut, but they were not plentiful, especially the former. Among the potted plants are azaleas, rhododendrons, a wealth of rambler, Dorothy Perkins and other potted roses and primulas of various kinds. Orchids are still somewhat scarce.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Early Easter shipments were the chief factor in recent trade developments, with growers noting some increase as the Lenten season drew to a close. It was noticed that all of the retailers began their display of Easter lilies early this year.

Snapdragons will be the next outdoor offering on the market and several growers have stock which is almost ready to cut. The first shipment of California irises proved a trade novelty, but was priced too high to bring about a general demand.

The cut of roses is increasing, but not enough to bring about the slightest weakening of prices. Carnations have been holding back, partly the result of the uncertain weather conditions, with the result that deliveries of first-class stock are cleaned up easily. Greens are in demand and move out readily. Sweet peas clean up easily.

As for potted offerings, ferns are in better demand and the same holds true of cinerarias and geraniums, but the other items are becoming less of a novelty and show an inclination to drag.

Various Notes.

Harvey Barton, of Barton Florist, Yakima, was a recent trade visitor, and attended the last meeting of the Seattle Florists' Association.

Rooted cuttings continue a heavy feature of late sales with Morgan's Flower Shop. There has also been a healthy increase in general sales.

Rosaia Bros. are cutting fine Premier roses, at the greenhouses and will have a large summer crop to handle later on. The lilies coming in are all excellent, but are short-stemmed.

Frank Bell reports that he has about the same acreage set out to snapdragons this year as last, mainly in yellow. From present indications the cutting can start in about another week, or nearly a fortnight ahead of the first 1921 deliveries.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop has enjoyed a decided increase in business on large floral pieces during the last week, as well as a continued call for the medium sizes.

The Bon Marche Flower Shop has handled more business of late, according to Irving Harris, with small potted items among the sales leaders.

Fred Gust entertained P. F. Rosaia and Felix Rosaia at his home at dinner last week, with Thomas Luke, of the Smith Flower Shop, in Portland, as the honored guest. Mr. Luke was on his way home from Victoria, where he attended the northwest district Rotary Club convention.

At the last meeting of the bowling group of the Seattle Florists' Association, a team representing the store men beat the team representing the growers by a decisive score. The winning team was composed of William Desmond, B. E. Hammond, Samuel Dunlap, Carl Melby and J. C. Dressen, while the losers were Lambert Pedersen, Joseph Stuber, John Holze, Henry Hammerlund and William Goldsbary. As in all such cases, the losers have an alibi, claiming that the absence of T. and J. Wylie, two of their high bowlers, really prevented them from carrying off the prizes.

C. A. Shaw, of the Market Flower Shop, of Bellingham, was a recent trade visitor. He states that plans for the coming tulip festival indicate that this year's event will easily surpass anything previously held.

The publicity board of the Seattle Florists' Association met at the home of Harry A. Crouch last week, and made arrangements for the necessary Easter advertising. It was voted that smaller space should be used for this day and funds conserved for a campaign later in the season, when the public would be less inclined to buy stock.

F. W. McBratney, with the B. E. Hammond Co., has returned from a short business trip to Calgary.

Several medium-sized luncheon decorations were handled by Kenney's Home of Flowers. W. D. Desmond advises that general transient business has shown an increase.

Mrs. Eugene Sandahl returned to help the Orpheum Floral Co. out through the Easter holiday rush. Consistent window displays and the featuring of fine stock have kept the sales of potted items up well for this shop.

At the regular April meeting of the Seattle Florists' Association, held at the St. Regis cafe, a number of interesting problems were taken up. Carl Melby was appointed chairman of a committee to work with the better business bureau of the Seattle Advertising Club to see that the city ordinance affecting "temporary merchants" was enforced, so as to prevent unfair competition in lilies with legitimate florists and also to see that the city ordinance prohibiting street peddlers was enforced. Harry Crouch, Felix Rosaia, Eugene Sandahl, Thomas Wylie and P. F. Rosaia were named as a committee to represent the Seattle Florists' Association in meeting the flower committee of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club in the campaign to make this city the "Flower City of America." Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, O. M. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

JOHN CHARLES VAUGHAN, Chicago, was born April 24, 1851.

THE firm of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., now 73 years old, is already preparing to celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary.

THE Rhode Island Seed Co., Providence, R. I., has opened a new store, at 85 to 87 Fountain street. A full line of garden and flower seeds will be carried.

NOTICE has been given creditors of the bankruptcy of Sam Guerrara, 528 St. Phillips street, New Orleans, La. He sold seeds principally to the local truck farmers.

As the result of the hearing obtained by New York state seedsmen before Governor Miller, April 14, Senator Ferris's seed bill, No. 751, was vetoed by the governor, according to Marshall H. Duryea, New York state correspondent of the American Seed Trade Association.

JAMES LAMB, who represented Cooper, Taber & Co., London, England, in this country last year, died in hospital, March 18, from tuberculosis of the throat. Their representative this year will be Harry Simpson, who has been many years in the seed trade and most of them with Cooper, Taber & Co.

WHEN seed of a new variety of any crop is offered to the public, information regarding its origin, method of developing, tests made and results obtained, its soil, climatic and regional adaptation, and the reputation of the originator should be made available to the buyer for consideration in passing judgment on its true value, remarks the weekly issued by the Department of Agriculture.

INSTEAD of having two or three weeks of rush season, the Henry Field Co., Shenandoah, Ia., reports having now had six solid weeks of working to extreme capacity, day and night. "Our big Monday so far," says President Henry Field, "has been 6,153 orders, but we have had six other Mondays almost as big, and they are still coming strong. For instance, last Monday we received 4,040 mail orders, exclusive of wholesale and counter sales, as against 2,155 the same Monday in 1921, 3,253 in 1920, 3,939 in 1919, and 1,925 in 1918. This tells the whole story. Field seeds are running comparatively light, but in spite of that, the average size of the order is large, on account of heavy business in garden seeds and small nursery."

THE thirty-eighth annual meeting of the Western Cannery Association took place at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 14 and 15. Among the seed companies having representation in this association are the J. H. Allen Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis.; A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; E. B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.; the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; J. B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., and Rogers Bros. Seed Co., Chicago. Due to a resolution, passed by the members at the Louisville, Ky., convention in January, that no exhibits be shown except at the national conventions, there were no exhibits of seedsmen at the Chicago meeting. The members of the seed

SEEK TO INDICT PEACOCK.

Bank Shortage Revealed.

Everette R. Peacock, called "the 32-year-old bankrupt champion borrower," was the principal figure in the story that furnished head lines for the Chicago newspapers Tuesday, April 18, and the following morning.

The board of directors of the Milwaukee-Irving State bank, according to a statement made by their counsel, went to the state's attorney's office, at Chicago, Tuesday morning, April 18, to get indictments against Everette R. Peacock, founder and former president of the bank; Albert Sporleder, another former president, and H. W. Anderson, former cashier. Last October the state bank examiner, it transpired, discovered a shortage of $450,000, and October 6 the directors were told that unless the shortage was made good, the bank would not be allowed to open in the morning. They produced $100,000 in cash and the remainder in mortgages and bonds, with the exception of $25,000 on surety bonds, to collect which a suit is now pending. Of the shortage, said the counsel, $293,000 was in checks overdrawn by the Everette R. Peacock Co., the seed firm which went into bankruptcy March 28. An additional $60,000 or $70,000 was in notes given by officers of the company to cover its overdrafts.

In his statement to Assistant State's Attorney Edgar A. Jonas, Tuesday evening, Mr. Peacock voluntarily listed six other banks from which he obtained a total of $155,000. From other banks he had borrowed "small sums," a matter of a few thousand dollars.

The Milwaukee-Irving State bank was organized in 1919 with a capitalization of $100,000. Mr. Peacock was president until January, 1921, when he was succeeded by Albert Sporleder. Confession by the former cashier, H. W. Anderson, placed the state's attorney in possession of statements which he sought to verify by questioning Mr. Peacock.

Money for Seed Concern.

"I organized the Everette R. Peacock Co. for $500,000," said Mr. Peacock, "and most of the money I received from the banks went into it. I obtained something like $300,000 on overdrafts, using the company's paper as security. Then I borrowed some money on personal notes and other security."

He admitted that the company in 1921, on a business of $500,000, made ten per cent profit. According to the state's attorney, he used the company to float a $500,000 stock issue. For this purpose, he is reported to have said he deliberately falsified his bank statement so as to qualify under the blue sky laws.

Mr. Peacock stated he gave as security, besides stock in his seed company, stock in an Oshkosh, Wis., company and in the Automatic Rat Trap Co.

After the inquiry Tuesday evening, Mr. Peacock was allowed to return home on promise to return in the morning. Five other persons were ordered to appear before the state's attorney April 19. They were: Mrs. Peacock, Albert Sporleder, Albert Gascon, secretary of the Everette R. Peacock Co.; A. Setterberg, a former officer of the Peacock Co. and former director of the Milwaukee-Irving bank, and C. J. Nissen, formerly auditor of the Peacock Co.

In The Review of March 30 report was given of the appointment of a receiver for the affairs of the Everette R. Peacock Co., in which eleven banks were interested to the extent of fifty-five per cent of the liabilities of $200,000.

IMPORTS OF GRASS SEED.

There are some striking differences in importations of grass seeds during the nine months ended March 31, 1922, and the three-quarters of the government's fiscal year which ended a year before. These are shown in the figures published by the Department of Agriculture, which are as follows:

Kind of seed.	July 1, 1921- Mar. 31, 1922	July 1, 1920- Mar. 31, 1921

FREE SEEDS IN AGAIN.

An appropriation of $360,000 for free seeds, in the appropriation bill for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, was adopted by the Senate last week after the Senate appropriations committee had omitted this fund from the bill, in accordance with its action in previous years.

The history of the free seed appropriation this year varies somewhat from its usual course, in that the Department of Agriculture omitted the item from its estimates, the House appropriations committee concurred in that step and the item was included in the measure only after sharp debate on the floor of the House. The Senate appropriations committee cut the fund out during its consideration of the bill, only to have it restored in the Senate. appropriation and for the House to approve it, although, of late years, the adoption of this item has become more difficult. The Senate committee would then cut the fund out of the bill and the Senate would omit it in passing the measure and it would then be restored in conference, usually after considerable argument.

The action of the Senate in restoring the item of $360,000 for this purpose assures the distribution of congressional seeds next year.

"Patrician hand-dipped candles," says the booklet, are made in many colors, are "the newest creation in the ancient art of candle-making and are smokeless, odorless and dripless." The illustrations show the candlesticks in many artistic designs.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The cash and carry plan was much in evidence here throughout the Easter rush. The department store competition is giving the florists much food for thought, as cheapness in stock seems to be the first thought of the public. Much of the stock sold by the department stores is exceedingly poor.

Frank Sokol, College street, sold 4,000 geraniums for the Easter trade.

Adshead & Sons have finished planting all of their summer-flowering bulbs and they have a large amount of other stock planted.

The weather was damp April 15, but this did not retard Easter buying.

The Fish Nursery Co. is shipping stock from its Auburn nurseries by the carload.

Belvidere, Ill.—Lyon & Anderson report great Easter business, much of which they attribute to an advertisement run in the local paper about three days before Easter. Business was even better than in 1921, which was considered a record-breaker. Flowers and plants sold for less, but there were more buyers.

Princeton, Ill.—W. E. Trimble reports the largest Easter business on record. His range was in full crop and everything that could be cut by April 15 was sold; although prices did not average so high as in some other years, the total was better. Warm weather Easter day kept the crop coming and since Easter the supply has exceeded the demand.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing to Advertisers

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THOUGH prices are fifteen per cent higher than last year, J. A. Bauer, the strawberry plant specialist of Judsonia, Ark., reports having shipped over 14,000,000 plants since October 10 and expects to reach the 15,000,000 mark.

At this time of year many florists are buying nursery stock for planting on their customers' home grounds. If you have suitable stock to offer, this is the time to make it known, as other nurserymen are doing, through the display and classified columns of The Review.

REPORT appears in the Pacific coast department of this issue of the purchase by the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., of all the nursery stock and other personal property of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, at Eureka, Cal., from the receiver of the latter firm. This announcement also includes the account of the arrangements made by Mr. Ward, president of the Queens concern, with W. B. Clarke, of San José, whereby the latter is to have the exclusive sale of the output of the western branch of this firm for the whole of the United States and Canada.

THE tree planting exercises held in the schools of Cook county, April 7, as part of the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign sponsored by J. A. Young, secretary of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, were a complete success. There were 220 American elm trees planted on 220 school grounds throughout the county on that day, according to Edward J. Tobin, superintendent of schools of Cook county, and an average of 150 people attended the exercises at each school, making the total number of people attending the exercises equal approximately 33,000. A tree count of Cook county will be taken during the month of May.

NURSERY TRADE IN SOUTH.

Spring trade in the southern states seems to have averaged about normal, although around the first of the year the outlook was not bright—or the nurserymen were pessimists.

Early in February Paul C. Lindley, of Pomona, N. C. said: "Our spring business is going to be just what we make it. If everyone stays on his toes, we should line up a good volume." There were some others who felt the same way, and a letter from another firm says: "The season was extremely short, but extremely busy," indicating that at least a comfortable volume of business came in.

Weather conditions in Virginia and the Carolinas were against trade; more snow than usual, cold winds, and disagreeable things in general. In spite of these handicaps, surplus stocks seem to have been cleaned up in good shape and a season that opened up "rotten" has turned out fairly well. E. F. R.

THE HARRISON NURSERIES.

One of the largest fruit tree nurseries in the world and the largest fruit orchard in the United States can be found in the Harrison Nurseries, at Berlin, Md. With his father and brother, George A. Harrison, Senator Orlando Harrison started the nursery and orchard business thirty-five years ago on a small scale. Less than one acre was devoted to the nursery and the orchard covered but a few more acres. The entire farm embraced but 175 acres. Now Senator Harrison, the active head, and his brother operate more than 5,000 acres in nurseries and orchards.

To give an idea of the colossal scale upon which the Harrison Nurseries are conducted, it may be stated that more than 10,000,000 trees are grown each year. This makes the company the largest grower of fruit trees in the world. Of the orchard business, explanation of it is contained in the statement that more than 100,000 bearing trees are contained on the properties near Berlin and that the Harrison Nurseries operate orchards in Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia and western Maryland.

Senator Harrison is specializing in the Norway maple for shade purposes, having found that this tree is most desirable in the eastern states. He made a trip to Holland eight years ago for the selected trees and since that time has imported more than 100,000 trees for sale throughout the United States. Senator Harrison also made a trip to France for the selection of apple seedlings and millions of these have been imported, the nurseries now having orders for more than 4,000,000 in France and the United States.

Senator Harrison has found the planting of vegetables in connection with his orchard highly profitable and is one of the largest vegetable growers in that section of the state. As a means of interesting his sons in the nursery business, Senator Harrison has provided each of them with a farm for their individual operations.

A portrait and some personal notes regarding Senator Harrison appear under the heading, "Who's Who in the Trade and Why," on a forward page of this issue.

ened by the blister rust, a destructive disease of 5-needled pines. This rust was imported from Europe within the last twenty years and has now become widely established in the New England states, New York, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The disease can not spread from tree to tree. It must first pass through a transitional stage on currant or gooseberry leaves before it can infect pine trees. It attacks pines of all ages, quickly killing young trees and seriously damaging old ones, ultimately causing their death. The effect of the blister rust, especially on large trees, is not very apparent until several years after infection takes place, so that pines may become severely infected before the disease is noticed. At the present time native pines are rapidly becoming diseased in the generally infected regions of New England and New York.

Experimental and practical results show that ornamental pines which have already become diseased can be saved by cutting out the infected parts if treatment is applied in time. The work is easily performed at a comparatively low cost. Treatment can be given any time during the year, but the best results will be obtained from April to June, when the cankers are more easily found because of the bright orange-yellow blisters. Successful treatment depends primarily upon the ability to find the cankers and determine accurately the edge of the diseased area. The workmen should be thoroughly familiar with the symptoms and appearance of the disease on pines.

Diseased twigs and branches should be cut off seven or more inches back of the orange-yellow blisters. If no blisters are present they should be cut off five or more inches back of the extreme edge of the canker and flush with the next whorl of healthy branches. Infections on large limbs and trunks can be successfully treated by removing all the diseased bark and a strip at least two inches wide at the sides and four inches at the ends of the apparently healthy bark from around the edge of the canker. Large wounds should be protected from the attacks of other fungi and insects by a covering of shellac and bark-colored paint. Valuable trees should be inspected annually for a few years, limb by limb, and additional inspections are advisable thereafter from time to time.

"Twixt failure and success the point's so fine,
Men sometimes know not when they touch the line.
Just when the pearl is waiting one more plunge,
How many a struggler has thrown up the sponge!
As the tide goes clear out, it comes clear in;
In business 'tis at turns the wisest win.
And oh! how true, when the shades of doubt dismay,
'Tis often darkest just before the day!
A little more persistence, courage, vim!
Success will dawn o'er fortune's golden rim.
Then take this honey for the bitterest cup:
There is no failure, save in giving up,
No real fall as long as one still tries,
For seeming setbacks make the strong man wise.
There's no defeat, in truth, save from within;
Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win."

BAER SHOWS HOW.

It is safe to say that there are thousands of people who know that the florists operate a telegraph delivery service, but many of them do not know how it operates. If they knew the modus operandi, the chances are that there would be more telegraph orders. Perhaps this is what Julius Baer, of Cincinnati, O., had in mind when he distributed in his city, just before Easter, copies of a telegraph order he had received. Above a reproduction of a Western Union telegram, on the typical yellow paper, appeared the following:

Do you know that you can "Say It with Flowers" to relatives and friends in distant cities? I am your telegraph florist and can guarantee delivery of flowers anywhere through my membership in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

Below the reproduction of the telegram was given the firm name, with the telephone numbers and the advice: "You can get the same service over the 'phone that you would receive through a personal call."

EASTER ARRAY AT OGDEN.

On this page appears a view of the front of the Fern Shop No. 1, at Ogden, Utah, at Easter time. The manager, V. G. Gill, started in business in a small way about two years ago, on Twenty-fifth street, handling only plants for some time. He later put in cut flowers and has built up a good business, especially in the plant line. Last fall he opened his second store, on Washington avenue, known as the Fern Shop

No. 2. Mr. Gill is one of Ogden's most progressive florists and will undoubtedly continue to grow.

BOXES OF OUTDOOR FLOWERS.

Seven miles south of Dallas, Tex., on the Hutchins road, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Stuart conduct what is known as Stuart's Flower Farm. Here outdoor flowers are grown and delivered daily by truck to residents of Dallas. While orders for funerals, weddings and parties of any kind are filled, the specialty of Stuart's Flower Farm consists of boxes of "old-fashioned flowers." Three sizes are standard, at $1.25, $2 and $3, though special boxes are made up in addition. In these boxes are such flowers, in season, as violets, pansies, larkspurs, phlox, cornflowers, forget-me-nots, daisies, feverfew, pinks, gladioli, sweet williams, marigolds, zinnias, ageratum, dahlias and lilies.

A folder of Stuart's Flower Farm carries a verse by the "Cheerful Cherub" which will not please greenhouse owners, especially those of Dallas:

Flowers that grow in a greenhouse
Must miss the outdoors' green and blue—
I'm almost as sorry for them as
For animals grown in a zoo.

KEMBLE BUYS ANOTHER.

Ownership of the I. N. Kramer & Son flower store, Cedar Rapids, Ia., which has been operated by the Kramer family for the last thirty-five years, has been transferred to the Kemble Floral Co., operators of a chain of flower stores with home offices at Oskaloosa, Ia. The purchase made by the new firm includes the Kramer greenhouses, at Marion, but arrangements have been made whereby the former owners will remain associated with the firm, although it will be under the personal direction of W. R. Kemble, a member of the new firm.

The Kemble Co., which assumes charge of the Cedar Rapids store, is one of the oldest florists' companies in that section of the state, having been organized by W. E. Kemble in 1870. Stores are operated in Chariton, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, Fort Madison and Centerville. The store at Oskaloosa was the first store owned by the company and W. E. Kemble is still located in that place, although he serves as president of the entire company.

W. R. Kemble, the new manager of the Kramer store, has announced that he will continue the policy which has made the store a success during the thirty-five years that it has been doing business in Cedar Rapids. He, together with his family, will establish a residence in Cedar Rapids in the near future.

ENDORISING SCHOOL GARDENS.

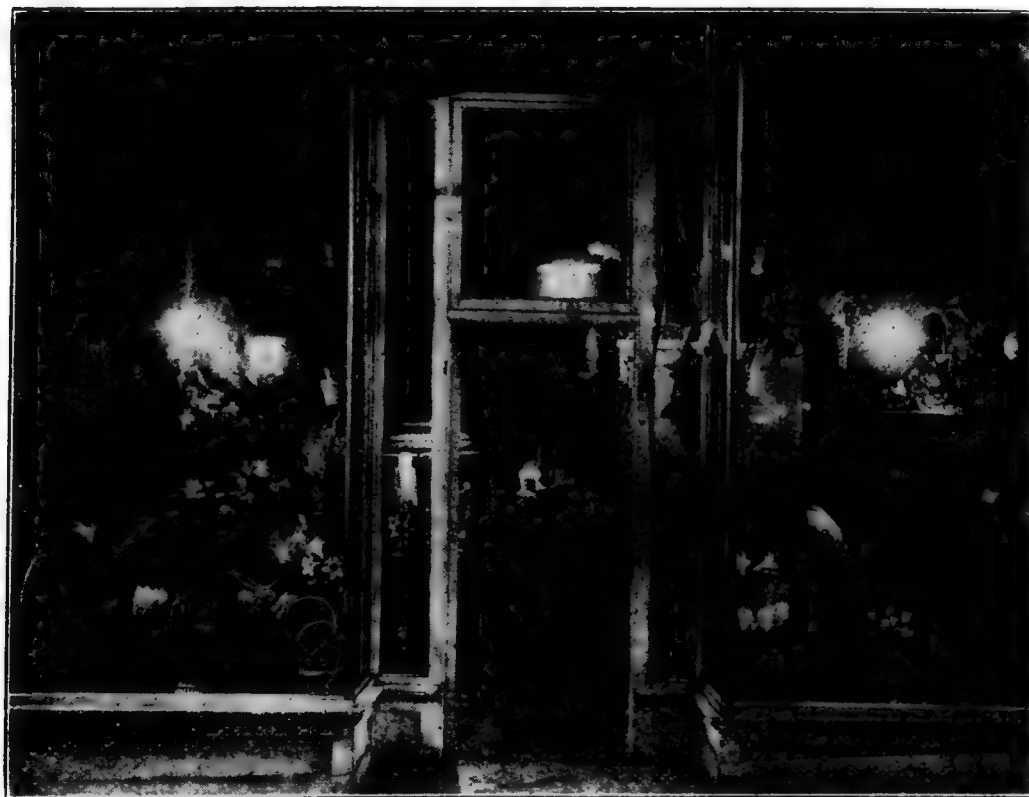

Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., chairman of the school garden committee of the Society of American Florists, has received many letters from presidents of school boards and school superintendents, indicating the willingness of these men to lend him their hearty coöperation in supporting the school garden movement this season. This movement has gained ground rapidly under Mr. Hammond's sponsorship. It represents one of the efforts being put forth by the S. A. F. in educating the public to the value of gardening in various respects. The following letter, from Wesley A. O'Leary, assistant commissioner of education of the state of New Jersey, which came in response to an appeal from Mr. Hammond for the assistance of school trustees in promulgating the movement, indicates the interest which is manifested by educators:

Your poster of school gardening has been referred to me. I am sending you a copy of the school directory of the state. I suggest that you send copies of your literature to the various superintendents of schools and presidents of boards of education mentioned in this booklet.

The letters mailed by Mr. Hammond were accompanied by an illustrated poster, showing attractive school gardens. The following letter, received by Mr. Hammond from F. R. Morey, supervisor of school gardening at Harrisburg, Pa., gives a good idea of how much interest is being taken in the movement:

A copy of your sheet on school gardening, addressed to the commission of education, Harrisburg, Pa., has been referred to me, since it is in my special field of work.

I am employed by the state department of public instruction to promote, supervise and inspect the school garden work in the various cities, towns and villages of the state of Pennsylvania. We have been doing this work since the spring of 1921. Immediately following the war, we found a slight reaction against the children's garden work, but now there is an increased sentiment in favor of it. We are emphasizing especially the educational values, mentioning as well the health and economic values for the children.

I am delighted with your photographic sheet which you have mailed out, because I think it is a splendid effort on the part of American florists. Fifty-two per cent of the people of America live in urban centers. To have them properly interested in flowers and vegetables, they must be able to grow and care for a garden. And to care for a garden they must know how. Such knowledge is available for few unless it is acquired in the school garden.

In promoting this work your society is doing a helpful and worth-while piece of work. I trust it will continue a vigorous campaign for school garden work. If there is anything we can do at any time in aiding this promotional work, do not hesitate to call upon us.

THIS YEAR'S ROSE ANNUAL.

["The American Rose Annual; the 1922 Year-book of Rose Progress," edited for the American Rose Society by J. Horace McFarland. Contains 192 pages of text, besides sixteen pages of inserted sepia illustrations and two color plates. Bound in cloth. Supplied to all members of the society whose dues are paid for the current year. To obtain additional copies or further information, address the secretary, John C. Wister, 608 Finance Building, Philadelphia, Pa.]

This is the seventh in the series of volumes that bear the name, the American Rose Annual. In drawing attention to the merits of the annual, as this reviewer has been trying to draw attention to them from year to year, there is not much danger of exaggerated praise. Feeble commendation would be unfair to the book. But there really is another danger which confronts the reviewer; there is danger of monotony in these repeated expressions of approval, since there is little or no opportunity to relieve the sameness by mixing the praise with blame. A little sharp, unfavorable criticism of the annual might add variety and picturesqueness to these remarks, but the closest scrutiny of the book fails to find any occasion for such criticism. If this book is not the ideal sort of annual or yearbook, it is so nearly ideal as to discourage even the

What I Saw Through the Eyes of a Potato

Happened to be going by Farmer Fendles' potato patch t'other day and drew up to have a chat. He was having a few frank words with his man, which he finished to the finished end, before he as much as said howdy. This is what I overheard:

"In all my twenty years of experience," his man remarked, "no one ever told me to plant potatoes that way."

"Experience?" replied the farmer. "You've never had any experience. All you've had is practice."

"You've just kept right on for 20 years planting potatoes the same way you planted the first one you ever planted."

Then he turned to me and said: "Can you beat it, George? The very reason that fellow is a day laborer is because he has never got anything but practice out of what he's done."

When I drove on, says I to myself, says I, "George, how about you?"

"Are you just practicing or experiencing from your experience?"

The next day I got the boys together and we made some mighty beneficial changes for bettering our F. T. D. methods. Changes that will help you and help us.

In fact, if they didn't help you, they couldn't help us.

captious reviewer in his search for defects.

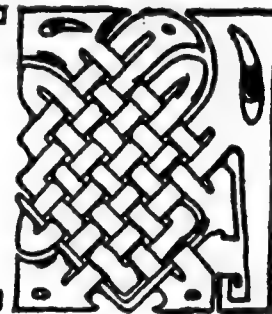

Only a few of the articles in the annual were written purely from the point of view of the trade grower. The book, like the membership of the association it represents, is partly commercial and partly amateur in its character. Yet there is no rashness in saying that most of its chapters were written by experts —either commercial or noncommercial experts. The contents of the book as a whole, also, are of such a nature as to help the amateur grower and the professional grower to see horticultural matters through each other's eyes—a great visual achievement, indeed. By that means each grower obtains valuable enlightenment that would not be available in any other way. Moreover,

This movement has gained ground rapidly under Mr. Hammond's sponsorship. It represents one of the efforts being put forth by the S. A. F. in educating the public to the value of gardening in various respects. The following letter, from Wesley A. O'Leary, assistant commissioner of education of the state of New Jersey, which came in response to an appeal from Mr. Hammond for the assistance of school trustees in promulgating the movement, indicates the interest which is manifested by educators:

Your poster of school gardening has been referred to me. I am sending you a copy of the school directory of the state. I suggest that you send copies of your literature to the various superintendents of schools and presidents of boards of education mentioned in this booklet.

The letters mailed by Mr. Hammond were accompanied by an illustrated poster, showing attractive school gardens. The following letter, received by Mr. Hammond from F. R. Morey, supervisor of school gardening at Harrisburg, Pa., gives a good idea of how much interest is being taken in the movement:

A copy of your sheet on school gardening, addressed to the commission of education, Harrisburg, Pa., has been referred to me, since it is in my special field of work.

I am employed by the state department of public instruction to promote, supervise and inspect the school garden work in the various cities, towns and villages of the state of Pennsylvania. We have been doing this work since the spring of 1921. Immediately following the war, we found a slight reaction against the children's garden work, but now there is an increased sentiment in favor of it. We are emphasizing especially the educational values, mentioning as well the health and economic values for the children.

I am delighted with your photographic sheet which you have mailed out, because I think it is a splendid effort on the part of American florists. Fifty-two per cent of the people of America live in urban centers. To have them properly interested in flowers and vegetables, they must be able to grow and care for a garden. And to care for a garden they must know how. Such knowledge is available for few unless it is acquired in the school garden.

In promoting this work your society is doing a helpful and worth-while piece of work. I trust it will continue a vigorous campaign for school garden work. If there is anything we can do at any time in aiding this promotional work, do not hesitate to call upon us.

THIS YEAR'S ROSE ANNUAL.

["The American Rose Annual: the 1922 Year-book of Rose Progress," edited for the American Rose Society by J. Horace McFarland. Contains 192 pages of text, besides sixteen pages of inserted sepia illustrations and two color plates. Bound in cloth. Supplied to all members of the society whose dues are paid for the current year. To obtain additional copies or further information, address the secretary, John C. Wister, 606 Finance building, Philadelphia, Pa.]

This is the seventh in the series of volumes that bear the name, the American Rose Annual. In drawing attention to the merits of the annual, as this reviewer has been trying to draw attention to them from year to year, there is not much danger of exaggerated praise. Feeble commendation would be unfair to the book. But there really is another danger which confronts the reviewer; there is danger of monotony in these repeated expressions of approval, since there is little or no opportunity to relieve the sameness by mixing the praise with blame. A little sharp, unfavorable criticism of the annual might add variety and picturesqueness to these remarks, but the closest scrutiny of the book fails to find any occasion for such criticism. If this book is not the ideal sort of annual or yearbook, it is so nearly ideal as to discourage even the

Happened to be going by Farmer Fendles' potato patch t'other day and drew up to have a chat.

He was having a few frank words with his man, which he finished to the finished end, before he as much as said howdy. This is what I overheard:

"In all my twenty years of experience," his man remarked, "no one ever told me to plant potatoes that way."

"Experience?" replied the farmer. "You've never had any experience. All you've had is practice."

"You've just kept right on for 20 years planting potatoes the same way you planted the first one you ever planted."

Then he turned to me and said: "Can you beat it, George? The very reason that fellow is a day laborer is because he has never got anything but practice out of what he's done."

When I drove on, says I to myself, says I, "George, how about you?"

"Are you just practicing or experiencing from your experience?"

The next day I got the boys together and we made some mighty beneficial changes for bettering our F. T. D. methods. Changes that will help you and help us.

In fact, if they didn't help you, they couldn't help us.

captious reviewer in his search for defects.

Only a few of the articles in the annual were written purely from the point of view of the trade grower. The book, like the membership of the association it represents, is partly commercial and partly amateur in its character. Yet there is no rashness in saying that most of its chapters were written by experts —either commercial or noncommercial experts. The contents of the book as a whole, also, are of such a nature as to help the amateur grower and the professional grower to see horticultural matters through each other's eyes—a great visual achievement, indeed. By that means each grower obtains valuable enlightenment that would not be available in any other way. Moreover,

Flowers and Giving

"Consider the lilies of the field." How bountifully they bloom, how freely and fully they give of their loveliness and sweetness.

the friendly, semi-social, semi-business intercourse between commercial and amateur growers—the intercourse that results from fellow-membership in such organizations as the American Rose Society—conduces greatly to the same sort of enlightenment. Thus the American Rose Society, aided by the year-book which it supplies to its members, is one of the most successful agencies in securing a clear, sympathetic understanding between the commercial grower and his customers—an understanding that is eminently profitable to all concerned.

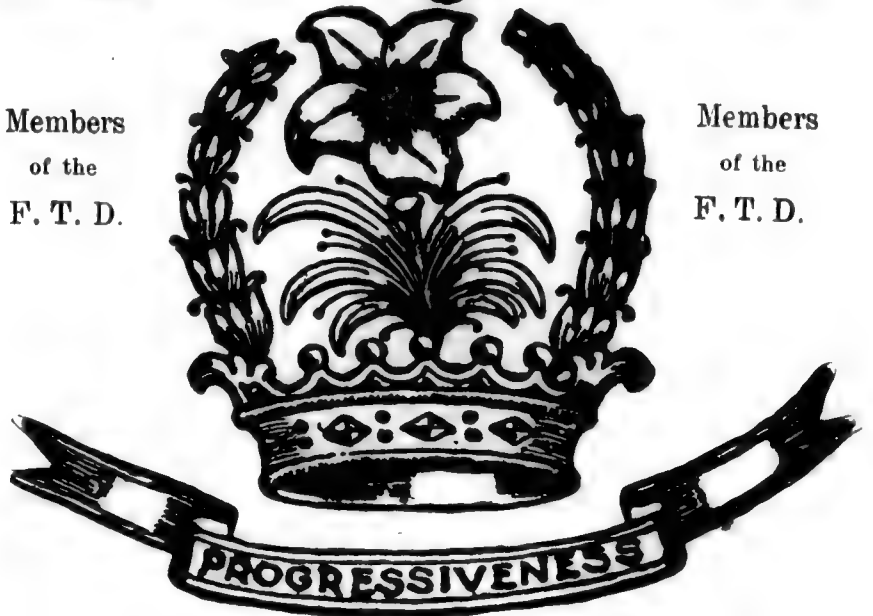

Some of the most interesting and informative chapters in the book were written by Editor McFarland himself. One of his articles is entitled "Why Not Use Roses as Shrubs?" It would be difficult to determine whether that article makes a more direct appeal to the purveyor of shrubs or to the purchaser of them.

Dr. L. M. Massey, plant pathologist at Cornell University, contributes an article on "Black Spot and Mildew of Roses." Professors C. R. Crosby and M. D. Leonard, also of Cornell University, discuss "Insects that Hunt the Rose." Professor P. A. Lehenbauer, of the University of Illinois, treats of "Fertilizing the Soil for Rose Growing." Charles H. Totty tells of "The Rose Cut Flower Outlook for 1922." But to mention all the noteworthy chapters, from the pens of various rose lovers, would simply be to copy most of the table of contents. Let these few more titles suffice: "A Model Backyard Rose Garden," "Can the City Man with a 50-foot Lot Have a Rose Garden?" "Budded and Own-root Roses," "How to Start a Rose Show Anywhere," "Staging a Rose Show,"

ST. LOUIS.

The Easter Market.

Easter business here was top-notch. A heavy rain Good Friday was not all to the liking of the retailers, but, with the sunshine the following Saturday, they made up for Friday, with a rush that kept all busy. Deliveries started Saturday, April 15, and Easter Sunday florists' trucks were rushing here and there; "Say It with Flowers" on the trucks had a day all by itself. It was the greatest ever for St. Louis florists.

Every establishment was loaded to the top with blooming plants. Lily plants led in demand and the supply was unusually large. Hydrangeas came next, although a considerable number of azaleas were seen this year. Ramblers, Tausendschoen and Perkins roses had the best sale in years.

Dutch bulbs in pots and pans were not heavy in supply, owing to the lateness of Easter. Still, there was much of this stock on sale. There was an excellent supply of all other plants, such as white lilies, deutzias, cinerarias, schizanthus, callas, begonias, etc.

The cut flower market had an abundance of stock all last week. While sales dragged the first few days of the week, the last three days saw a large demand and the market was cleared by local and shipping demand.

Roses in all varieties were of extra fine quality. While the demand favored Premier, Ophelia, Butterfly, Milady and Columbia, White Killarney, Russell and Sunburst had excellent calls. Carnations were not in oversupply. Sweet peas were greatly in demand, but the supply was equal to it.

There was a considerable cut of bulbous stock in tulips, Dutch hyacinths, irises and jonquils. This stock would have been unexcelled, had Easter come two weeks earlier.

Cut Easter lilies and callas were many and the demand for them was heavy.

The usual miscellaneous flowers, such as calendulas, snapdragons, daisies, mignonette and pansies, came in for heavy demand. Asparagus plumosus had the call in greens. Smilax, adiantum and other greens cleaned out early.

Florists' Club Meets.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held April 13, at publicity headquarters. The meeting came in the midst of the Easter rush; 25 members were present, the smallest attendance of the year. Not one retailer was present.

President Rowe called the meeting to order at 2 p. m. After the minutes of the last meeting had been approved, reports from the trustees and standing and special committees were heard. Several communications were read by the secretary and ordered filed for future reference.

The committee on the applications for membership of Henry Braun, E. W. Beims and J. Harry Rehme reported favorably and a motion prevailed that the secretary cast one ballot for election.

The club endorsed the plan of "St. Louis day," as proposed by the Kiwanis Club, and the chair appointed Fred C. Weber, Frank X. Gorly and E. A. Guntly a committee to represent the Florists' Club at the next meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

The trustees reported 60 cents in fines collected from members who failed to wear flowers at the meeting.

A vote of thanks was extended the

The Indianapolis show came up for discussion. The chair called on J. F.

Rowe for talks on what they saw and heard at the show. Chairman F. A.
Windler, of the advertising committee of the St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association, showed the members the big double-page advertisements which appeared in the three daily newspapers for Easter. The association paid for one page and the retailers combined and paid for the other; the cost will run over the $4,000 mark.

The third annual spring flower show, which will open May 20 under the auspices of the Garden Club of St. Louis, was next discussed, especially the entry list for commercial growers, in which $872 in premiums is offered, in both plants and cut flowers. It was reported that a great many entries had already been made by our local growers.

The question box brought out some interesting discussions. Next month will open the season for outdoor meetings and the trustees are open for invitations for holding the May meeting.

the St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association in the double-page advertisement in the newspapers last week. The cost was $4,200, but this was small, according to the results it brought the advertisers.

The Review advertisers in the telegraph delivery department again reaped a harvest. Never before were so many telegraph orders filled by them and never before did they send out so many telegrams to all parts of the country.

H. G. Berning says that this was the largest year of any in both local and shipping orders. Several truck loads of shipping orders left April 13 and again April 14, with an abundance of stock to fill orders.

W. J. Pilcher, W. A. Rowe, C. E. De Wever, J. F. Ammann, J. H. Blixen and J. J. Beneke spent April 17 in Pana, Ill., attending the executive committee meeting of the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association.

The Gussie Malloy Flower Shop says that this, the first Easter in its career, was beyond expectations.

painted poster reading, "Flower orders telegraphed to any city in the United States." This, no doubt, created a great deal of business for all the retailers.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., spent a day in the city the early part of last week, on his return trip home from a western business trip. Mr. Hill was a guest of H. G. Berning.

George Pieser, manager for the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Market, says that Easter trade, both local and shipping, was satisfactory, with plenty of stock to fill orders.

Thomas Carr reports a large business during the holy week, especially in plants. Miss Killeullen, of the cut flower department, says the Easter trade was wonderful.

The wholesale establishments of W. C. Smith, A. W. Gumz, C. A. Kuehn and George Angermueller had an abundance of seasonable stock for the big Easter rush. All stock moved satisfactorily all last week.

The first meeting of the National Federation of Outdoor Clubs will be held April 24 to 27, at the Hotel Statler. The organization committee of 100 is headed by J. F. Ammann.

L. Jules Bourdet, Carl Beyer and J. J. Beneke have been named judges of the commercial exhibits for the spring flower show at the Missouri Botanical Garden May 20 to 21.

Floral Co. and others in the south end did big business and carried excellent stock.

Downtown, where the great transient trade is done, the store of Grimm & Gorly never looked better and it did an immense business. The Ayres-Tubbesing Floral Co., F. J. Foster, the Riesen Floral Co. and the Acme Floral Shop say that this Easter surpassed all others.

There was no bowling April 12, as all were busy with the Easter rush. The wind-up of the season was to have taken place April 19. The two teams that will represent the "Say It with Flowers" league in the handicap tournament April 25 are as follows: Team No. 1—F. Plotz, average 161; A. Hoffmann, Jr., 162; F. Alves, 162; J. J. Beneke, 163; Oscar Ruff, 168, the team with a total of 816 points. Team No. 2—J. J. Bentzen, 154; George Schreffer, 150; George Berner, 150; C. A. Never before was Easter business so good as this year. The buying was heavy Thursday, April 13. Friday morning, April 14, was cold and rainy and threatened snow. Telephone orders poured into the larger stores, but few persons ventured from home. By noon the sun was shining and the day turned out to be fine for business. That afternoon and Saturday morning preceding Easter Sunday cleaned up the lily supply. A conservative estimate places the number of lilies sold on this market at 50,000. Other estimates place it as high as 70,000. Growers who specialize in these plants had big crops. No greenhouse was without some. Preparations had been made for a good business, but such as developed had not been anticipated. There were, of course, some florists who hesitated about buying heavily, fearing that weather conditions might dampen the public's desire for flowers at the last. This fear seemed justified Good Friday morning, but these hesitating florists were madly scrambling for stock of any kind Easter Saturday, and without success. It was not only the conservative ones who were sold out early; those who had bought well early in the week were cleaned up. Long-distance telephone calls, telegraph orders and personal visits to the commission houses Saturday, April 15, met with the same response—no more stock to be had.

Various Notes.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. sold 20,000 carnations last week. All carnation orders were filled up to Easter Saturday. Orders for roses, sweet peas and lilies were turned down daily. One load of green lilies was sold April 15. The buds were far enough on to open in a day or two.

Mrs. Boyd has sold from fifty to seventy-five pounds of sweet pea seed daily for more than two weeks. She is selling all her flower and vegetable seeds by bulk measure this season. In three days last week she sold 33,000 pot plants, tulips, hyacinths and jonquils. She had three city lots, 33x130 feet each, in bulbs this season, in addition to the ground near the greenhouses. Mrs. Boyd has the flower department in Kresge's store and it is one of the best-paying departments in the house.

were especially good the last of the week. The Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., sold 6,000 pot lilies and turned down orders.

P. A. Manson, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., sold over 5,000 pot lilies. He received letters from customers telling that they were well pleased with the stock shipped. The plant department of this company has been busy all season.

Henry Kusik & Co. cleaned up by noon Saturday, April 15. No more stock came in through the afternoon. Easter business was better than in 1921.

Miss Boggess had the finest Easter business ever. At 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 15, she had not a single plant left and no cut flowers. From that time until 11:30 p. m. she and two assistants put up orders for Sunday morning delivery. J. E. K.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Last week started in with a hustle and here, there and everywhere florists were on the rush. Business kept up well, getting heavier each day. The weather conditions at the first of last week were truly a little alarming, but by midweek the temperature had dropped considerably and was much better for growers and retailers alike.

Stock in general was plentiful, and good prices were obtained. Bulbous stock was in heavy supply, but it moved well. Rambler roses, hydrangeas, genistas, etc., sold well as potted plants. Potted lilies were not overplentiful, but a good quantity was available.

In cut flowers, practically everything was offered. Thousands of cut daffodils came into the market, but they sold well. Roses were in good demand. Orchids were not plentiful, but sufficient reached us to fill orders. Gardenias sold fairly well and the supply was good. Sweet peas were in good supply, but the demand was particularly heavy for them. Carnations were good and sold well. The quality of violets was much better than was expected at this late season. Green goods were in good condition and sold readily.

Various Notes.

Several of the nearby florists were in town last week and visited the local florists. Among them were: Mrs. Anna Dietche, of Geneseo, N. Y.; Mrs. George Patrick, of Auburn, N. Y.; H. S. Baker, of Warsaw, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y., and V. Gatz, of Albion, N. Y. Other visitors included Walter Mott, of Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., and Stephen D. Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., New York City.

Having spent almost a year in California, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Werdein and family have returned to Rochester, where they hope to locate again. Mr. Werdein helped out at Easter with George T. Boucher.

A mammoth business was done by Alberts the Florist for Easter. Commencing early in the week, he advertised freely a sale of potted plants for $1 each. The firm had thousands of 5-inch stock on hand, such as bulbous stock, primroses, combination pots, etc., which, when decorated, made an unusual offering at the price.

Peter Pappas, formerly of Rochester, and recently of Wellsboro, Pa., has opened a temporary store near the Four Corners. This firm did a good business for the holiday.

Edwards' department store put in a large quantity of potted and cut stock for Easter, which, I understand, moved well. This concern has large greenhouses in Syracuse, N. Y.

Hugo Teute, of Brighton, N. Y., cleaned up in good shape, there being scarcely a flower available by Easter Saturday afternoon.

James Vick's Sons are doing considerable street car advertising. Their store No. 2, located at 36 Exchange street, not only carries a complete line of seeds, plants and bulbs, but has in addition a large variety of poultry foods. James Vick founded this business in Rochester seventy-three years ago. They are already preparing for the celebration of their seventy-fifth anniversary, and are requesting their old customers to write brief letters of reminiscences and experiences of dealing with the company in the past.

FOREIGN PLANTS INTRODUCED.

More than thirty countries are represented as sources in a recently published list of seeds and plants introduced by the United States Department of Agriculture from July 1 to September 30, 1917. This inventory, No. 52, contains descriptions of 285 plants, a comparatively small number, as at that time—during the war—the shipping of seeds and plants was almost at a standstill.

In this list of plants introduced by a number of agricultural explorers are many that may prove to be of great value to American farmers and stockmen. In view of the success of such former introductions as Rhodes grass and Sudan grass, four new forage grasses from New South Wales and a collection from the Belgian Congo should be of special interest. Tropical horticulturists may find something of value in various fruits introduced from Guatemala, especially a large form of avocado known in that country as "coye." Although flavoring plants are not much used in most parts of this country, people in sections where it may be grown may be interested in a tropical vine that imparts the flavor of oysters to milk or potato soup.

Other plants in the new list are house palms that take on a graceful form while small, hardy palms with showy edible fruits from Argentina, a tropical black walnut from Porto Rico that may have possibilities for timber production, a flowering cherry from Japan that may be grown in the Adirondack region and a tree from Java that has nodules embedded in the leaves which collect and fix nitrogen from the air, just as is done by the nodules on the roots of legumes.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Last week the mad rush was on and everyone was working overtime. There was a good supply of plants; an abundance of hydrangeas, pink, blue and white; some good rose bushes, a good supply of potted Easter lilies, with the general run short. The hot spell about ruined the bulbous stock, making hyacinth and tulip plants scarce. In cut stock there was a good supply of every flower. Sweet peas took the place of violets, the latter flowers having always proved unsatisfactory when Easter is so late and especially when a hot spell precedes Easter week. Roses are plentiful and are selling rather slowly. Orchids and gardenias find ready sale.

the Florists' Club, their wives and friends, assembled in the clubrooms and enjoyed one of the most interesting and entertaining social evenings held in some time. From an educational standpoint the time spent there was invaluable and the social hour following was thoroughly enjoyed, too.

The meeting was called to order by President Merritt. A motion was offered from the floor that all business be laid aside and that J. Horace McFarland, speaker of the evening, proceed with his lecture. Mr. McFarland lived up to his reputation and gave a most interesting talk, illustrated with his valuable slides. His subject was, "The Rose in America." It gave to one a wonderful idea of the great progress made in the development of the rose and the many and varied ways of using this beautiful flower for decorative purposes, not only applying this to the large rose gardens of the wealthy, but also to the crowded back yards and ugly board fences of the city. After Mr. McFarland's lecture, refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

Preceding the lecture, a dinner was served at the Hotel Rennert in Mr. McFarland's honor. The following members of the trade attended the dinner: J. J. Perry, William Buschardt, Charles Feast, William J. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Johnston, Mr. and pans were available. The stock all found a ready sale.

In cut flowers the demand was heaviest for roses and sweet peas. There was also a good demand for lilies and carnations. There was plenty of cut bulbous stock, such as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, to take care of the demand. The supply of roses, sweet peas and carnations, however, cleaned up rapidly towards the end of the week. Sweet peas, especially, got rather scarce, due to the continued dark weather, and there were only about half as many of these available as there would have been had the weather been better.

Various Notes.

Many of the downtown stores made elaborate and attractive window displays. The windows of the Baumgarten Floral Co., J. M. Fox & Son, the McKenney Co. and the Semler-Leidiger Co. all made excellent showings. The Messmer Floral Co. made a beautiful display. These windows were trimmed with large, showy climbing rose plants, hydrangeas and bulbous stock.

On the west side William Zimmermann, Lubliner, Charles Menger and the L'Nor Flower Shop had large supplies and the displays of these firms were attractive.

The flower department of the Gimbel department store and the Boston store had an immense stock of plants and flowers. These stores added a considerable amount of help in their flower departments to handle the Easter business.

All hands were busy at the establishments of Gus. Rusch & Co., the Holton & Hunkel Co. and the C. C. Pollworth Co. The shipping business was exceptionally good, although this end of the business was handicapped during the early part of last week on account of the poor train service, due to the washouts throughout the middle and northern part of the state.

MAKING BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

To the instructions on making Bordeaux mixture published in The Review of April 6, Benjamin C. Auten, of Carterville, Mo., writes to add a few observations from his experience with the mixture, which should be helpful to those who are not so familiar with it. He says:

"In making Bordeaux mixture, whether or not hot water be used to dissolve the copper sulphate, the solution must be cold when added to the lime. The best way to dissolve the copper sulphate is to tie it in a piece of cloth and hang it just dipping into the water. It will then dissolve rapidly.

"When lime is to be slaked in quantities less than four pounds, the slaking should be done with hot water over a fire. Only enough water should be used, being added as necessary, to keep the lime from becoming dry. A good supply of water should be available, as it may need to be added rapidly. Stirring should be complete and thorough until the process is completed.

"In preparing the two solutions, a gallon of water is sufficient to the pound of bluestone; all the rest of the water should be added to the lime. It requires a large quantity of water to dissolve only a small quantity of lime, and it is only that part of the lime actually dissolved that is available to the action of the copper sulphate. If the lime is poorly slaked or an insufficient quantity of it is dissolved before the mixture is made, some of the copper sulphate may fail of being incorporated and the mixture become dangerous. Also, the uncombined lime clogs the action of the mixture, reducing its efficiency and making a mud over the plants and flowers. It is much better to use less lime and have what is used all useful.

"The formula I would suggest is one pound of bluestone (copper sulphate) to one-half pound of lime in fifty gallons of water. If the lime is of good quality and the slaking correctly done, there will be an abundance of lime to neutralize the copper sulphate, with an excess sufficient for all emergencies. The first batch or two should be tested to make sure they are safe. If they test safely, further testing with the same materials should be unnecessary.

"The test should not be made as usually directed, by pouring in a drop of potassium ferrocyanide solution, because, as the solution is quite heavy, the drop almost instantly sinks out of sight, and the unfavorable indication, the brown discoloration, may easily escape detection. Instead, make a strong solution of the ferrocyanide, and with it moisten a sheet of filter paper, which can be bought at the drug store. Then dry the treated paper, cut it up into strips, and keep in a wide-mouthed bottle or a Mason jar. To make the test, drop a small bit of this test paper on top of the Bordeaux mixture, and any adverse indication can not fail to be noticed. The test should, of course, not be applied until the mixture has been stirred to complete homogeneity.

"In applying the spray, sufficient pressure should be used to break the mixture into a perfect mist, and only enough spray should be applied to give a uniform foggy coating. If applied so long or so heavily that drops form on the foliage, the job is poorly done.

"A spray made as here directed is twice as strong as the 5-5-50 formula, should give full efficiency, should be safe, and should be practically invisible."

election in this campaign was drawn up and passed and a nominating committee composed of W. D. Desmond, chairman; Thomas Wylie, Felix Rosaia, Joseph Stuber and Eugene Sandahl was named to place a slate before the association at its May meeting, when new officers will be elected.

The City Flower Shop has enjoyed a better business of late on cut flowers, with corsage work for smaller social functions a feature of the trade.

W. C. Kipp, of Spokane, was a trade visitor on his way home to Spokane after attending the Rotary Club convention, at Victoria.

The work of remodeling the basement salesrooms of the Woodlawn Flower Shop was completed in time for use of these rooms in handling the greater bulk of the Easter lilies there, although work of a night shift for several nights was necessary in order to accomplish this. The shop space has been greatly increased by this action and, in addition, the necessity of rearranging the main floor for every holiday is done away with.

Increased interest in decorations and a good funeral demand is reported by Kenney's Home of Flowers.

A group of novelty art subjects has been used lately by the Orpheum Floral Co. to attract the attention of the public, these being grouped in a corner section, before a bank of potted flowers.

B. E. Hammond, of the wholesale house, reports a good increase in shipping business on ferns to outside points, and a heavy enough demand on all general offerings to keep the firm's supplies well cleaned up.

J. J. Sherbeck is to enjoy a vacation of several weeks soon, the first he has had in several years.

J. C. Dressen, of the Art Floral Co., has been moving large quantities of daffodils lately, the current prices appeal-

LATE MUMS PAY BEST

White and Pink Seidewitz are the two best late varieties and we have a large stock of rooted cuttings ready. We offer you

GOLDEN QUEEN—The best yellow for early October, maturing about the 10th. Same color as Golden Glow, fine incurved form and double from any bud. Per 1000 $35.00
OCTOBER QUEEN—Pure white, large size, maturing October 15 to 20; exceptionally fine stem and foliage. 40.00
WM. H. CHADWICK—Large, incurved, white sometimes shaded pink. 35.00
HARVARD—Japanese reflexed; very dark crimson; in perfection November 15 or later; the best red yet introduced; double from any bud. 35.00

WHITE SEIDEWITZ—White sport of the popular Seidewitz, resembling it in every respect except color, which is a pure white; this variety should rank as does its parent, as one of the best varieties for Christmas blooming. Per 1000 $45.00
SEIDEWITZ—A beautiful late, incurved, bright pink, maturing from Thanksgiving to early December; surpasses all late pinks we have grown. 40.00
EARLY FROST—A very good early white to follow Smith's Advance; pure white, incurved. 35.00

These Good Pompons Ready in Quantity

MRS. FRANK BEU—The very best Thanksgiving bronze, shading to fine red; every florist wants some of this grand late variety. Per 1000 $30.00
MRS. MAZEY—Bronze sport of Godfrey. 40.00
ANNABELL—Wine colored sport of Godfrey. 40.00

SUNSHINE—Deep yellow in color, firm and fresh for Thanksgiving without any holding back and remains in perfect condition, if desired, for two weeks longer; should be partially disbudded, otherwise the perfectly formed flowers will be too crowded. Per 1000 $40.00

ing to the class of trade reached by this shop. Sales of rose bushes have also proved popular.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. is adding to its shipping territory steadily. Spring business for this year is considerably ahead of that for the same period a year ago.

Felix Rosaia has been suffering from a severe cold, but is still able to attend to his store duties. Within a few weeks the calls on his time will be easier, as he is nearly through with his period of service with the federal grand jury. Cut flowers have been in demand of late.

Melby's Flower Shop has been attracting attention to its work in a practical way by setting any large show funeral pieces on the sidewalk in front of the store for a few minutes before delivery. Several commissions handled recently were unusual enough to attract crowds.

A heavier cut on most items from the greenhouses is reported for McCoy's, and some of the best roses on the market have been helping to draw business to this shop. H. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

All reports indicate a satisfactory Easter trade. Most prices were about the same as those of last year. Some prices were high. Violets, where they could be had at all, sold for from $2.50 to $3 per hundred. The extremely warm weather early last week forced violets to bloom too soon. Azaleas, except a few of the hardy variety, were scarce. The prices were correspondingly high, some medium-sized plants bringing $8 per hundred. To some extent potted hydrangeas took the place of azaleas. Potted rose bushes, tulips and hyacinths sold freely. There was an abundant supply of Easter lilies, which sold, on the average, at 50 cents per bloom. There was a fairly large sale of cut tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, sweet peas and carnations, with a somewhat smaller demand for roses and other not so distinctly spring flowers. Pansy plants in baskets were plentiful and were in considerable demand.

George Penek, who has a store on Center Market place, has asked the city to show why an order should not be issued restraining the city from licensing the sale of flowers from stands on the north side of Center Market place. He says his business is seriously injured by the retailing of flowers from these licensed stands, especially on such occasions as Easter. He further contends that Center Market place is a city thoroughfare, and that the city has no right to license the stands. R. B. M.

Greenhouse Heating

ADDING RETURNS.

I have two houses, $18\frac{1}{2} \times 110$ feet, and four houses, $11\frac{1}{3} \times 110$ feet. All of the houses are connected and there are no partitions between them. The east wall contains two feet of glass and the west wall also contains two feet of glass. The gables of the two large houses are twelve and one-half feet high, while those of the smaller houses are nine feet high. The two large houses have each three $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flows and three $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns under the benches, and the four small houses have each two $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flows and two $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns under the benches. The heating system consists of a 25-horsepower boiler, located in a 10-foot basement. The houses run north and south and are protected on the north side by a shed. Will the heating system above described heat the greenhouses to 60 degrees in zero weather? If not, can you tell me how much it will heat and how I can bring the heat up to 60 degrees? A. E. S.—Ky.

The sketch shows six houses with walls four and one-half feet high. Four of these houses are eleven feet four inches in width and nine feet to the ridge. The other two houses are eighteen feet six inches wide and twelve and one-half feet high. The outside wall on each side of the range has two feet of glass. All of the houses are connected and there are no partitions. The houses are all 110 feet long. For the three narrow houses without exposed walls the radiation is ample, but it would be advisable to use an additional return for 60 degrees in the outside narrow house. There is a slight deficiency in both of the wide houses and one additional return should be used for the inside house, and two for the outside house with one exposed wall. By carrying five pounds' pressure in extremely cold weather, the present radiation should give 60 degrees in zero weather in all of the houses.

DECREASING RETURNS.

I am mailing a sketch of my greenhouses. Can you give me any advice regarding the size of a hot water boiler and the piping arrangement necessary to heat these houses? C. S. M.—Del.

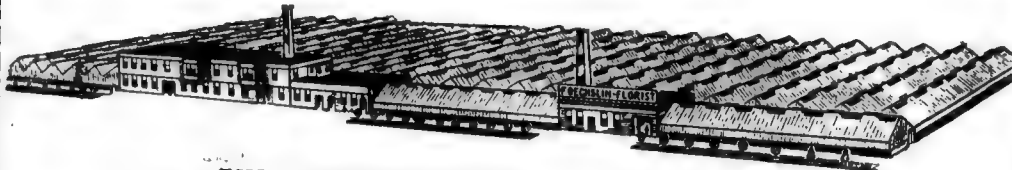

The sketch shows one house, 10×21 feet, with side walls covered with stucco. At the end of this house there is another house, thirty-six feet long, and, although no width is shown, it appears to be about one-fourth wider than the other house, or twelve and one-half feet wide. This latter house is nine feet high, with 5-foot side walls. There is three feet of glass in one of the side walls and one end wall, below the plate.

If coal is to be used as fuel, it would not be advisable to place the boiler inside the greenhouse, as there is likely to be trouble from coal gas, soot, ashes, etc.

The temperature desired is not stated, but for 60 degrees about 350 square feet of radiation will be needed, and this amount of radiation will require a heater rated for about 500 square feet of hot water radiation.

To heat the houses, run a $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flow pipe overhead and with this sup-for Plibrico means a saving of more than 10% on fuel bills; it is a time saver and a labor saver as well, and it is an insurance against loss from shutdowns for boiler setting repairs.

Plibrico is a plastic refractory. When molded into jointless baffles, side walls, arches, and properly baked and vitrified, it forms boiler settings that resist heat up to 3100° F., that are air and gas-

a night fireman is not required. Of course, a properly arranged steam plant can generally be left for five or six hours with safety, but, if anything does go wrong, the injury to the houses will generally be greater than in a house heated with hot water.

The data furnished merely give an idea of the number and size of the pipes used, but a good deal depends on the arrangement, height of returns, etc., and, besides, the sketch sent on does not indicate in all cases the length of the returns.

The two houses heated by hot water are side by side, with a common wall between them. They are 18x70, with outside walls of brick six feet in height. Each house has three 2-inch overhead flow pipes, each of which supplies four 1¼-inch returns. So far as the amount of radiation is concerned, it is approximately correct, although it would be well to increase it about ten per cent to maintain 60 degrees with an open-tank system.

The principal defect seems to be that for houses of this length the flow and return pipes are both too small, unless the system is under pressure, in which case it should answer for 60 degrees, if the boiler is of sufficient capacity. For each of the houses it would be well to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 2-inch returns. If the returns are higher than the top of the heater, a good circulation will be secured and at least 60 degrees can be maintained in zero weather.

The steam-heated houses are joined at right angles like a capital L, with the boiler house in the angle between the houses. One house is 25x70 feet, while the other is 18x70 feet. The wide house has two and one-half feet of glass in the exposed walls. The other has two feet of glass in one wall. All of these houses have three 2-inch flow pipes, with twelve 1¼-inch returns. Only nine returns will be required in the wide house and six in the narrow house to maintain 60 degrees in zero weather.

The week previous to Easter was accompanied by rain, which continued until the Saturday before Easter, when the sun came out, making the prospects of a good Easter for the florists' trade bright. A fine line of all seasonable plants and cut flowers was shown in all of the stores, at a price within the reach of all customers. There was a shortage of carnations and of short and medium-stemmed roses.

E. C. Wenninghoff said that on the Monday following Easter he felt like a small boy who wished to skip school. A fine line of plants was to be had here and everything was completely cleaned up. There were not enough carnations and short roses to supply the demand. There was an unusually heavy demand for corsages at this store. The best sellers in plants were the Easter lilies, roses, tulips and hyacinths.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a record-breaking business and was completely sold out. This firm had a fine lot of Easter lilies and pelargoniums, as well as other plants.

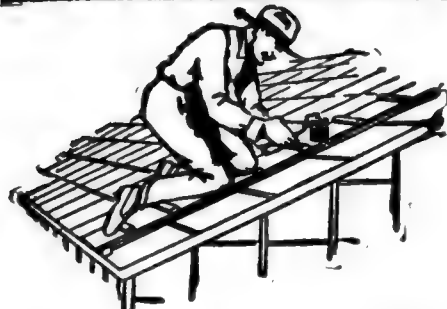

The Blossom Floral Co. reports business as much larger in volume than last year, with a complete clean-up on plants and cut flowers. This firm added a new feature to its business this year. Club girls in the surrounding towns were engaged to sell plants and flowers on a percentage basis. This proved to be a great success. Hundreds of plants and a large number of corsages were thus disposed of.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey were fortunate in having a heavy crop of Cattleya Mossiae in just right for the Easter trade, as well as some C. Schroederae. A fine cut of long-stemmed Premier and Columbia helped out with the many orders, but there was not nearly enough short and medium-stemmed stock to fill the orders.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a good demand for both cut flowers and plants, which far exceeded the demand of a year ago. S. N.

Wilmington, O.—Irwin Swindler, who has been manager of the Anderson Flower Shop for the last two years and a half, has taken an interest in the Moores greenhouses and will manage the cut flower end of the business.

CLEVELAND'S EASTER.

Club Doings.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club it was unanimously voted that every hospital in the city be supplied with blooms in quantity sufficient to supply on Easter Sunday every patient not taken care of by friends. The McCallum Co. was to do the distributing. This action on the part of the florists and growers is worthy of praise. After a few days' rest the club will be busy again. A get-together dance is set for the last week in April. The membership campaign is getting close to the 100 mark for this year. It looks as though the club will soon reach a 300 total. Do not miss the next meeting, May 7. Mark it on the calendar.

Easter Side-Lights.

The Easter trade was enormous and the writer, who visited over twenty retail stores Easter Saturday and Sunday, found a generally well satisfied and happy crowd of retail merchants. The annual Easter parade on Euclid avenue was greater than ever. Thousands of corsages of excellent quality were to be seen.

One of the many new stores is one on Detroit street opened by A. E. Roentgen. His success is absolutely assured; Irish grit must win. He was all set to open Easter, but the building was not ready—no windows. He did not stop, but he bought a dozen sashes and put in temporary windows, stocked the place and arranged a fine display. The crowd was with him and the store was packed for three days. He made a genuine clean-up.

The Park Floral Co. show attracted thousands of visitors last week. It was to the east side what the Gasser Co. show was to the west side.

Flower stores opened up on every available corner or in any empty store for the Easter trade. Five of these surrounded the Superior street store of Felton's for Flowers, but the manager here reports the banner Easter business since the founding of the chain of stores.

It is a big problem to handle these peak days, but Cleveland is equal to the occasion. The writer visited several of the big growers and all reported a clean-up sale. The stock was certainly fine. Hot weather was hard on bulbous stock and there were some losses. Roses were hard to hold, but the supply was immense. The sweet pea came into its own this season. A. T. F.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

in touch, by phone, with two of his men. Luckily, there were orchids, etc., in the store. At 2 p. m., an hour after the call, G. P. Wagner and an assistant climbed aboard the Monterey flyer, carrying elaborate table decorations and thirty-five orchid corsage bouquets, for a dinner at the Hotel Del Monte. The dinner was given to mark the wind-up of the polo tournament. It was not a case of cost, but of speed. Del Monte is 130 miles from San Francisco.

E. W. McLellan is cutting Russell roses with stems four feet in length, which are admirably described as "some of the classiest stock that ever came into the San Francisco market."

"We're buried," said J. W. Axell, referring to his orders and to the amount of stock, which is enabling him to fill them. Green goods are in big demand. Easter lilies with stems four to five feet in length were seen here. The Ferrari Bros. grew the lilies.

Henry Avansino and Victor Ferrari have been added to the board of directors of the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market. This action was taken at the last meeting.

The C. Kooyman Co. will soon be cutting its own rubrum and Henry lilies from the Alameda acreage.

Enomoto & Co. have been handling all the flowers they require to fill their many Easter orders.

Domoto Bros. had a remarkable display of potted Easter lilies, roses, hydrangeas, azaleas, rhododendrons and primulas, for the Easter trade.

The United Flower & Supply Co. showed fine rambler, Dorothy Perkins and other potted roses, as well as Easter lilies, in its Easter display. "Business has revived satisfactorily," said I. Inoue, manager of the concern. "Easter orders for shipment have been good and we were fortunate in having enough stock to meet all demands."

F. C. Jaeger & Son were busy both with wholesale and retail orders for the Easter season. The demand sent F. C. Jaeger, Jr., hurrying to the Santa Cruz mountains in search of some special stock. Easter and calla lilies were handled extensively by this firm.

A. J. Schoorl has an excellent display of cut Darwin tulips, in about twenty different varieties, at his space in the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Marchrysanthemums in the fall usually have some bulbous stock for the spring flower market."

The Suzanne Floral Co. had numerous orders for the funeral of I. Cahen, brother of Mrs. Louis Stern. The family is connected with some of the leading business interests of the city.

Brown & Kennedy are finding that general business is satisfactory.

M. M.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Easter business was slow in starting, but when it once began it produced a deluge. Everybody reported good business and nearly all of the stock was cleaned out, with the exception of a few small items. The wholesalers cleaned out of everything, with the exception of bulbous stock, which was a drug on the market. There was a scarcity of corsage material, especially in sweet peas and valley, because most of the growers did not ship their full quota. Violets were of an inferior quality and several complaints were received. Some of the violets were even returned.

Sweet peas were extremely scarce and valley ran a close second. Calendulas cleaned up well, as did snapdragons. Roses cleaned up, even the white, and many more could have been sold had they been available. Supplies of all kinds were in great demand. Carnations were all disposed of in good order. The demand for local valley was much larger than the supply. This state of affairs was unfortunate, as a surplus was expected, but did not materialize.

Easter lilies cleaned up well, the demand being extremely large. The hot weather preceding Easter helped to create a shortage in stock, as it was impossible to hold back the stock before Easter. Many of the trade were disappointed with the asparagus. This item did not arrive until the Monday after Easter and then only in unsalable condition.

Various Notes.

L. C. STROH & SONS,
Batavia, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

We have given your Thoro-Mix Soil Shredder a thorough trial and we find that it does the work in an excellent manner. It is a machine we have long needed and we are certainly grateful that we have it now, as it is a great help in getting the soil in the right condition. We would recommend it to any florist.

Yours very truly, because the season when the Thoro-Mix Soil Shredder will quickly demonstrate its worth is here. Before the summer is over it will nearly pay for itself in the saving of time and you will so greatly appreciate the quality of its work that you would not take double what you paid for it if you could not get another one.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

At this writing the retailers are, no doubt, in the midst of their busiest time. From the way orders were received by the wholesalers, business in general will be good. The wholesalers are practically cleaned up in everything. In fact, in many instances they could have made use of additional quantities of roses and carnations. The supply of lilies, however, especially Easter lilies, far exceeded the demand and this is one item of which there will be plenty left after the rush is over. Daffodils and tulips were also seen in large quantities and the demand was limited. Valley, however, was especially in demand and the supply was hardly sufficient to meet the requirements. Violets were in the market, but were of a poor quality. Weather conditions are responsible. Sweet peas are being received in large quantities, but the quality is not there. Customers complain that the peas are soft and weather conditions account for this. There have been some fine yellow daisies with extra long stems on the market and the florists have been using these in preference to sweet peas and valley. Some fine gladioli were in the market during last week and also shipments of southern lilacs. The demand for orchids far exceeded the supply, and many customers were disappointed. The quality of roses was exceptionally fine and there were the following varieties: Pilgrim, Richmond, Crusader, Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, White Ophelia, Russell and White Killarney. The demand for American Beauties was limited this year. However, there were sufficient in the market to take care of the demand.

Various Notes.

Conditions in this market are changing each year. The florists from the surrounding suburbs do not depend upon express or parcel post shipments at the holiday season and a number take advantage of the good roads to call for their flowers. We believe that this is the sensible thing to do, as often many disappointments are caused by the negligence of the carrier.

The hail storm of April 10 caused some damage to the greenhouses of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakers-town, Pa., in the way of broken glass. Fortunately, injury to plants proved not so serious as earlier reported. In fact, the plants were so little harmed that the company's supply continues as usual.

The florists in this vicinity all report a clean-up Easter business, even as to

CONCRETE BENCHES

No! Concrete benches are not too cold if properly constructed. As a matter of fact, they make possible a more uniform heat and better drainage than is possible with wood. Concrete benches prove to be the least expensive kind of bench to build. There are other points you should be acquainted with. A request will bring facts and figures that will mean a saving of money for you.

their plants. Weather conditions, which were perfect, naturally had something to do with this, although potted plants in some instances were sold quite cheap. However, summing up the entire Easter business, gratifying reports have been received from all our retail florists.

ASTERS100,000 ASTER SEEDLINGS.

High priced quality seeds were germinated in flats that were previously sterilized with the soil under high pressure of steam. It's a lot of extra hard work and expense, but this is the only way to get healthy plants, and I want you to have plants, to start with, that have a healthy and clean root system. My flats are placed on raised beds of sterilized soil, no weeds or bacteria come in touch with them.

The seedlings are not leggy, sappy nor stunted, just in condition to stand the transplanting or potting and keep right on growing. My list of varieties is complete. If you fail in the early market you may win in the next one. I have no guarantee of success to offer you, but try and find out for yourself the best way to succeed under your own conditions.

Queen of Market, earliest of all, white, pink, lavender.

Carlson's and Invincible, next early, bearing Peony formed flowers, white, pink, lavender.

Lavender Gem, very early and best in existence, lavender.

Peerless, large flowers on long stems, pink and white.

Daybreak, excellent for cutting, flowers large and double, shell-pink and salmon.

Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.

Bail's White, originator's seeds, the sensation of Chicago market in 1921, very full and well centered, ideal for long distance shipping.

Crego's Giant, best late in existence, large flowers borne on good stems, white, pink and lavender.

All labeled and true to name.

75c per 100, not less than 25 of a kind or color; $5.00 per 1000, not less than 50 of a kind or color; 10,000 for $45.00, see Pansy, Salvia, Vegetable ads.

CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In offering our block of 300,000 TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS to the trade, we can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, in as much as we have specialized on CYCLAMEN for years, and are constantly improving our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never had a finer lot of seedlings of the very best known varieties. We established a new record with our CYCLAMEN plants last fall when we shipped them in full carload lots to the East.

Remember—Our plants have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

GLADIOLUS PRIMULINUS.

NOTHING IS MORE BEAUTIFUL THAN MY GLADIOLUS PRIMULINUS WITH THEIR AR-TISTICALLY ARRANGED FLOWERS AND THEIR PASTEL AND ORIENTAL COLORS.
THEY BLOSSOM EARLIER AND LATER THAN ANY OTHER GLADIOLUS, AND THE SMALL-EST BULBS PRODUCE FLOWERS. TRY THEM.

IT WILL PAY YOU TO WRITE US WHEN IN NEED OF GLADIOLI.

WHY?

Prices are right.
Stock is grown on our fields in Michigan where best bulbs grow. A 100 per cent true to name guarantee.
Bulbs are plump and vigorous.
Service is pleasant, courteous and efficient.

Try it. Write us.

JELLE ROOS,

Gladiolus Specialist,

Box A, Concord, Mass.

VERY SPECIAL!

For $12.00 I will send 5000 selected bulbets of the new pure white Gladiolus Lilywhite and include 10 blooming size gratis. Lilywhite is the long desired pure white Gladiolus of vigorous, healthy growth; great multiplying power; straight spikes opening six to eight blooms at a time; an ideal forcer, early as Halley and the best commercial pure white to date.

Awarded first prize by New York, Massachusetts and St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, Horticultural Societies and American Gladiolus Society.

This variety will be grown eventually by the million and practical florists will get stock at once.

Send for our descriptive list of cut-flower varieties suitable for retail florists; also testimonials from leading growers.

HYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price per 100 seed $1.00
Price per 100 seed, fancy selected 3.00

Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener Co., Kentfield, Cal.

Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light.
Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

Easter Business.

This year's Easter business far exceeded anything experienced here in many years. Weather conditions, notwithstanding a light rain Easter Satur-

RAIN WHEN YOU WANT IT

Start Small End Big

Start small with one of our Portable sectional lines, 200 feet long, that waters
10,000 square feet at a time.
There are 40,000 square feet in an acre.
Move the line four times and an acre is watered.

The easiest and cheapest way to start is to lay a black pipe feed line on top of the ground. This is tapped at 50-foot intervals so that the risers can be taken off for the irrigation lines.

One of our portable sectional lines can then be quickly and easily attached to a riser and after watering the strip for 25 feet on either side, be just as easily removed and carried to the next riser.

Uses for a Sectional Line

1. General watering affording absolute protection against drouth.
2. Moved over a lot of newly transplanted stock starts them growing, keeps them at it.
3. Sow seed and then hasten germination by a timely Skinner System shower.
4. Soften crust for little seedlings to push through.
5. Piece of ground too dry for ploughing or spading can be put in prime condition by watering with the portable line.
6. Protection against frost.

There's surely a place for the Skinner System on your land, where it will increase your crop, decrease your worries and put money in your bank.

If it's done it for thousands of Skinner System users, it will do it for you.

day, were all that could be desired and had a beneficial effect upon the trade.
There was a sufficient product from the local growers to supply practically all demands, both for potted stock and cut flowers, and, as there was a generally lower range in prices, there was more general buying. Lilies were especially plentiful, although the number of small plants was noticeable, comparatively few tall ones being seen.

Various Notes.

V. A. Vanicek, of the Rhode Island Nurseries, has added a tractor of the caterpillar type to his outfit, and has been giving demonstrations of its efficiency.

The meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, devoted to amateur gardeners and their problems, which was to have been held April 11, was postponed to April 25.

Miss Agnes Allen has returned from a vacation and has resumed her duties at the Oscar Schultz store. Some of the finest lilies in the city were found here for Easter.

Smith the Florist, 94 Broadway, had a number of extra clerks to assist him in the Easter rush.

The Newport Garden Association is providing for the hiring of men and the purchase and planting of trees, shrubbery and hedges at one of the large playgrounds.

The Ritchie store, at 174 Broadway, was opened for the Easter trade and was in charge of Miss Annie Ritchie, who has returned from Westerly, R. I., where she has been in the store of the Munro Co. W. H. M.

This galvanized turning union is a mighty important fitting in the band tapped lines. It is brass mounted and contains a cone shaped valve through which all the water to the lines passes. Easy to clean. No bolts or screws.

F. G. Lewis, Florist at Lockport, N. Y.

Old—But Young

You might think we mean Mr. Lewis, but we don't. It's about the youth and age of some heating pipe that we had in mind.

Or to be exact, what Mr. Lewis most courteously reminded us, ought to be put in your mind.

Along in March he wrote us a letter.

A voluntary letter written just because he thought you folks ought to know one more of the dependable points about us, that he knows.

Here is what his letter said:

"It may interest you to know that there is some piping in a greenhouse across the street from me that your firm put in for my grandfather, E. B. Lewis, sometime between 1865 and 1870.

"There have been several boilers put in and connected up to the pipes, since the first one, and also two or three houses rebuilt over the pipe. But the old pipe is still doing business just as good as the day your men fired up the first time. Even the brick foundations are still in place."

And now let us add to Mr. Lewis's comments, that when we first started in business, (which was many years ago) heating was all we did.

We used to heat 90% of all the greenhouses then built in the East

Finally one of the greenhouse building concerns came to the conclusion that they would go after some of that heating business.

So, just to return the compliment, we decided to build greenhouses as well as heat them.

So you see we have always been strong on the heating side of greenhouses.

That happened a long time ago.

Our chief heating expert, "old war horse MacArthur" as we call him, has been with us for many years.

He started in doing what that chap below is doing. He knows heating from the bottom up.

Being one of your hard headed, sound sensed Scotchmen he's not much on theory.

But he is a bear cat when it comes to facts.

Based on facts, he bases our heating.

Exactly the same high grade materials that went into the work we did for the grandfather of Mr. Lewis, we are putting in our work today.

Taxes and Jack Frost come around every so often in spite of all you can do.

Don't let Jack catch you napping on your heating this year.

Send for us now. Get what needs to be done, done.

Dear Friends:

I am indeed pleased to advise you that I have this day placed our order with your representative for two Houses, 50 x 400 feet; this order was given only after careful survey of all types and makes of Greenhouses, which speaks well of your Company. I have always been pleased with your material and service; in my estimation, there are no better Greenhouses made.

★ The Florist of Wilson, N. C.

Yesterday, a lot of us were having a get-together in the sales manager's office.

On the wall he has a map of the country with parts colored blue, green and yellow.

Blue shows where business conditions of all kinds are not as good as they ought to be. The green, where it is improving. Yellow, back to normal.

Thinking about this little chat I intended writing today, took a glance at the color of North Carolina and found it was fast greening up. Having just spent three weeks in the state, knew it was exactly so.

One day from the top of Mount Mitchell we could see into five States, and I said to my companion — "Right over in that direction is Wilson, where Star the Florist is.

This view reminds me of him. He looks at his business from an elevation, so to speak, where he can get a grasp not only on things as they are, but what's coming.

"Months and months ago, he saw that better times were not only on the way, but with North Carolina they were at the door.

"So he promptly set about having these two greenhouses, so he could grow more of his own stock.

"His present layout is one of the most well ordered, prosperous looking places in the town."

Lillium Speciosum Rubrum

"Fritz Bahr Says"

(Extract from Florists' Exchange, Issue April 22, 1922)

RUBRUM LILIES

"Did you ever plant too many? For the average florist it means just this: He can get along without rubrum Lilies, even not miss them. On the other hand, those who once get into the habit of using them usually find them such a profitable and at the same time easily handled crop that they try each year to do all possible to prolong the flowering period, which with the help of cold storage bulbs is not hard to do. Every florist with a retail trade should grow rubrum Lilies. There is nothing finer for decorative work, for the corsage or the floral design. A plant grown in a pot makes a showy plant, and if not sold as such will frequently furnish you with flowers for three weeks from the time the first flower is ready to be cut until the last bud begins to open. The further away you are located from the larger cut flower markets, the more valuable are rubrum Lilies in your own establishment, the more necessary it is for you to try and have a few plants to cut from. To plant cold storage bulbs now into 5-in. or 6-in. pots is about all the work you will have with them, outside of watering. They will grow almost anywhere in or outdoors, and bloom in late Summer. Try this for a change: Plant in 6-in. pots now; let the plants come along in a cool house. About May 15 take them outdoors and plant pot and all in a bed or coldframe, deep enough to cover the top of the pot about 4 in. When in flower use the individual blossoms, or if you plant out leave them out all Winter. Every plant will flower again the next year and better than before."

Mr. Bahr is a "live" florist grower in Highland Park, Ill., and a recognized authority on matters horticultural.

"Two Years' Operation Without a Single Repair!"

—writes the T. J. Noll Floral Co.,
Kansas City, Mo.

"The cost of operation is less than $\frac{1}{3}$ the cost of ice, to say nothing about the saving in space taken up by an ice chamber. A 6-inch space is allowed for hanging the coils on the back of the ice box. The Lipman only covers the pipes with frost and does not form any ice, so that there is only a small amount of drip. Our box is 7x8x30 feet and our machine is operated by a 2-horsepower motor. This machine holds the box at 46 degrees in any kind of weather at a cost of from \$15 to \$25 per month. Being strictly automatic, the machine needs no attention except oiling occasionally."

How to make a bigger net profit on flowers—

Stop using ice—it's too expensive and unreliable. Change to the dependable, crisp cold of Lipman Automatic refrigeration—bathe your blossoms in a current of brisk air that keeps them perfectly fresh for months. No more big ice bills—no losses from wilted flowers—and the Lipman pays for itself and earns a 50% profit over the use of ice! A postcard request brings a Lipman Refrigerating Engineer to see how much your net profit can be increased.

No obligation—write now—with big plants in full bloom for Thanksgiving and Christmas are assured with our December sown Primula Obconica plants, now ready from 2-inch pots, at $7.50 per 100, any quantity and any color.

These December sown plants, grown on in pots or planted out, will make plants for 7 and 8-inch pots and be in full bloom in November, with 10-15 flower stems, and will demand a good price for the holidays, when the getting is easy.

Later sown plants, as usually offered, cannot be grown to the same size that early. They will be ready in June at the old price, $6.00 per 100, $55.00 per 1000; orders booked now.

Primula Chinensis and Malacoides will also be ready in June at the old prices.

HYDRANGEAS

Otaksa and a complete collection of French varieties, now ready from 2¼-inch pots for growing on, winter propagation, $7.00 and $8.00 per 100; July propagation, the ones for big plants, $10.00 per 100. Get our list. Grow your own Hydrangeas, you can do it and save money in fall. $10.00 spent now will buy as many plants as $40.00 in fall.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

HOW FLORISTS KEEP BOOKS

No department of the average florist's business has received so little attention, in proportion to his progress in other respects, as the bookkeeping. In its endeavor to promote better business methods, The Review presents here a description of one firm's accounting methods, for readers' study.

By ROBERT E. MAPES.

supplies all the information necessary. It is reproduced on this page. These are put up in pads of fifty each, with duplicate copies and a sheet of carbon to each pad. If the order is paid for, both copies are stamped "paid," and the duplicate is given the customer as a receipt. The original is sent to the office by means of a cash conveyor, where the card is written and attached. From there it is sent to the workroom for execution. In the case of a charge order, both copies are sent to the office, where the duplicate is placed on file, and the original is sent from there to the workroom with card attached after being

O.K.'d by the credit man. At the close of the day the original orders that have been filled are taken from the workroom to the office, where the paid orders are filed on a paid-order file. The charge orders are classified and arranged in alphabetical order and totaled on the adding machine. The total is entered to the credit of sales and charged to the Accounts Receivable controlling account through special columns in the cash journal. The charge tickets are then numbered and posted direct to the customers' ledgers, after which they are filed in numerical order on a file designed to hold a month's business. The duplicates of the charge orders are filed in an alphabetical file and at the end of the month are sent to the customers as statements. In the event the customer's account shows a balance from the preceding month or the customer has made two or more purchases during the current month, a regular statement is made and the invoices are attached. We find this method a great help in getting out our statements at the end of the month, and it also supplies the customer with an itemized invoice showing who made the purchases and where they were delivered. In the case of agents', F. T. D. or wholesale orders, the duplicates are mailed at once to the customer and a regular statement is made at the end of the month showing only the dates and amounts of items purchased.

Customers' Ledgers.

We divide our customers' ledgers into four groups, as follows: Local or retail, agents, F. T. D., wholesale accounts. We use ordinary loose-leaf ledgers of uniform size, which work practically the same as the card system, except that we do not always remove the sheets as soon as the accounts are closed. At regular intervals we remove closed accounts that have not been active for some time and file in a transfer file. We find it is a waste of time to transfer an account that we have reason to believe will be active again soon. We only put one account on each page.

Collections.

We make a receipt in triplicate for all money received on account. The original is given the customer, the triplicate is VERY business, whether it be a personal enterprise, a partnership or a corporation, must have some method of keeping accounts; some means of arriving at what the expenses are and the amount of gain or loss for a given period. The latter cannot be done intelligently until proper accounts have been set up and all financial transactions systematically recorded.

Florists may well feel proud of the wonderful progress made in floriculture during the last few years. The many new productions in all kinds of flowers and plants may well be classed as wonderful. The Society of American Florists, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and all the various other organizations, aided by the national publicity campaign and backed by real service on the part of the individual florists, have placed our business on a high plane, but have our methods of keeping accounts maintained pace with these great developments?

Many florists have made marked improvements in their accounting systems, but, I dare say, there are yet many comparatively progressive florists who cling to the old, haphazard methods of handling this important part of their business and are slow to apply more up-to-date methods.

A free discussion of this subject would no doubt be of much interest and would prove beneficial to the florist who thinks he has a good system, as well as the fellow who has given but little attention to his books.

In placing before the readers of The Review the system operated by Baum's Home of Flowers, of Knoxville, Tenn., I do not assert that it is the best system in use or that it should be necessarily adopted by other florists. I merely present it for what it is worth, and if anyone has something better, we shall be glad to hear from him. We are always glad to change for something better.

placed in the cash drawer with the money, while the duplicate is left in the receipt book for reference in case the triplicate copy is lost. At the close of the day's business the triplicate receipts are classified, arranged in alphabetical order and totaled on the adding machine; the total should equal the amount of money in the cash drawer. This total is entered in the cash journal to the debit of cash and credited to the Accounts Receivable controlling account through the special column. The receipts are then copied in the collection journal, which is subsidiary to the cash journal, after which they are ready to be posted to the credit of the corresponding accounts in the customer's ledgers.

Accounts Payable.

We do not make any record of the amounts we owe our creditors until we pay these obligations, except to keep the invoices carefully filed in a special alphabetical file provided for that purpose. We formerly entered each invoice as it came in, but found that this practice entailed a great deal of bookkeeping, and that the information it furnished was not worth the effort. We have considered the voucher system as applied to accounts payable, but cannot see that it would prove beneficial to our business. Of course, it is necessary to enter these accounts at the end of the year in order to determine the exact status of the business, but after our books are closed we make a journal entry reversing these entries and charge these items direct to the account affected when we pay them.

Cash Journal.

We handle all our transactions through a 30-column cash journal, using a double column for the accounts having frequent debits and credits, and single columns for expense accounts which rarely have a credit. These columns are arranged as follows: Cash; General Ledger; Commissions; Accounts Receivable; Interest and Discount; Purchases; Sales; Greenhouses; Farm; Store; Office; Postage; Delivery; Freight, Express and Parcel Post; Payrolls; Greenhouse Repairs; Ice, Heat, Lights and Water; Advertising; Dues; Telephone and Telegraph; Savings. The Cash column is debited with all money received and credited with all money paid out, whether by cash or check. The General Ledger column takes care of all accounts not provided for by the other columns and is referred to sometimes as the Sundry column. The column for Commissions is charged with all commissions allowed agents and F. T. D. members and credited with all commissions deducted when paying F. T. D. bills. The Accounts Receivable column is debited with all items that are to be charged on the customers' ledgers and credited with all items that are to be credited on these ledgers. At the end of each month the totals are posted to the Accounts Receivable controlling account, the balance of which should correspond with the amount on the customers' ledgers. The column for Interest and Discount is charged with all interest paid on borrowed money and discounts allowed on wholesale accounts, and credited with all interest received on notes receivable and discounts taken for the prompt payment of accounts. The Purchase column is charged with all merchandise purchases, such as cut flowers, ribbons, designs, boxes, etc., and credited with all goods returned and rebates allowed us. The Sales column is charged with all refunds and adjustments made by us to our customers and is credited with all sales, whether cash or charge. Through the Greenhouse column we charge all the expenses paid for the greenhouses, such as payrolls, coal, electric power, plants, bulbs, seeds, etc. We credit this account with all stock furnished the store, figured at the average wholesale market price. The Farm column is charged with all expense items paid for the farm and is likewise credited with all stock furnished the store at a reasonable wholesale price. The Store column is charged with all incidental items that cannot be otherwise classified. The Office column is charged with all office expenses, such as stationery, pens, pencils, ink, ledger sheets, etc. The Postage column is charged with all straight postage on correspondence and statements sent out. The Delivery column is charged with all truck repairs and expenses. The column for Freight, Express and Parcel Post is charged with all money paid out for these items, whether incoming or outgoing, except the transportation charges on items purchased for the farm and greenhouses, which are charged to these accounts. All salaries and wages paid at the store are charged to Payrolls. All repairs to greenhouse buildings and heating equipment are charged to Greenhouse Repairs, and the total is charged against the reserve for depreciation at the end of the year. All money paid for Ice, Heat, Lights and Water at the store is charged to this account. All money paid for advertising and for postage, stationery, etc., used in direct-by-mail advertising is charged to Advertising. All money paid for dues in business organizations, whether local, state or national, is charged to Dues. Money paid for telephone and telegraph service is charged to Telephone and Telegraph Expense. We have come to the conclusion that it is just as essential for a business concern to have a savings account as it is for an individual, and for this reason we make regular uniform weekly deposits in a Savings account. We find this a good way to prepare for the retirement of a note or any other obligation.

Balance Sheet.

Table No. 1 shows the form of our balance sheet, with fictitious figures supplied. It is highly possible that some of these figures are out of proportion, but it is not so much the figures that we are concerned about. However, the exhibit would not be so clear without the use of some figures.

they will presumably be collected or converted into cash.

Cash on Hand represents the money in cash drawer or safe at the time books were closed.

Petty Cash we operate under the imprest system, keeping in the cash drawer at all times in actual cash, or proper receipts or cash tickets, the specific sum called for by the Petty Cash fund account in the general ledger. This cash is used for making change; however, small expense items are paid from it during the day to save writing so many checks, but the account is reimbursed at the beginning of a new day.

Bank Balance represents the amount to the credit of our account at the bank, according to our books.

Savings represents the amount to our credit in our Savings account.

Accounts Receivable represents the amount due us from our customers. Note that these are separated into four classes, retail, agents, F. T. D. and wholesale.

Bills Receivable represents the amount due us from customers or others for which we hold notes due on a specific date.

Stocks and Bonds represents the stock held in other enterprises and Liberty bonds, etc., on hand.

Merchandise Inventory represents the cost value of the merchandise and supplies in stock at the end of the period; such as ribbons, chiffons, baskets, prepared stock, designs, shipping boxes, etc.

Growing Assets.

Farm Inventory represents the value of growing crops at the farm, such as gladioli, lilies, cannas, dahlias, asters, etc. We close our year May 31, which makes it rather difficult to place a valuation on growing crops. It has been our custom to list such items at the value of the bulbs and seed when planted, without taking into consideration the expense incurred in growing the crop up to this time. This method is consistent when practiced in the same manner each year.

Greenhouse Inventory represents the value of greenhouse stock at the close of the period, taken according to what such stock would sell for on the wholesale market.

Fixed Assets.

Real Estate and Greenhouses represents the cost or fixed value of land, buildings and greenhouses.

Auto Trucks represents the cost price of all delivery and drayage equipment used in connection with the business.

Furniture and Fixtures represents the cost of all store furniture and equipment, such as desks, show cases, refrigerators, wall cases, work tables, files, etc.

Farm Equipment represents the cost of live stock, machinery and equipment used at the farm.

Depreciation Reserve represents the amount charged off for depreciation from time to time. We charge off twenty-five per cent on the cost of delivery trucks and equipment, and ten per cent on the cost of buildings, greenhouses, furniture and fixtures and farm equipment. This amount deducted from the cost price of these items gives the present or depreciated value.

Deferred Assets.

Remodeling Store represents an item of expense covering an improvement to the interior of the store to last for several years, the entire cost of which it was not permissible to charge against one year's business.

Office Supplies Inventory represents the unused office supplies on hand.

Advertising Inventory represents unused advertising, such as direct-by-mail inserts, price list stock, etc.

Greenhouse Coal represents the coal

The gross profit earned in any business is the amount by which the proceeds of selling, whether realized in cash, accounts receivable or other assets, exceed the cost of acquiring or producing the articles dealt in.

The net profit is the amount by which the gross profit exceeds all the expenses incurred in producing the gross profit.

From our total income through sales and commissions we deduct the cost of merchandise sold, which gives us the gross profit for the year. From the gross profit we deduct our overhead expenses, which leave the net profit for the year.

Cost of Goods Sold.

To arrive at the cost of goods sold, it is necessary to have the inventory at the beginning of the period, to this add the purchases for the year and deduct therefrom the inventory at the close of the period. How this is done appears in Table No. 3. In our purchases for the year we include the stock received from the farm and greenhouses at prevailing wholesale prices. Then it is necessary for us to take into consideration the cost of production at the farm and greenhouses, which is arrived at by adding to the inventories at the beginning of the period the expense of operation and the depreciation on buildings and equipment. From this sum deduct the inventories at the end of the period, which gives the net cost of operation. This sum, less stock furnished the store and included in purchases, gives the deficit, which is added to the cost of sales. Under this method, had the farm and greenhouses showed an earning, the cost of sales would have been reduced. Express, freight and parcel post on merchandise purchased is chargeable to the cost of goods sold.

Form of Check Used.

While we do not claim to have anything extraordinary in the way of an accounting system, we do believe that we use a check that is better than the average. It is shown on page 27. The space provided for invoice makes it possible to include in the check a complete record of the items paid. The space for the name and address of the payee fits a No. 10 window envelope, or a No. 6 3/4 envelope when folded, which saves us the time of addressing an envelope for checks that are to be sent through the mail.

We believe it is an improvement over the ordinary check because it permits of more information, and we use it in preference to the regular form of voucher check because it furnishes the same information in a more simple and compact form.

Some have criticized the high coloring and the use of the garland of flowers in connection with the "Say It with Flowers" slogan, but these are merely matters of fancy on the part of our manager and the printer, and have nothing to do with the check's value as a record. We have also had some quite favorable comment on this check.

In conclusion I would say that the plainest and simplest system that will adequately take care of all the details and transactions of a business is the one to be sought. Too much system and red tape have a tendency to reduce efficiency and gnaw at the profits of a business and are as much to be avoided as the lack of sufficient system.

CHANCE FOR CO-OPERATION.

Banks are a good place to hold flower shows. The notable displays frequently made at bank openings have impressed this fact upon many florists and some bankers. It has reached the action point in Indianapolis, where the Bankers' Trust Co. has announced an amateur flower show to be held this summer in its lobby. Cash prizes and ribbons are to be awarded in eight classes. Separate exhibitions are to be held, the dates to be announced later. No entry fee is charged, and the contest is open to every amateur flower grower in Marion county, Ind. The bank is coöperating in this fashion with the local fire prevention bureau's "Let's Clean 'Er Up" campaign.

Early announcement is made so that the amateurs of Indianapolis and vicinity may begin their gardens early and produce flowers of a prize-winning character. Particulars concerning the contest were given in a page of advertising in the Indianapolis News, April 13. The center of the page was occupied by the notice of the Bankers' Trust Co., while surrounding it were the advertisements of seed houses, nurserymen, hardware dealers and florists, who offered the wherewithal to produce prize-winning flowers.

The event is regarded as one which will be of distinct value to the florists' business in Indianapolis, and the trade there will give the bank their best coöperation. They realize that annual events of this character would greatly stimulate the interest in, and without a doubt the purchase of, flowers in summer and winter.

Each florist has received a letter from Howard C. Binkley, president of the

A CHECK ON

HOLSTON NATIONAL BANK

KNOXVILLE TENNESSEE.

We are members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and can deliver flowers on short notice to all parts of the United States and Canada.

Here Is a Check That Is a Part of a Florist's Bookkeeping Record.

Bankers' Trust Co., inviting his coöperation. The letter reads:

Your attention is invited to the amateur flower show we propose holding this summer in our bank lobby, which we hope will encourage the culture of flowers by individual householders in Indianapolis.

Since the distribution of our announcement circulars at the national flower show, the interest manifested indicates that the several exhibitions will be of unusual importance in the community life of the city, especially in view of the "Let's Clean 'Er Up" campaign of the Chamber of Commerce.

Rules to govern the contest are being prepared by competent horticulturists, and judges will be selected to make the awards, which will consist of cash prizes.

Mention of these events to amateur flower gardeners of your acquaintance will be appreciated. Bulletins will be issued and mailed to interested parties. These will announce the date and conditions of the various exhibitions.

SPRING IS HERE.

Many florists might find profit in following the example of some of their fellows in developing a department of home planting at this season of the year. One means of doing this is illustrated by the Potter Floral Co., El Paso, Tex., which has just issued a small 4-page leaflet as an advance price list of bedding plants, vines, hedge plants and rose bushes. Preceding the price list are two brief paragraphs of explanation:

"Your home may have cost thousands of dollars—it may be simple and unpretentious, but a few flowers, especially selected, will not only beautify it, but give it individuality and endear it to you and the whole community.

"We hope that this booklet will be of real value to you and that we may serve you in selecting plants, shrubs and flowers for planting this spring."

Following this are lists of bedding plants and vines, with prices for one and for a dozen. Vegetable plants are also quoted, at dozen prices. Eight varieties of hedge plants are named and prices quoted. Some rose bushes at from $1 to $1.50 are mentioned. A number of trees are noted as suitable for planting in El Paso, the price being given as $1 to $1.25 per inch diameter.

Many a home owner needs only a suggestion to start him into action at this time of year. He may be successful with a garden which he undertakes with instructions obtained from a catalogue, but he will be far more certain of seeing results of his labor such as will bring real enjoyment if he has the assistance and advice of his local florist. If the florist is able to give this, he can sell many more hedge plants, shrubs and trees than a nurseryman's agent. In so doing he will make a profit for himself, increase the business of the nurseryman and improve the appearance of his community.

WARD AT EUREKA.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., in announcing the purchase of the entire stock and equipment of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., recently liquidated by court order, states that the California concern will be operated as a branch of the eastern establishment and the principal products will be azaleas and Rhododendron Pink Pearl for forcing purposes. A large production of ponticum stocks for grafting rhododendron is also contemplated, as the climate of that part of California is admirably suited to the growing of that plant.

As announced in The Review last week, W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, Cal., at one time sales manager of the defunct concern, will have the sales agency. D. S. Ward, president of the company, who is now in Eureka, expects to devote a great part of his time to the management of the Eureka place, while R. T. Brown, vice-president, will continue to look after the interests of the company at Queens, N. Y.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting.

Only a small number of members were present at the meeting at Indianapolis, Ind., March 27, but much important business was transacted. In the absence of the secretary, J. Horace McFarland announced the membership to be 2,007 to date, this being several hundred ahead of the membership at the same time last year. He spoke at length concerning the membership campaign and emphasized the necessity of more members for the society, if it is to be run on a self-sustaining basis.

Mr. McFarland also spoke of the proposed Washington show garden in Potomac park, for which plans have been drawn by Frederick Law Olmstead, and of the proposed distribution of the first of Dr. Van Fleet's new roses, Mary Wallace.

The following persons were unanimously elected to honorary membership for life: Dr. Robert Huey, for a lifetime spent in advancing rose growing and as a token of appreciation of his work; Mrs. Aaron Ward, as an appreciation of the esteem in which she is held by the society; W. S. Snyder, as a token of appreciation of legal services gratuitously rendered in the matter of securing the incorporation of the society; M. Pernet Ducher, as a token of appreciation of his lifelong work in breeding roses; Charles Siret, president of the French Rose Society, as a token of friendship between the two societies, and Courtney Page, secretary of the National Rose Society, England, as a token of friendship between the two societies.

Dr. Beal spoke of the test gardens, and S. S. Pennock of the proposed Portland trip in June, 1923.

Many of the members spoke of the valuable work of Dr. Van Fleet, which should be commemorated by the society in some substantial way, and the president was directed to appoint a committee to find suitable means of expressing the appreciation of this society for the work of this great man and by this appreciation to encourage other rose breeders to follow in his footsteps.

Other Business.

There was a long discussion over the question of the sale of roses by department stores. Because of their poor condition resulting from ignorance and neglect, it was felt that people purchasing such roses would be discouraged from rose growing. No official action was taken by the society, because the occasion seemed to call for educating the amateur to buy good plants instead of bad ones.

A number of members spoke highly of the work of the society in the past few years, but there was voiced a desire for larger membership.

The question of coöperation with local flower shows was discussed and it was recommended that the society do everything possible to encourage such shows. After some discussion it was decided that, as the newly elected officers would not assume office until January, 1923, the election should be postponed until a later meeting, sometime during the year when a larger number of members might be present. In this connection it was voted that a nominating committee be appointed by the president, this committee to present names for officers and directors, but that this should not prevent additional nominations from the floor at the general meeting.

The officers and members of the society desire to thank Mr. Nicholas for his work in securing a booth for the Rose Society at the national flower show.

The meeting was then adjourned until later in the season, the time and place to be determined by the executive committee.

John C. Wister, Sec'y.

ASPARAGUS FALCATUS.

A plant of the asparagus family which is particularly well adapted to decorative work and which is characterized by F. W. Fletcher, Orlando, Fla., as a "useful addition to the asparagus family," is Asparagus falcatus. This plant is one of the climbing varieties and is a quick, strong grower. One 3-year-old specimen has been known to cover more than 100 square feet of surface. The dark green, lustrous foliage stands up well in floral work and it is as good a shipper as A. plumosus. It came to Florida from Natal. The plant is probably of a too rampant growth for general culture under glass, but it is well adapted to outdoor growth. Grown in Florida and shipped north, the plant should prove valuable in high-class floral arrangements and the vines, from twelve to twenty-five feet in length, would be especially new and striking in large decorative work.

The plant is not extensively cultivated in the south, and most of the stock appears to be concentrated in the hands of a few growers. Reasoner Bros., proprietors of the Royal Palm Nurseries, Oneco, Fla., state that they have had this plant in use in their florists' department for several years, and both the long sprays for basket work and the shorter terminal branches for the edging of designs have proved themselves most satisfactory.

origin, and for this reason I have introduced them under the name of Marinelli carnations."

CARNATION STEM-ROT.

Some of my carnations are affected with stem-rot. I have already lost about 500 young plants. The stems of the plants rot off where they emerge from the soil and the plants die. How can this trouble be overcome or checked?

F. F. C.—Ill.

This carnation stem-rot is difficult to combat. It is suggested that, inasmuch as you will be planting your young carnations in the field shortly, you will examine the stem of each plant carefully and save only those which appear healthy. Any stem that appears discolored or has splits in the bark should be discarded. Any rupture in the bark of the stem will allow the fungus to enter and, sooner or later, destroy the plant. Grow your plants cool and water carefully, but not too sparingly. Set the plants firmly when planting in the field, but do not set too deep in the ground. There is really no cure for a plant that shows the effects of stem-rot, as the plant is usually too far gone by the time its presence is manifested to permit a cure. We have always considered the Bordeaux mixture and similar preparations effective in combating this fungus, but that theory seems to be discounted by some of our leading scientists.

SEEDLING CARNATIONS.

I am sending you a carnation flower from a seedling which we grew two years ago. Please examine this flower and tell me whether or not you know of a variety of carnation which resembles this one. It is a prolific bloomer and the best color and grower among the seedlings.

A. F. H.—Ia.

The bloom submitted was too badly withered to give any idea as to its general appearance. We could see that it was pink and that was all. If it looks good to you, grow a number of plants next year and then bring a few blooms to one of the exhibitions, to compare them with existing varieties.

A. F. J. Baur.

PANSIES ROT.

Sometimes during a warm, moist spell of weather the blooms of my pansies will rot from, apparently, excess of moisture. I grow an acre of them. Is there a remedy for this? Would brushing off the moisture help?

C. A. P.—Me.

This trouble is probably caused by using fertilizer too rich in ammonia. This will cause a soft growth. Brushing the moisture off would do more harm than good.

Charles Frost.

HOW TRUE TO COLOR?

Can you tell us what percentage of seedlings of Delphinium Bellamosa should come dark blue in color?

W. G. P.—Cal.

We find that Delphinium Bellamosa will come about ninety-five to ninety-eight per cent true to color.

LARGE-FLOWERING CARNATIONS.

Marinelli Describes Origin.

So many diverse statements have appeared concerning large-flowering carnations of the remontant type in this country that some remarks by H. B. Marinelli, originator of several well-known varieties of the type, may prove enlightening.

"Large-flowering carnations," he states, "have been traced back, in French horticultural literature, as far as 1675. They were grown then near Paris, in Amiens, Compiègne, etc., and created at that time a lot of comment. It has not been possible to follow their trail exactly until 1857, when Mr. Laine obtained Souvenir de la Malmaison. Since then this type has undergone enormous changes by recrossing, and enormous progress has been made in Europe. France doubtless leads as far as types, colors and number of varieties are concerned.

"In 1914," says Mr. Marinelli, "I started my hybridizing in New Jersey at the point where Europe stood at its best at that time, as far as any of the large-flowering type of carnations was concerned, and used over 300 of the then best existing varieties as a foundation to work upon. The result was a huge flower, forming a perfect ball, with all its petals firmly established at their base (and not falling like a split), on stems between eighteen and twenty-four inches long and strong enough to give the flower a graceful bend; free from disease, prolific in bloom, an easy grower, having lasting and shipping qualities and fragrance for commercial purposes.

"In order to make sure that I was not mistaken in this success, in 1919 I showed and sold blooms at 50 cents each, wholesale, in New York to one store only, for a period of four months. The result was a revelation. In view of this impression created, I did not hesitate to build immediately additional greenhouses. In 1920 I showed my carnations for the first time at the international flower show, in New York, at the Grand Central Palace. There the success was repeated. In appreciation of my endeavor and work, I was awarded a gold medal and a certificate of merit. Before receiving any award at all, I set my price and sold cut flowers at 50 cents each wholesale and $12 per dozen retail. The fact that Laddie, which was most heavily advertised and put on the market the same year, was sold at from 5 to 20 cents per flower, is more than sufficient proof of the commercial value of my then unknown carnation.

"That the Marinelli carnations are not shown more frequently is simply due to the fact that I have sold my rooted cuttings so far, with a few exceptions, to the private trade only and in small quantities. Besides, there is yet no class established in carnation exhibitions for any large-flowering carnation, as I have been the only grower and therefore without competition, except from the persons to whom I have sold my cuttings.

Not All Malmaisons.

"At the time of my recent exhibits at the flower shows in New York and Indianapolis, the general impression seemed to gain ground that all my carnations were Malmaisons, which is not quite correct. Merveille Française has some of the Malmaison blood in its type, but was perfected, grown and cultivated in Park Ridge, N. J. The same is true about my other varieties, such as Roger Marinelli, Sarah Bernhardt, Olga Petrova and from ten to fifteen other varieties which I have still under observation and are not named as yet. All have originated from and are subvarieties of Merveille Française. Le Miracle is not of this type, but is a hybrid, like many others on which I am still experimenting. It would therefore be misleading and erroneous to claim that all these large-flowering varieties are of Malmaison

HERE'S A GREAT CHANCE

AMERICAN LEGION HELPS.

To Promote Mothers' Day.

In their efforts to make Mothers' day another Easter, so far as sales of flowers and plants are concerned, florists have this year as powerful a body supporting them as could be found in the country for this purpose, and the co-operation offered the trade is complete.

The American Legion and its woman's auxiliary are urging the observance of Mothers' day both nationally and locally. They are arranging programs in honor of the day and are urging not only their members, but the public as well, to honor home ties by wearing flowers and sending some to mother, Sunday, May 14.

These two organizations, whose membership totals more than a million, have gone even farther than that in assisting the trade. On this page will be seen a specimen advertisement, drawn up by the officers of the American Legion, which may be used by florists in their local newspapers to urge the public to observe Mothers' day. The only stipulation that is made by the American Legion is that no florist's name nor the name of any florists' organization be affixed to or used in connection with the advertisement, lest the Legion be open to the charge of assisting in commercializing this day.

Posters and Matrices Free.

A matrix or electrotpe of the advertisement will be furnished in the same size as it is reproduced on this page, if a florist desires, or it may be had in 3-column instead of 2-column width. The publicity committee of the Society of American Florists has authorized the distribution of these matrices and electrotypes by H. V. Swenson, 225 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, as incidental to the national publicity campaign. Every florist can also obtain, through the same channel, from one to five large window posters bearing the same reading matter. In connection with this also goes the caution that no name or any other material be added to the poster so as to commercialize it.

To call the attention of florists to this opportunity for promoting the use of flowers on Mothers' day, the publicity committee of the S. A. F. has sent out a circular, in which it is truly said: "Never before in the history of the flower business have the florists been given the opportunity for such genuine and wholesome coöperation. The million members of the American Legion are observing Mothers' day for what it means. They have sought the wholesome coöperation of the florists of the country because they recognize the meaning of flowers in the proper observance of this day. Every florist is urged to get back of this movement."

How to Coöperate.

The circular advises the following methods of coöperation among florists:

"The best method to follow, we believe, would be for all the florists in a city to get together and place and pay for the space for the Legion advertisement collectively. Then individual florists can run advertisements of their own choice in the same issue of the paper, if they wish. The advertisement, of course, can be repeated as many days as desired and in several papers.

"Please unite on this at once and send your blanket request at the earliest date possible.

"One poster will be mailed each F. T. D. member immediately when printed, without his request. This is done for the reason that it is the only list of retailers available. Send for more posters for distribution to non-members, and same will be sent at once. If more than one poster is desired, it will be mailed on request."

Origin of Idea.

The idea of coöperation between the two national organizations for the promotion of Mothers' day had its active impulse at the national flower show at Indianapolis, when George Asmus, of Chicago, held a conversation with James E. Darst, acting for the national adjutant of the American Legion. The following letter, from the latter to the former, explains the Legion's coöperation with florists:

Pursuant to our conversation in Indianapolis March 31, I am submitting specimen of advertising copy to be used by the Society of American Florists in its campaign preceding Mothers' day, Sunday, May 14.

You will remember that I told you that the American Legion and the woman's auxiliary planned to unite in national, as well as local, observance of Mothers' day. The Legion has more than 11,000 posts in this country and the auxiliary approximately 3,500, a combined membership of well over a million. Since talking with you I have conferred with the national commander and the other national officers, and they approve the plan of submitting copy for use by your organization.

As I explained, this informal agreement is in no sense an alliance between our organizations, nor is it to be construed as an endorsement by the Legion of the Society of American Florists; however, we happen to be working toward the same end on this occasion, the observance of Mothers' day, and coöperation can be mutually beneficial.

In the observance of the day, the woman's auxiliary, composed of mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of Legion men, will be in charge and will be supported and backed by the Legion, locally and nationally. The auxiliary is obtaining, or has obtained, the coöperation of practically every civic organization and intends to make the observance complete and successful. The Legion is playing the role of assistant in this one instance and is giving the auxiliary full credit. Of course, the full strength of the Legion will be back of the movement. You will note that in the advertising copy I have stressed the name of the auxiliary rather than that of the Legion.

It seems to us at national headquarters that there should be a chance for similar coöperation between the Legion and the florists on several other national holidays, chiefly Memorial day and Armistice day.

It is our understanding that the copy hereby furnished will be used by your national publicity organization in newspapers, window cards and other forms of advertising, as well as those national magazines that you will be able to catch.

Caution!

The publicity committee of the S. A. F. stresses this caution:

"The announcement advertisement of the American Legion is for general publicity purposes only. In no way must the generosity and confidence of the American Legion be abused by inserting a name, or group of florists' names, at the bottom of, or in connection with, the advertisement. It would be poor business to do so anyway. The general publicity is worth every cent of the cost of space used."

Send for your poster and your matrix, and, in the words of the circular, "Tell every florist you see about this plan. The more posters and advertisements used, the greater the attention that will be given Mothers' day." For the posters and advertisement matrices or electrotypes, address H. V. Swenson, 225 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

CAPE JASMINES ARE COMING.

Grown at Alvin, Tex.

Ere long will begin the annual busy season of the town of Alvin, Tex., when the shipments of cape jasmines to all parts of the north fill trucks and cars. These flowers are particularly in demand at Memorial day, but their use is not limited to that occasion. A dozen or so firms do an extensive business in them at Alvin and in the vicinity. During the next month all the available population will be employed by these concerns. The details of this enterprise, so extensive there, may be of interest to those not familiar with the crop; some information regarding the cultivation of the plants and the handling of the flowers is supplied by W. L. Heller, manager of the Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co.

The plants are started from cuttings, which are cut about seven inches long and set in the nursery row about six inches apart. They are hard to start, and great care must be given them for the first six months. The soil must not be allowed to bake or form a crust around them, and at the same time the cuttings must not be moved; to do so would prevent them from setting roots, a process which requires from four to six months.

After remaining in the nursery row for two years they are ready to be set in the orchard. If they start growth promptly after the transplanting, a light pick of buds may be obtained the second season thereafter, or about sixteen months after transplanting. The third, fourth and fifth season is when the plants are in their prime; after the fifth season, if the plants are not properly pruned, the growth becomes slow, and the result is small buds of an inferior quality. However, if the plants are scientifically pruned and fertilized, their useful life can be prolonged for a number of years.

Picking, Packing and Shipping.

The buds are picked just as they begin to unroll and show white seams at the edges of the petals. They are picked into baskets and carried to the packing house, where they are placed on the grading table and sprinkled. They are then graded according to the length of stem, and placed on the counting table. Here they are counted, twenty-five to the bundle, and wrapped tightly in paper to prevent their opening. They are then passed on to the water, or dipping, division, where the bundles are held under water till all air is forced out of the bundle. They are then drained and are passed on to the packing division, which is the most important part in the whole operation. Here is where one must strongly emphasize the fact that it must be done right or not at all. If packed right, the buds can remain in transit for a week and arrive at destination in as fresh condition as when first packed. A great many buds are shipped into the New England states and even into Canada with perfect success.

Handling Buds When Received.

The proper method of handling the buds after a long trip is to lift the packages out and hold them in cool water until all air is forced out of the bundle. Then replace the packages in the case and store them in dry storage at about 40 degrees' temperature. The buds will remain in good condition for a number of days.

There is no question that the cape jasmine is one of the best of flowers for general floral work, for they contain four of the essential requirements; they supply an abundance of wonderful fragrance; the flower is a beautiful, spotless white; the leaves supply the green to go with the flowers; their lasting qualities are such as few, if any other, flowers can equal.

On this page is a view showing the truck and trailer loaded with cape jasmine buds ready to start for the express office from the packing house of the Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co. Some of the packing force is in the foreground.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The 1921 Proceedings.

The volume of the 1921 proceedings has been delayed in publication through the great activities of the society, due to the national flower show and other matters. The volume is now in press, and will be mailed in about two weeks to all members. The volume will contain an up-to-date list of all members in good standing and, if any members' dues accounts do not bring them into the good standing list, publication of their names in that list is still possible if they will make immediate remittance to the secretary. It is some time since such a list has been published, and, surely, it is an advantage to have a place in it; so this section of the book is being kept open to the last minute.

Kansas City Convention.

The dates for the Kansas City convention are near at hand—August 15, 16 and 17. A preliminary plan covering the trade exhibition section has been prepared, but not for reservation purposes. The final plan will be settled as soon after May 1 as possible, and all copies for distribution mailed at one time, so that all prospective exhibitors will be treated alike in the matter of choice of location. The exhibition building is well suited to the purposes of our exhibition and all locations are good, but selections will be booked on the order of first come first served.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The publicity campaign continues in active progress and a batch of subscriptions will be reported at the end of the present month.

The value of our slogan was well demonstrated in the April 15 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, which used the slogan as a subhead to one of its most amusing stories. It might be well to remember that a page in this wonderful publication costs in the neighborhood of $6,000.

Proof sheets of the advertisements to be used in the summer months, as authorized by the publicity committee at its Indianapolis meeting, will shortly be mailed to all subscribers.

GROWERS AT HELM

A. F. A. MAKES CHANGE.

Growers Take the Reins.

The regular meeting night of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, Thursday, April 20, was occupied by a meeting of the Allied Florists' Association, at the Randolph hotel, Chicago, to make the changes in the constitution and by-laws necessary to permit the growers, in conjunction with the wholesalers, to assume control of the local cooperative advertising campaign which has previously been carried on by the Allied Florists' Association as representing retailers, growers and wholesalers. Probably because of the change, retailers were absent, including the president of the Allied Florists' Association. Secretary H. V. Swenson, therefore, called the meeting to order and asked that a chairman pro-tem. be nominated. Peter Pearson was the choice of the assemblage.

Careful consideration was given to the constitution and by-laws in their changed form. Secretary Swenson read the revised sections and then Otto Amling read the new documents in their entirety. The revisions were carried unanimously, a total vote of 22, including proxies, being counted in their behalf. The new provisions set the number of directors at nine, without stating from which branches of the trade they shall be elected. For the present, it is understood that the wholesalers are to have three representatives and the growers six. The meeting voted to declare elected the three names proposed by the wholesalers' association at a meeting which will be held within a week's time. This action was taken at the suggestion of the two wholesale members of the present board of directors who were in attendance, Paul Klingsporn and Eric Johnson.

Directors Elected.

In considering nominations for the six grower members of the board, it was discovered that out of the six names proposed by the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago at its last meeting, that of George Harrer had been withdrawn, because he had no longer business connection with the trade. The other five names were declared up for election—August Poehlmann, Peter Pearson, Otto Amling, A. H. Schneider and Henry Wehrman—and nominations were asked for the place of George Harrer. The names of Paul Weiss and Fred Stielow were proposed. Ballots were distributed, and it was announced that the two names receiving the highest number of votes would be declared elected for the 3-year term, the two receiving the next highest number, to the 2-year term, and the two next highest, to the 1-year term. The first ballot resulted in two ties and thereupon ballots were distributed to those who held proxies. The total vote then counted by the tellers, Fred Lautenschlager, James Morton and F. R. Kilner, resulted as follows: Peter Pearson, 22; August Poehlmann, 21; Otto Amling, 20; Henry Wehrman, 20; Fred Stielow, 18; A. H. Schneider, 12; Paul Weiss, 10; Joseph Kohout, 5, and Henry Neve, 1. Thereupon Peter Pearson and August Poehlmann were declared elected directors for a term of three years, Otto Amling and Henry Wehrman for two years, and Fred Stielow and A. H. Schneider for one year.

Inasmuch as the month of May begins on a Monday, it was voted to begin the new regime May 1. On that date an assessment of one per cent will be deducted from growers' returns by the wholesalers and wholesalers themselves will contribute one per cent of their commissions.

Exhibits.

A splendid vase of commercial blooms of Rose America stood on the speakers' table, from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind. Earl H. Mann, general manager of the company, was present and was called upon to address the members. He was tendered a vote of thanks for the exhibit, which enabled the numerous rose growers present to become better acquainted with the many good qualities of this new rose, concerning which so many laudatory comments have been made.

On the speakers' table, also, were vases containing seventeen distinct varieties of sweet peas from the greenhouses of George J. Ball, Glen Ellyn. Three of these were new varieties and were therefore judged by a committee, consisting of Henry Wehrman, A. H. Schneider and Henry Neve. No. 56, a light pink seedling of Mr. Ball's, received a certificate of merit, as did Grenadier, a remarkably fine crimson on long, stiff stems, originated by the L. D. Waller Seed Co. Annette, soft cerise, another origination of Mr. Ball's, was given an award of honorable mention. The other varieties shown, all of which were splendid blooms on straight, stiff stems, were: Apricot, soft salmon; Mrs. Kerr, soft salmon; Mrs. President Harding, light, or Harding blue; Flamingo, orange rose; Early Irene, light lavender; Columbia, pink and white; Melody, light pink; Fair Maid, light pink; Glitters, scarlet orange; Fire King, scarlet cerise; Fire Flame, orange (Burpee); Aurora, carmine striped; Harmony, soft lavender; Princess, clear lavender.

Publicity Helps.

Secretary Swenson called the attention of members present to the publicity which was being obtained in the Chicago papers by a paid agent of the Allied Florists' Association and showed a clipping from a newspaper pictorial page of the flowers banked about the casket of "Pop" Anson, at his funeral last week. A number of similar pictures have been run by the local papers within recent weeks as a result of the association's efforts. Mr. Swenson also said that the American Legion had definitely stated its support of Mothers' day as a day to be observed with flowers, at the same time asking that florists avoid the appearance of commercializing the day and avert, as much as possible, occasion for charges of excessive prices.

HUNTING A WAY

NEW YORK SEEKS PLAN.

For Coöperative Publicity.

A mass meeting of florists, called by the Allied Florists' Trade Association, was held in the Engineering Societies' building, Friday afternoon, April 21, at 3 p. m. There was a disappointingly small attendance, those present numbering not more than forty-five. A. M. Henshaw presided, and he called to the platform G. E. M. Stumpp, as representing the retailers; Lincoln Pierson, of the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., as representing the Rose Growers' Association; F. H. Traendly and Aubrey Nash, treasurer and secretary of the Allied Florists' Trade Association.

The chairman, in a short address, explained the objects of the meeting, which were to make another attempt to get the different branches of the trade together on the matter of publicity for flowers. The main element lacking had been support from the retailers. Subscriptions had made considerable money available for advertising, but this had been subscribed by the rose growers and other branches of the trade, the former about $10,000, and the latter collectively about $10,000. Practically nothing was forthcoming from the retailers, and it was believed there should be no difficulty in raising a retailers' subscription fund of $10,000, so that altogether there would be sufficient to finance a series of five small campaigns, during a period of twelve months. Everything was ready for the first campaign, as laid out in a circular which had been mailed to all interested, and which was distributed at the meeting.

It was found that there was sufficient money in hand to cover the cost of this first of the series, but it was a question whether, lacking the support of retailers, the campaign should be started. It had been planned to begin campaign No. 1 early in May, which called for advertising in eight New York and Brooklyn papers, twice a week. It was estimated, he said, that there were 2,000 retail florists in greater New York, and surely among them a fund of $10,000 could easily be raised. He suggested that if those enthusiastic in their endorsement of the campaign would interest their neighbor florists, much good could be accomplished.

Note Plan Offered.

Mr. Stumpp offered a plan which he believed would work out successfully. He suggested that retailers be asked to give notes for $5, payable through a bank, covering subscriptions to one or more of the campaigns. He did not mean that a retailer should only contribute this small sum, but that he take up as many notes as his business would allow. One or all of the five campaigns could be supported in this way.

C. H. Brown gave it as his opinion that the best places to get subscriptions were the wholesale houses, but the chairman pointed out that the assessment plan previously tried through the wholesale houses had not been a success, and little help could be looked for in that direction.

W. A. Phillips suggested that it would be better to employ a regular solicitor, but others did not believe this course would be effective, unless that solicitor were a member of the trade and able to put up a good argument.

Max Schling explained that he had ceased to contribute because he had not found that the promised twenty-five per cent of subscriptions had been turned over to the national publicity campaign. The chairman and treasurer assured Mr. Schling, however, that he was in error, the promise having been satisfactorily fulfilled. Mr. Schling further stated it was his opinion that unless sufficient money was in hand, it would be folly to start an advertising campaign.

F. R. Pierson did not favor the $5 note plan, it being rather picayune in his opinion. Anyone should be allowed to contribute what he saw fit—a $5 subscription was ridiculous.

Alfred T. Bunyard was rather pessimistic in his views. Outside of the dozen or so retailers present at the meeting, and perhaps a dozen or two more, it would, in his opinion, be hard to get anything. However, he thought the $5 note plan might be worth trying.

F. H. Traendly told how the rose growers had organized to assist the movement, but believed the burden of the campaign should not be thrown upon growers. All branches of the trade should cooperate.

Note System to Be Tried.

Lincoln Pierson said the Rose Growers' Association could guarantee the collection of the $10,000 they were to subscribe, and by May 1 if necessary, but he did not believe in a single campaign. There should be campaigns to last throughout a year, or none at all, in his opinion.

An attempt on the part of some present to inject into the proceedings a discussion as to why prices of flowers should be advanced at certain seasons was frowned upon by the chairman, who denied that growers or wholesalers were responsible for prices; they were the result of supply and demand, and it would have to be admitted that periods of low and unremunerative prices to producers fully offset the periods of high prices.

After further discussion, it was decided to try the note system, but only as part of a canvass to be made in the trade by retailers themselves. Practically all of the retailers present obligated themselves to interview each twenty-five florists, and it was believed that others would volunteer similar service, so that the whole trade could be quickly canvassed and the campaign started.

There was a short discussion as to effecting a permanent organization, the membership paying dues, but a motion by Max Schling that the meeting proceed to organization was overwhelmingly defeated.

An emblem, in the form of a transparency, about 9x12 inches, proposed to be supplied for window display to subscribers to the fund, appeared to find favor among the retailers present.

AT BOSTON SHOWS.

In connection with the exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, at Boston, this year there will be lectures by experts at all of the important shows. At the rhododendron exhibition, June 3 and 4, William H. Judd, of the Arnold Arboretum, will lecture every afternoon on rhododendrons. At the peony show, June 17 and 18, David Stranger, of T. C. Thurlow Sons Co., will lecture each afternoon. Dr. Robert Huey, of Philadelphia, will lecture on hardy roses and their cultivation at the rose, sweet pea and strawberry show, June 24 and 25. At the dahlia show, September 9 and 10, Albert J. Jenks will talk on fruit growing in New England, and at the November exhibition Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., will speak on hardy chrysanthemums. Miss M. R. Case, of Weston, Mass., finances the whole lecture course of the year.

PLANTING OUTDOOR CHERRIES.

Should Jerusalem cherries, when planted outdoors, be set in the field directly, or would it be better to place them in pots and then plunge them?

H. G.—Wash.

By all means plant your solanums in the field and do not plunge them in pots. Planting out should be done in ground not too rich; otherwise the plants will grow to an unwieldy size. It is not possible to get as good specimens of these useful Christmas plants in pots as by outdoor culture. Some care is needed after lifting. The plants must be protected from the bright sunshine for a time and sprayed freely until they become established.

C. W.

CAUSE OF YELLOW FOLIAGE.

Some of the leaves on my geranium plants have yellow or grayish spots, which cause the leaves to become thin. The spots appear on groups of several plants. Others on the same bench look healthy and do not seem to suffer. Will you tell me what causes this trouble and how to check it?

M. S.—Ill.

I have sent you a few leaves from some of my geraniums. As you will notice, they have turned yellow. I have had this trouble for years. Will you tell me what makes the leaves turn yellow?

P. C.—Wis.

The fact that the trouble is sporadic and not general shows that the compost is all right, or the yellowing of the leaves would be more general. There are several fungoid diseases of geraniums which are usually most rife in late winter or early spring. The real cause of the trouble is not easy to determine without knowing something about the cultural conditions, but there are several probable causes which might be mentioned and possibly you may gain some help from learning of them.

Geraniums are too often treated as semi-aquatics. They succeed best, make a hardier growth and flower more freely when kept a little on the dry side. They should not be sprayed over at any time. When watering, keep the moisture off the leaves as much as possible. Keep the atmosphere dry and buoyant and ventilate abundantly.

The night temperature should not exceed 50 degrees and 5 degrees lower will do no harm. Do not cut off artificial heat too early. We get cold, dark and damp spells of weather during April and, unless watering is done carefully, trouble will result. Keep a little warmth in the pipes.

Do not feed with liquid manure; a sprinkling of fine bone on the surface is better, and soil containing some old manure and a little bone is hard to beat. The use of manure at all fresh promotes rank, soft growth, and plants in such a compost fall an easy prey to disease.

Isolate the affected plants, pick off the diseased leaves and spray with a good fungicide two or three times at intervals of four or five days. Let the plants have all possible sun. Do not throw affected leaves on the floors or below benches, but burn them. Cleanliness has much to do with the successful culture of plants. Perhaps none of the causes suggested may hit your particular case, but I hope some of the points mentioned will help you.

C. W.

KILLING WHITE GRUBS.

Our geraniums outdoors were all killed by white grubs. These pests ate the outside of the main roots of the plants. Can you advise a way of disposing of these pests before we plant our stock outdoors again this year?

M. C. B.—Ind.

It is suggested that you give the land a good dressing of agriculture pulverized limestone, and keep the surface of the soil open by frequently cultivating it. If it is possible—that is, if you have the space available—plant your geraniums on new ground this year.

M. P.

PUT IN COOLER HOUSE.

We have mailed you a few specimens of our geranium stock. A slight eruption appears on the under side of the foliage. Just a few of the plants are affected in this manner. The eruption starts in a small spot and gradually spreads over a larger area of the leaf, turning the leaf yellow. These geraniums are growing in a house together with roses, carnations, cinerarias, lilies and a considerable quantity of bedding stock. What is the cause of this appearance?

H. F. B.—Minn.

It would be an exceedingly difficult matter to grow geraniums in the same house with roses, carnations, cinerarias, lilies, etc., as you mention, and have them remain in good health. One or the other of these plants must suffer, and it is likely to be the one to which the surrounding conditions are the least congenial. In your case the geraniums seem to have been the ones that suffered. It is suggested that as soon as the lilies are out of the way, and you can possibly do so, you give the geraniums a space where they can have a lower temperature and more air than it is possible to permit where roses are grown. M. P.

SPOTS SHOW WRONG TREATMENT.

We have mailed you two 4-inch geraniums, which you are kindly requested to examine, and determine, if possible, what causes the dried-up condition of their leaves. About five per cent of our S. A. Nutt stock is affected in this manner, and we are at a loss to understand why this particular variety only should be affected. We also fail to understand why this condition should prevail only intermittently. How can we overcome this condition?

F. F. C.—Ill.

It appears that these geranium plants are forced beyond their season. Whether this condition is due to a too high temperature or to a rich soil, it is impossible to determine from the appearance of the plants. The roots and the stems of the plants appear to be in a healthy condition, but the leaves show a soft growth. It is difficult to say why some of the plants should show signs of disease in spots, unless it is where they have received overhead watering at some time or other. The trouble that so many growers have with their geraniums is generally caused by treating the plants too tenderly in the way of high temperature and an overabundance of water. It is suggested that you examine closely the treatment to which the plants are being subjected and see if more air and less water, together with a lower temperature, will not help to remedy the trouble.

GERANIUMS DOING POORLY.

I wonder if I have been watering my Poitevine geraniums too heavily? They were purchased as rooted cuttings in January and flourished in 2-inch pots, but since I have repotted into 3-inch pots, the leaves turn red and die. They are on a sunny bench and I have been watering them freely with the hose. Other varieties seem to do pretty well with this treatment. I am afraid the Poitevines will not be large enough for Decoration day. What can I feed them to hustle them along?

C. F. C.—Mich.

I should judge that the soil in which this particular batch of geraniums are potted contains something distasteful to the plants; what it is I am unable to say. You are undoubtedly overwatering them. Geraniums are not aquatics and always thrive best when kept just a little on the dry side. Therefore, "watering freely with the hose" has been the wrong treatment for them. You cannot feed plants in this condition; it would

WILLIAM G. COLLATZ.

THE old saying about the prophet's reputation in his own country is not applicable in the case of William G. Collatz, for esteem of him is highest in the community where he was born and reared. That was Maywood, Ill., where he now resides, being general superintendent of the large range of the A. F. Amling Co. Mr. Collatz began to work for Mr. Amling when a young boy. At the age of 22 he started in a business of his own, growing sweet peas and miscellaneous flowers. After ten years he was induced to enter partnership with Mr. Amling, taking charge of the growing at this big rose range, in which he now holds one-third interest. One son follows in the footsteps of his father; beginning at the bottom, he is now in charge of a section under his father. Throughout Maywood, Mr. Collatz is well known and highly esteemed, and he has an interest in various enterprises in the locality.

only hasten their end. Red leaves come sometimes from a too poor soil, and heavy watering will only aggravate the trouble. Keep the plants somewhat drier at the roots and I would suggest shaking out and repotting them, using a compost containing three-fourths good, well decayed pasture sod, if you have it, and one-fourth old, well rotted manure, passed through a half-inch screen.

GERANIUMS AFFECTED.

We have mailed two specimens of geraniums. The geraniums grew finely all winter and were shifted in January. Now they are becoming affected like the specimens. The leaves turn brown and drop off. We grow the geraniums on coal ashes. Our mums act the same way.

H. F. S.—O.

We have experienced the same trouble these geraniums show signs of. This happened when our plants were set on coal ashes. But, after worrying a great deal as to the cause of the trouble, we decided to try something else, instead of coal ashes, on which to set the plants. When our geranium plants are set on soil beds, we now use pulverized limestone, so that the soil will remain in good condition, to be used after the geraniums are out of the way. But when they are set on board benches we use sand on which to place the plants and have not had any return of the trouble since making the change.

BLIGHT ON GERANIUMS.

What causes our geranium leaves to blight or scald around the edges? This blighting soon goes over an entire leaf, when once started. Does top watering

BLIGHT ON GERANIUMS.

What causes our geranium leaves to blight or scald around the edges? This blighting soon goes over an entire leaf, when once started. Does top watering have any effect on them? Our house has been dry, perhaps too dry. At night we have kept the temperature from 55 degrees up to 64 degrees on occasion. B. B.—Pa.

These geranium plants are being grown altogether too warm. Instead of a temperature of 55 to 64 degrees at night, they should be given 50 to 52 degrees at night and 6 to 8 degrees more during the daytime. It is a mistake to make a practice of watering the plants overhead. Once in a while it does not hurt them, if the weather is clear, but, as a general thing, the practice should not be followed.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"A splendid Easter," commented Fred A. Danker, Albany, N. Y. "In fact, it is doubtful if we could have done more, although we seem to be equal to any exigency." The varied taste of a large clientele cleaned up everything in cut flowers and blooming plants. Combination baskets, as usual, found a ready sale. The Danker lilies were the envy of less fortunate growers, some of whom lost heavily by disease.

William C. Gloeckner, Albany, as usual, received several large commissions by wire, in addition to increased home trade at Easter. Practically everything salable sold, and at remunerative prices.

Louis H. Menand, Troy, N. Y., did a banner cemetery business, the bright Easter day cheering the big crowd of visitors.

William W. Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., furnished Albanians and Trojans with ramblers and hydrangeas, in perfect shape and color. The latter ran ten heads to a plant, in a 6-inch pot.

Sambrook Bros., Troy, N. Y., have an old, established trade, and consequently found little change in business at Easter. Anything made attractive sold and, to quote John Sambrook, "herein lies the secret."

J. G. Barrett, Troy, reports an increase in the volume of Easter business, as practically everything salable went. Funeral work, a leading feature here, was taken good care of in the rush.

Samuel R. Hansen, North Troy, remarked upon the increasing love for flowers among the artisans, who constitute a large percentage of his patrons. "Best Easter ever," is the verdict.

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., experienced a record-breaking Easter business. Quoting the proprietor, Henry Eberhardt, "Lack of space to make a suitable display is a handicap, but, by a system of selection and replenishing, much may be gained. Here is where the show house, where one is possible, is worth all it costs."

The Hatcher Flower Shops, at Schenectady and Amsterdam, were well supplied from the greenhouses at Hoffmans. Some of the finest lilies grown in the Mohawk valley were seen here.

John C. Robinson, Ballston Spa, N. Y., commenting upon the Easter business and the experience of a decade in a small town, predicts a bright future.

For example, imagine selling flower baskets, either made up with plants or cut flowers, as high as $10 apiece. "We did it," said Mr. Robinson, "and will not be content to halt at that figure. It is the result of publicity, local and general, in which we have a part." A fine bedding stock was noted, especially Geranium Beaute Poitevine in 4-inch pots.

Henry Benschel, of the Schafer Greenhouses, Ballston Spa, experienced an Easter demand equaled only by the supply of stock, and he is looking for as good business at Mothers' day, with appropriate stock, now full of promise.

The Crandell Flower Shop, Glens Falls, N. Y., had the biggest Easter business on record, placing special stress upon telegraph orders.

A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, by exercising unusual watchfulness, was able to overcome the damage done by the fire, and reports an increase of 100 per cent in his business, a sign for encouragement in a place hard hit by industrial conditions. Spring will see many improvements made in this establishment.

Henry Schrade, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., did what was described by Henry, Jr., as a remarkable Easter business, in that, if the quality was there, the price was of secondary consideration. This is believed to be the result of having the confidence of one's customers, which is comparatively easy with home patrons. William Schrade, eldest son and in charge of the greenhouses, launched upon the sea of matrimony Sunday, April 23, with Miss Flora Keir, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., as mate. The young couple have the best wishes of their numerous friends.

Christian Dehn, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., commenting upon the mixed feelings he experienced in possessing much worldly goods, a sick though loyal partner, a castle at Wiesbaden, a desire to retire from and a longing to remain in a lucrative business, asked the question, "What would you do under similar circumstances?"

"Best holiday trade ever," commented W. E. Peters, Burlington, Vt. "Cut flowers led, particularly violets. Of the latter we sold 6,000 and could have disposed of some thousands more, but we felt dubious; a warm spell meant loss, so we switched off to carnations and roses." Mothers' day, if as anticipated, will be another hummer.

Gove the Florist, Burlington, Vt., also experienced a banner holiday business, in which lilies took the lead. Following the example of setting prices in towns of this size set by F. A. Danker, Albany, N. Y., he sold blooms up to four on a plant at 50 cents each and beyond that number at 40 cents each. The idea was followed out in many nearby towns, to advantage.

J. L. Watkins & Son, Hudson Falls, N. Y., in commenting upon the public taste for novelties, mentioned a batch of hybrid calceolarias that were in fine shape at Easter and sold at sight. Violets went well. "It was our best season," said the junior member, who intends making practical use of his Cornell and Cromwell training in landscape art. Several good prospects are in hand.

The Montpelier Greenhouses, Montpelier, Vt., are enjoying a successful season, according to the proprietor, A. Emslie, who is preparing for the best Mothers' day business on record.

Among the improvements at the A. J. Binley place, Glens Falls, N. Y., is a new stamping machine for the Binley shipping box points, now so well known that they are a profitable investment. "All the result of publicity," says our hustling confrere.

"It is quite a step from medicine for cats and dogs to flowers for the sick, but the combination works," observed H. M. Totman, of the H. M. Totman Co., Randolph, Vt., referring to the advertisement in The Review, through which a new avenue of trade was opened up, necessitating increasing acreage to take care of the expansion. A branch store has been opened at White River Junction. The name is the Vermont Cut Flower Exchange, under the charge of Roy L. Jones, and it is ultimately to be the wholesale shipping department. Business at both places is tiptop. Mothers' day is expected to follow in line. A fine assortment of stock is being prepared.

The French Greenhouses, at Lebanon, N. H., have been purchased by Stuart B. Emerson, West Lebanon, and removed there.

"Quite satisfactory," commented C. A. Thayer, Greenfield, Mass. "We had some punk lilies, but find that we were not the only ones with such stock, and what was good sold well. Our carnations and bulbous stock were just right and everyone was pleased. Judging from inquiries already received, Mothers' day looms up brightly."

The Boothman Flower Shop, North Adams, Mass., had a better home and telegraph business than it has had in any preceding year, according to Boothman, Sr., who is well pleased with the results at the greenhouses at Adams, Mass., since these have been managed by Boothman, Jr. W. M.

CAMELLIAS FROM SEED.

To grow camellias from the seed, sow the seed in pans of sandy peat. If you have no peat available, use loam and add a considerable amount of leaf-mold and sand. If the soil is sterilized in advance, weeds and fungous growths will be eliminated. The pans must be covered with glass, and papers should be laid over them when the sun is shining brightly. The winter season is the best time to sow the seeds and, as they are large in size, they should be covered to the depth of half an inch. Do not allow the pans to become dry and do not pot the plants off until they have made their second leaves. A temperature of 55 degrees is ample in the winter and 5 degrees lower will answer. When the plants are established in small pots they can be grown somewhat cooler, and repotted as required. C. W.

BEGONIAS LOSING FOLIAGE.

Will tuberous-rooted begonias lose their foliage when transplanted if they are lifted when in bloom?

H. G.—Wash.

Tuberous-rooted begonias lifted from the open field while in full bloom will suffer only a slight check if a reasonable-sized ball of earth is taken up with the plant, and if the potting is carefully done. If, however, all of the soil is shaken from the roots of the plants in the digging process, they are bound to wilt and lose some of their foliage. They must also be protected from the strong sunshine and the drying winds. C. W.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

After-Easter conditions prevailed in this market last week. There was plenty of stock for everyone and not much business. If it had not been for funeral work, we should have seen an exceptionally dull week.

Stock is generally good, especially roses. The demand for these seems heaviest. The varieties include Premier, Angelus, Madame Butterfly, Ophelia, Columbia and Hoosier Beauty. All these varieties are in good condition at present.

A number of growers report missing lilies at Easter. There are not many arriving at this market.

Carnations are arriving in large quantities, but they clean up fairly well; the price now is $4 per hundred on the best and $3 per hundred, or $25 per thousand, for the poorer grades.

Snapdragons are arriving in quantity and move well, bringing $6 to $12 per hundred. A nice lot of fancy Darwin tulips arrived on the market last week and moved out fairly well. Sweet peas are now done, until a new crop comes.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is only on the job occasionally these days, but his establishment is readily handled by his efficient force.

H. W. Sheppard's shop is now minus one of the force. H. E. Klunder, who is always there through the winter months, has left for his home, in Toledo, where he grows outdoor stock for the trade. Things have been brisk at this store the last week.

Julius Baer reports the best Easter business ever. He says that stock, except peas and valley, was ample and in good condition.

The William Murphy Co. is receiving some good home-grown roses.

E. A. Forter reports a good week in plant sales. His window displays lately have been distinctive.

S. Urlage, of the Peebles Corner

Flower Shoppe, reports that Easter business with him far surpassed that of previous years. He says funeral work last week caused a continuation of the previous week's rush.

R. G. Kootz, formerly located here and late of Indianapolis, has been in town, helping Mickley the Florist. The latter has been ill since his slight stroke of paralysis last December.

L. H. Kyrk reports a good week on green goods sales and also on basket and chiffon sales.

J. H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was in town last week. He had just returned from a visit to Utah and was at once confronted with misfortune on his return. His foreman on the dairy farm was electrocuted when he went to pick up a live wire that had been struck by lightning.

The visitors last week were George

SELLING SIDE LINES.

The folks who sell florists the side lines get many evidences as to how closely The Review is read; sharp eyes of buyers find even the smallest ads, like this:

We have found your publication very good to bring in the orders and plan to use it again in the autumn.—Oriental Goldfish & Supply Co., Cary Station, Ill., April 14, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Iola, Kan.—A hail storm Easter Sunday destroyed all the glass in the Odor Greenhouses and damaged a large part of the stock. A tornado followed the hail April 17 at 1 a. m., wrecking the garage and blowing down a smokestack into the boiler room. G. F. Odor plans to rebuild immediately and possibly make some additions.

OBITUARY

Andrew C. Benson.

Andrew C. Benson, widely known in the trade, particularly among the older generation, as superintendent of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses, near Chicago, died suddenly of heart disease about breakfast time April 26, at his home, at Hinsdale, Ill. He had enjoyed his usual good health up to that time and his demise was entirely unexpected.

Mr. Benson was born in Sweden, in 1860, and came to America and Hinsdale in 1888. He had received some training in gardening in Sweden and Germany and entered the employment of Orland P. Bassett as general caretaker at his residence. Mr. Bassett at that time had a greenhouse 14x26, which eventually developed into a range of about 900,000 feet of glass at Hinsdale. The establishment has recently been removed and rebuilt in modern style at the adjoining town of Westmont.

Beginning with the small private conservatory, as the commercial enterprise of Bassett & Washburn evolved, Mr. Benson remained continuously in charge of the greenhouses. In the early days the range was nationally known for its American Beauties. It was a variety with which Mr. Benson was exceptionally successful, the establishment was for a long time the trade's largest producer of Beauties and growers used to come long distances to see how Mr. Benson did it. In those days he was a prominent figure at Chicago and other flower shows, and it was at one of these The Review snapped the photograph shown herewith.

Next to the American Beauty, Mr. Benson's greatest success was with Mrs. Lawson carnation. One of the first to grow it, he was one of the last to admit by discarding it that it had had its day. The well known red, Belle Washburn, originated in the houses under his superintendence, as did the O. P. Bassett and other widely disseminated carnations.

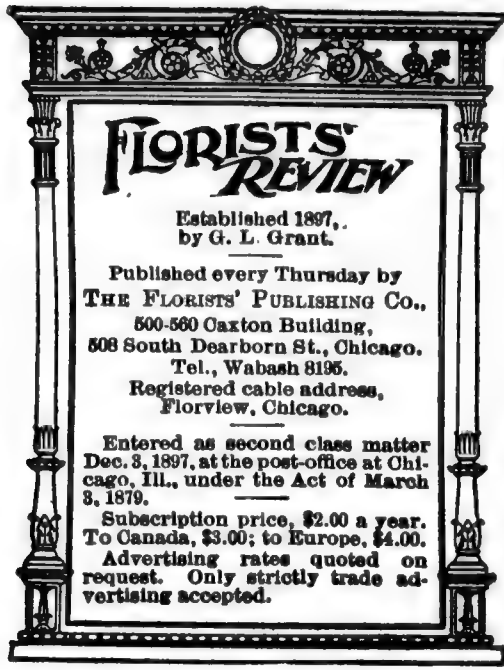

November 14, 1921, Mr. Benson completed his thirty-fourth year with Bassett & Washburn. In that time he had grown about everything classed as commercial cut flowers and had led or at least assisted in the evolution and development of present day growing methods.

Mrs. Benson and a daughter, Miss Edith Benson, survive.

The funeral will be held Saturday, April 29, at 2:30 p. m., from the residence at 98 South Grant street, Hinsdale.

W. H. Hall.

April 22, at 11:30 a. m., W. H. Hall, proprietor of the Iowa Falls Greenhouse, Iowa Falls, Ia., passed away. The deceased had been a member of the florists' trade for a great many years. Early in 1916 he purchased the building and equipment at the Riverside Greenhouses, at Iowa Falls, and used the equipment to construct new greenhouses. Previous to this, from 1909 on, he had rented the Riverside Greenhouses. Mr. Hall was an expert at his trade, and was an active member of the F. T. D.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

HAVE you done anything to collect the March bills that still stand unpaid?

THE man with the best stock has many advantages, not the least of which is the opportunity to choose his customers.

MOST florists clean and plant their own grounds only after they have finished work for their customers. Why not be the first? June up now.

THE reports of Easter business on page 68 and following pages bear out the statements printed last week as to the holiday's being a banner one for this trade.

ONE of the most unusual slogans used by florists is that of H. E. Hoefner, of Parsons, W. Va., who calls himself, on his letterhead, "The Florist with a Conscience."

FEW fortunes are likely to be made in the florists' business during the next few years, but the careful manager will not fail to realize a modest man's idea of prosperity.

COMPETENT labor is always desirable, even if it costs more. But it is not sound economy to pay highly trained men to do what a boy or a girl could do at half the wages.

ADVERTISING by retail florists made Mothers' day and advertising will keep it growing. But without advertising, Mothers' day will fade away; it is not long enough established to maintain itself alone.

THIS has worked well for others; probably it will work well for you: Get a rubber stamp reading, "Account for your accommodation; monthly payment requested." About the twentieth of the month send a statement to each customer whose account stands unpaid. Put the stamp on each statement. Gradually put on a cash basis the customers who don't respond.

A HUB is merely the central junction of the spokes of a wheel. The importance of the wheel actually depends upon the number and size of the spokes. The readers of The Review form 13,000 spokes, which radiate to the Atlantic and to the Pacific oceans, and some beyond. They compose a strong wheel to carry the wagon of horticulture. None other has so many or covers so large a radius.

PATRICK WELCH, ex-president of the S. A. F., is critically ill at his home in Boston, suffering from yellow jaundice in addition to other complications, and, it is regrettable to learn, the physicians give little hope of recovery.

RECORDS of some of the leading wholesalers in the Chicago market show that in 1921 their Mothers' day sales exceeded those of Easter by ten per cent. Wonderful, with Easter as old as history and Mothers' day unknown a dozen years ago!

"THE trade has done well this season," said a grower visiting The Review office the other day. "There are lamentations," said we. "Yes," said the grower, "business was so abnormal for a couple of years that a lot of people now complain over what would have seemed pretty fine before the boom."

DURING the boom time beginning with the autumn of 1918 the business of established florists grew rapidly, but the number of florists decreased through the small florists going into other occupations. In the last year or year and a half the intake of the older concerns may have shrunk to some extent, but the number of those returning to the field, or just starting in it, has materially increased. The trade has not stopped growing.

NATIONAL HOSPITAL DAY.

In the general rush of business toward Mothers' day it would be well to hesitate a moment and reflect that May 12 is National Hospital day. While this occasion is overshadowed by Mothers' day, it might be well to insert a suggestion for hospital flowers in the advertisements here and there. And the florist doing his mitz toward supplying the hospitals may be rewarded with some good free advertising.

HELPING US BOOST.

Florists have made Mothers' day what it is by advertising the event as it approached each year. To keep it a live and flourishing day of observance, now many people are helping us. On another page is described the coöperation that comes from the American Legion. This is powerful support. Florists everywhere should make use of it in the proper way.

But still more actively to our assistance comes Arthur Brisbane, the $100,000-a-year editorial writer of Mr. Hearst's papers. In the Chicago American of April 17 appeared the following in the editorial column:

Mothers' day will soon come around again. This time you are advised by the Mothers' day experts not to wear flowers in your buttonhole, because the florists are profiteering on that day; the flowers cost too much. Poor mother spends her entire life giving up something or other because it costs too much. And now she must give up the flower on her Mothers' day. As daughter usually wears the flower, while mother usually washes up the dishes, perhaps it won't make so much difference to mother.

This same editorial appeared in the other Hearst papers, in various cities, and is sure to help the sale of flowers. Others are helping us boost Mothers' day. Let's push, too! We can make it a second Easter.

SPECIAL SALES

In the two or three weeks after Easter occurs excellent opportunity for florists to draw buyers to their stores by means of special sales. At this time stock is abundant and flowers of high quality can be purchased at exceedingly reasonable prices. The public has had a taste of flowers at Easter, when a good many people have bought them who do not as a rule. If these persons are offered, at reasonable prices, flowers to take the place of those purchased at Easter, when the latter are gone, they may easily be sold some more. Who knows but what they may "get the habit"? At a time when you want more customers and have not overmuch business, now is a time to put on special sales.

GROWING GERANIUMS.

At this time of year many, many inquiries come to The Review office regarding "diseased" geraniums. There are spots on the foliage; it is yellow and unsightly. What is the remedy for the infection which causes this appearance? The unsightly specimens are frequent and this question is constantly recurring.

It is hoped to make the answer here emphatic: This is no disease in the sense that it is caused by any infection or pest. It is simply the result of mistreatment, perhaps due to carelessness, perhaps to lack of knowledge. Geraniums should be grown cool and a little on the dry side. They should not be watered overhead. Keep the night temperature at 50 degrees, not more than 52, with a rise of a few degrees in the daytime, but not above 60 degrees. And be sparing of the water.

LET'S HOPE JUST A MISTAKE

A florist of Detroit, not more finicky than florists should be, sends The Review a clipping of a retailer's advertisement, with the comment, "Just saw this ad and it struck me as real bad. Is this kind of thing usual or just a mistake?" In the list of plants and cut flowers in the advertisement appeared the following:

Easter Lillies.
Hydargies.
Margretts.
Thousand Chain Rose Bushes.
Hycants.
Lilly Valley.
Daffadels.
Snap Dragon.

IT'S JUST FUN.

Publishers in other lines often comment on the large volume of advertising that appears in The Review and ask as to the methods by which the business is obtained. Selling advertising space in The Review isn't work; it's just fun. "Results bring advertising; The Review brings results." It's like this:

Enclosed is our check for $1.62 to pay for the advertisement in last week's Review. We received six orders in one day, five of them enclosing checks for $35 each. We think that is a pretty good record, even for The Review.—T. W. Ingersoll, Wah-wah-taysee Nursery, Buffalo, Minn., April 20, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

G. H., O.—Magnolia conspicua; obtainable from many nurserymen.

C. A., Ont.—Geranium leaves were too withered to afford much evidence; plants probably were grown too warm and subjected to overhead waterings.

C. P. G., N. Y.—Looks like Geranium Helen Michell, and not a new seedling.

A. D. F., Neb.—Geranium Richmond Beauty.

W. G., S. D.—Begonia vitifolia.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With a decreased supply, the cut flower market is holding its own pretty well, in spite of the usual falling off in demand always experienced after Easter, in the season when flowering plants used for the festival are still more or less providing a floral display. The quality of arrivals in most lines is improved, after a few days of low temperatures and frosty nights. From Wednesday, April 19, heavy frosts have been nightly experienced and there have been considerable inroads upon greenhouse men's coal stocks, not expected at this time of year.

Roses are sufficiently plentiful to meet all requirements, without a surplus. American Beauty is in small supply, but the demand for it is not active; the price range for specials was Monday, April 23, from $40 to $100 per hundred. Hybrid teas range from $4 per hundred, for No. 2, to $25 per hundred, for specials.

Carnations have shortened in supply considerably, and the price range has gone to $5 to $8 per hundred in consequence.

Cattleyas are not so plentiful as they have been, but the prices, $75 to $150 per hundred, quoted last week are still in force. A few of the gigas variety are arriving, and from now on a good supply may be expected.

White lilies are plentiful, and the price range is rather elastic. Good, fresh flowers are bringing from $12 to $20 per hundred. Rubrums are plentiful at about $8 to $15 per hundred. Lily of the valley just about meets requirements, with top grade moving rather slowly at $8 per hundred sprays. Gardenias are small in supply and poor in quality.

Sweet peas continue abundant, and clearances at times are somewhat difficult; prices are anywhere from 50 cents to $2 per hundred. Violets are about done, although the cool weather has favored late shipments.

Some fine centaureas are coming in, and move fairly well. Miscellaneous flowers are competing with a large supply of lilac from the south, but hold their own fairly well. Among the items available are cornflowers, stocks, alyssum, daisies, mignonette, myosotis, lupines, gladioli, arbutus, calendulas, delphiniums, buddleia, and still a fairly good supply of bulbous material.

Various Notes.

L. B. Coddington, the rose grower of Murray Hill, N. J., was in town on Monday to attend the mass meeting of florists. He has just returned from a trip to Hawaii, where he, with his young son, spent ten enjoyable days. He made as many sight-seeing trips as possible, including one to the volcano Mauna Loa, always active, and had a peep into its crater. While on the Pacific coast he visited Los Angeles, and went out to Santa Monica, where he was pleased to meet J. Austin Shaw, formerly of New York. He found Mr. Shaw still dependent upon a crutch in getting around, but otherwise well and hearty.

Clarence Slinn is displaying in his booth at the Eighteenth street flower market a notice to the effect that May 1 he will join forces with his brother, B. S. Slinn, on the floor of the New York Cut Flower Exchange, at 55 West Twenty-sixth street, under the name of Slinn, Inc.

Robert G. Wilson, the Brooklyn retailer, is opening a branch store at Long Beach. Long Beach is now an all-year-round resort, and has increased in size from a small settlement to one of city proportions.

Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, with Mrs. Weber, motored to Utica last week to attend the opening of the new Masonic home there.

The collection of ninety-three varieties of tulips presented to the New York Botanical Garden by the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association of Haarlem, Holland, in all about 12,000 bulbs, is now in bloom, and the delight of many visitors.

The hard freeze of last Thursday night, April 20, and successive frosts on subsequent nights did material damage to outside stock. The magnolia blooms were almost destroyed, and much damage has been done to fruits. A Long Island grower had, Wednesday, April 19, planted out several thousands of rooted chrysanthemum cuttings and lost them all. Growers of early gladioli also report losses.

Doyle & Booth, wholesale florists, have moved from 110 to 116 West Twenty-eighth street, where the quarters are larger.

Emil Bartels, brother of Charles Bartels, the Bronx retail florist, has entered into partnership with George Hildenbrand, who a short time ago succeeded to the business of John Young & Co., and the firm name, Hildenbrand & Bartels, now appears over Booth No. 10 in the Eighteenth Street Flower Market. J. H. P.

S. S. Skidelsky & Co. moved this week to a larger and more modern building, in order to take care of their increasing business, now being located in the Dodge building, at 53 Park place.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Last week business showed a little decline, although this was rather fortunate, since the supply of cut flowers, especially carnations, was limited. The rose supply was sufficient to take care of the demand. The varieties in the market included White Killarney, Columbia, Ophelia, Premier, White Ophelia and some Pilgrim. Premier is arriving in larger quantities than any other variety. The stock is being received in good condition. Yellow daisies are well represented. Some fine sweet peas are to be had at this time. The demand for Easter lilies has fallen off considerably since Easter.

Some fine double Darwin tulips are still coming into the market, as well as some fine bicolored daffodils. These are moving out pretty well. Gladioli have also made their appearance in fairly large quantities. The demand, however, is limited.

There are plenty of greens, both in plumosus and Sprengeri, to meet the demand.

Various Notes.

The road salesmen of the supply houses have again started out on their usual trips.

W. A. Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has left to attend the Knights Templar conclave, at New Orleans. From there he will proceed to visit South America and Panama. He will return via New York. Mr. Clarke left the city Thursday afternoon, April 20, and will be gone until the middle of May.

Dave Hill & Co. are announcing in the daily papers that they will be compelled to give up their present location until new alterations have been made. During this time they will unite both stores with the branch store in the Grand Arcade, on Fifth avenue.

The damage to the range of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, caused by the hail storm, April 10, has now been repaired and the company is able and ready to take care of all of its customers in the usual manner. Fortunately, there was no damage done to plants.

The Pittsburgh Retail Florists' meeting is to be held Thursday evening, April 27, at the Hotel Chatham.

Gilbert Ludwig, of the Ludwig Floral Co., is building a new home on Termon avenue, north side, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Queen Flower Shop, on Fifth avenue, closed its doors Monday, April 17.

James J. Higgins, Pittsburgh representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and well known to all the Pittsburgh retail florists, left Wednesday evening, April 26, with his family, for Los Angeles, Cal., to take up his duties in Los Angeles as a representative of the same company. Mr. Higgins has a host of friends in Pittsburgh and will be missed by all. H. J. H.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

You have heard of the day after the night before? Well, last week's market was like that. The week opened with just enough business to show that the retailers everywhere had made a splendid clean-up for Easter and had to buy a few flowers to keep up a show. After the little spurt on Monday there was nothing doing, or almost nothing, for some of the wholesalers admit that it was as good as, or even a little better than, the same week last year. It was the old story of a saturated outlet. When the trade sells as many flowers at one time as was done for Easter, all the flower buyers are stocked up for a few days and the only demand is for funerals, weddings and purposes of that kind. We have to wait until the flowers fade before we can sell more to go into the homes.

There was some revival Friday, for shipping, and Saturday, for local stores, but the week closed with the market more heavily loaded than it had been on any other Saturday night for several months. There were accumulations of practically everything, especially roses, Easter lilies and callas. Even carnations were left, although it has been the rule for weeks that carnations were short of the demand on Fridays and Saturdays.

Of course, prices averaged low last week. Weather conditions favored production and the supply was large. The quality of most of the stock was fine. One of the surprises was the quantity of belated Easter lilies. These came from many unusual sources, indicating that numerous growers had many plants that did not flower until a few days too late, probably the result of the increase in the practice of planting the bulbs in benches instead of in pots, the old

The present week opened with warmer weather and large supplies of flowers. Almost everything except, perhaps, orchids is in greater supply than need be to cope with the present demand, and prices continue low. But it already is apparent that the excellent values now offered are broadening the outlet; orders are beginning to come from the quantity buyers who appear only when stock is cheap.

Considerable quantities of gladioli are being received from Tennessee and a few indoor Pendleton are seen. The first peonies arrived from Tennessee April 22 and in a few days they will be abundant.

of the larger houses, asked to consult their records, report that last year their sales for the week preceding Mothers' day exceeded Easter week of that year by about ten per cent. Read that sentence again and the need for special preparations will be realized.

There seems no chance that the supply of flowers will exceed the demand. It is impossible that greenhouses which were in crop for Easter this year can be in crop again for Mothers' day, as might be the case with an early Easter. Flowers always are in large supply in May, but the demand for Mothers' day has grown so amazingly that it is sure to take everything in sight. How it looks from the Chicago market point of view is shown by the comment of a wholesaler who said: "If it were policy to do so, I am sure we could sell to other wholesalers every carnation we shall receive; probably the same is true of short and medium roses, and it is quite possible we might, by selling to other wholesalers, obtain better prices than we shall feel disposed to charge the retailers whose business we have had regularly and want to keep."

As to prices, it is considered that last year's Mothers' day prices were about right, even if the demand exceeds supply.

Losses by Wind Storm.

The following is from Florian D. Wallace, insurance broker, 175 West Jackson boulevard:

"It may be of interest to your readers to know that the wind storm of April 19 resulted in quite a little damage to greenhouses in this district. I have had reported and am paying for the repairs, under my greenhouse wind-storm insurance, the following damage:

Plodzien Bros., Norwood Park, 250 lights. This is the old Kavina plant.

Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood, 400 lights. Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood, 500 lights and some structural damage.

E. C. & P. F. Amling, Des Plaines, 500 lights. This is the old Hoerber Bros. place.

"There may be others whom I will hear from in the next few days. For example, I heard indirectly this morning that James Psenicka & Son, at Gross Point, had a loss, but it was of a small nature and not sufficient to warrant making a claim under the insurance.

"If you hear of any which are of a character which would be interesting to investigate, from an underwriting standpoint, or secure any photographs of greenhouses which have been blown down, I shall be pleased to hear from you, because I am trying to keep a record of all of the important losses in this territory, even though I have no insurance on same."

Credit Association Moves.

The Florists' Credit Association will remove May 1 to 1225 North Ashland avenue, which is the same address as the law office of August G. Urbanski, the head of the organization. The association will occupy an entire floor, affording much better facilities than previously have been available. Miss Pfeiffer and the office staff all reside in that part of the city to which the new address is most accessible. Mr. Urbanski is preparing to push the business consistently.

It is a notably good shipper, in the Ward shade of pink. Natalie was sent by the Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, Tenn. It is a medium pink and some of those who have had stock for trial say it will produce half again as many flowers as Ward. Super-Supreme was shown by Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis. Its name tells its story.

Among last week's visitors was Emil Glauber, of Denver, who was on his way home from Brooklyn, where he had visited the manufacturer of the glazing material for which he is western sales manager.

Cloudy weather April 13 and 14 cost the sweet pea growers in this vicinity many hundreds of dollars. The bright sunshine the day before Easter helped them recoup some of their losses, though far from all of them. All that Saturday they were busy picking peas. Henry Wehrman says he picked 40,000 in that one day, a feat he has not often equaled.

To make way for the new building of the two merged Oak Park banks, A. H. Schneider will vacate his present flower store at 1048 Lake street and move to a location he has already rented, four doors farther west. After the move, Mr. Schneider's address will be 1106 Lake street.

Despite the busy season, Peter Pearson found time to complete a new greenhouse, 22x100, just before Easter. It is built of Moninger material and will be filled with chrysanthemums to start with.

George J. Ball entertained L. D. Waller, head of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Cal., at Glen Ellyn during his visit here. Mr. Waller's company is one of the largest wholesale growers of sweet pea seeds on the Pacific coast. He was particularly interested in the fine blooms of his variety, Grenadier, a brilliant crimson, which he saw at Mr. Ball's houses.

The weather was so mild after the hail storm which broke nearly 1,500 lights in the greenhouses of the Wendland & Keimel Co., that haste was not made to replace them. Consequently, the high wind of April 18, Chicago's heaviest gale in thirty years, tore out 200 or 300 additional lights. After that, W. J. Keimel put all hands at work and completed the reglazing in three days.

By the end of the week Poehlmann Bros. Co. will be comfortably located in their temporary quarters. The big iceboxes of the cut flower department

Increase your sales

ONE important detail of your business has an important bearing on increased sales. It is the containers in which cut flowers are displayed. Discriminating florists now use "Fibrotta" Vases. They look like polished mahogany but are inexpensive. Water stays cool in them a long time. They do not chill the water when placed in your refrigerator, since they are non-conductors of heat and cold. Write Cordley & Hayes, 14 Leonard St., New York, for details.

were moved last week, to the basement at 66 East Randolph street, and the factory and warehouse section of the supply department already is functioning as usual in its new location, at 345 River street.

In the window of George Wienhoeber's unique Michigan avenue store, where Peter Miller has charge, there is the card "Guarantor, Civic Opera for Chicago," which is beginning to appear in many of the high-class specialty shops on the boulevard. Mr. Miller says business is increasing steadily.

John Poehlmann thinks that the American Legion's lining up with the florists for Mothers' day gives the use of flowers the best boost it has had in years.

The carnation range of George Harter, at Morton Grove, has been purchased by M. Artner, formerly with the George Wittbold Co.

Andrew Benson, superintendent for Bassett & Washburn, died suddenly April 25. For particulars see the obituary column.

Adam Casper, who has been with the E. C. Amling Co. at Los Angeles, has returned here for the summer. He brings the pleasant news that E. C. Amling has fully recovered his health and is working as hard, as steadily and to as good purpose as in the younger years during which he built up his business in Chicago.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports the arrival of the first peonies of the season April 22. They came from Franklin, Tenn., and were fine.

Miss O. A. Tonner comments on the sweet pea crop. It is, she says, as large as this market ever has seen and the

You can't neglect the delivery tag

YOUR flowers may be fresh and beautifully arranged; your boxes well made and attractive; your service prompt. But if the delivery tag is cheap, or if it shows watermarks, you lose, through carelessness, much of the quality note of your business.

Use Dennison tags. They are designed by experts. Stock that will not discolor with water is especially recommended. They are manufactured to suit the most exacting standards. They do add the final note of quality to your business.

Let Dennison suggest for you, without charge. Just fill out the coupon and write for samples. Then judge the Dennison quality for yourselves.

houses report an added demand for pansies and old-fashioned flowers. These were bought by the women for personal adornment. Small roses were also in demand.

The sale of locally grown roses has been quite good. Prices have ranged from $4 per hundred for short-stemmed stock to $20 for good grades. Hadley brought up to $40 per hundred.

The quality of sweet peas is not so good as it was prior to Easter. They can be had in quantities at $1.50 per hundred. Bulbous stock is about at an end, but there are still some extra fine Darwin tulips offered at low prices. Stock that has been bringing $12 per hundred has dropped to $8, with lower levels in prospect. There are also some excellent Murillo to be had, and a few good Narcissus poeticus are coming into Washington from the south. They are offered at $1 per hundred, but meet with little or no demand.

Carnations have been plentiful since Easter, but are not selling well. Some have brought as high as $6 per hundred, but one can get all the carnations desired at $4 and $5. Lilac flooded the market around Easter time, but the supply has eased up considerably just when there is a good demand for it. A considerable stock of good delphinium is to be had at $2.50 and $3 per bunch. This is a popular flower locally and usually sells well. Huge quantities of calendulas are brought into the market daily and go out again via the trash piles, for there is little demand for this flower.

Various Notes.

Gude Bros. Co. supplied about thirty large wreaths for that number of state delegations to the D. A. R. convention. These wreaths were placed upon the grave of America's unknown dead in Arlington cemetery. This company had a stand in the basement of the D. A. R. convention hall, where two men were constantly on hand, making corsage bouquets.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club met April 19, at the Hotel Brunswick, at 6:15 p. m., when a Susquehanna shad dinner was served to the thirty-five members present. The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers by B. F. Barr. A business meeting followed, presided over by President Harry K. Rohrer.

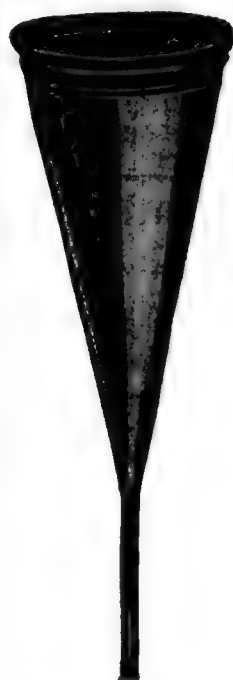

The club made its annual gift of flower seeds to the Children's Gardens, a well organized association, in which many children receive their first glimpse of the wondrous joy of gardening.

The club also gave to the Iris Club, a society composed of Lancaster's representative women, a silver cup, to be awarded as they see fit, either at their spring show for amateur gardening exhibits or in their contest for the improvement and planting of back yards. Mrs. Albert M. Herr is president of the floricultural department of the Iris Club and has accomplished much.

Two new members were elected.

The executive committee, composed of B. F. Barr, Elmer J. Weaver, Ira H. Landis, M. J. Brinton and Mrs. A. M. Herr, has arranged a series of entertainments never excelled in the twelve years of the club's history.

A "sociability run" is contemplated in June, to call on the Reading Florists' Club, and in September R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md., will be visited. The annual picnic in July will receive attention at the next club meeting, in May, which will be held at B. F. Barr's home, when the younger members of the club will have charge of the proceedings.

After the business meeting, the club was addressed by Professor Herbert Beck, of Franklin & Marshall College, who spoke on "Bird Life." The lecture was illustrated with mounted specimens, and the lecturer gave the calls and notes of many of the song birds which frequent our gardens and of which we know so little. Professor Beck's talk proved to be one of the most interesting and instructive lectures the club has had.

The club's next meeting will be held on the third Thursday in May.

Easter Retrospect.

While Easter was disappointing in some respects, it was, on the whole, a grand success and every local florist is more than satisfied. The few warm days preceding Easter hurt the bulbous stock, sweet peas and violets. Callas were also hurt by this warm spell. Orchids, gardenias and valley were fine and found ready sale for the corsage. Sweet peas were disappointing and a great many went begging. Yellow and white daisies were used extensively this year for the corsage and, combined with other flowers, were beautiful. Roses were fine and were used more than usual. Local Easter lilies were short in stem.

In the potted plant line hydrangeas, lilies and bush roses were the most popular and most of the florists sold out completely. Of course, there were the fancy plants and made-up baskets, and these found a ready sale, too. Bulbous stock was rather soft, although there were a few fine hyacinths, jonquil and tulip plants.

The first part of the week in the retail stores stock moved slowly, but by Thursday, April 13, business began to pick up and then Friday and Saturday were the blue ribbon days.

The market people report a clean sweep of everything. Their stalls were just loaded the whole week, but their plants and cut flowers sold rapidly.

The Market.

Business has quieted down considerably since the Easter rush and market conditions are again normal. At present there is a good supply of gardenias and orchids and a fine supply of exceptionally good roses. Easter lilies are plentiful, due to the fact that a number of growers are cutting their plants, the stock arriving too late for the Easter market. There is a good supply of carnations and valley. Good jonquils are scarce at present.

Various Notes.

All the retail stores report a fine Easter business. Altogether, it was a satisfactory Easter for all branches of the trade.

James Glass has completely recovered from his recent illness.

All F. T. D. members report an excellent telegraph delivery business. Each year more people are getting the habit of sending flower tokens by wire.

Treasurer Johnston, of the F. T. D. finance committee, wishes to call attention to the fact that the end of April is at hand. It is the hope of the committee to have all pledges in by the first of May. Will you consider this matter seriously and, if you have not already forwarded your pledge, kindly do so at once?

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week after: It seems quite unnecessary to say the week after Easter has been dull. It seemed as though everybody had his flowers and didn't want any more. There was, however, an exception to the rule. It was the bride. She wanted flowers for her wedding; so lilies of the valley, white lilacs, orchids and larkspur were in demand, furnishing life to relieve the dullness. Fortunately, the weather was cool. This fact, added to the usual end-of-the-week activity, caused the market to close in fair shape Saturday evening, April 22. Prices have, of necessity, declined, more so on lilies than on anything else. Although a good many lilies have been worked off in various ways, the accumulation has depressed the price to something like one-half that of a week ago.

The chief changes in the market last week, so far as the supply is concerned, were the shortage of really good sweet peas and the arrival of the advance guard of outdoor flowers, lilacs, daffodils and valley.

Roses came to the rescue of the market when sweet peas flagged, and even carnations won praise for their hot weather endurance. The quality of snapdragon appears to be declining. Larkspur looks well. Indoor lilac closes with April. Callas and Darwin tulips are prized by the decorators. Yellow daisies have been disappointing.

The Lily at Easter.

It is generally admitted that there were somewhere around a million less lily bulbs imported into this country last fall than there were the year before. Yet there were too many lilies at Easter. Why? There are many opinions and shades of opinion regarding the correct answer to this question. Those who are in a position to judge do not, as a rule, believe that the lily is losing in popularity. They say that the lily market, like everything else, received bumps and that it will recover. The last really bad lily market at Easter was in 1907, when the price started at $12 and dropped to that are on the market you can depend on extra quality and very good value.

RUSSELL particularly are very fine. This is a new crop from plants that have rested all winter. For color and size these Russell Roses are hard to beat.

In red we have an ample supply of HADLEY and MILADY. Some very fine OPHELIA and BUTTERFLY.

In white, DOUBLE WHITE KILLARNEY—exceptionally well grown that we recommend for your Wedding Bouquets.

ROSES will be one of the best items on our list, and the quality is all that could possibly be expected, and our prices are very reasonable. When you want good Roses let us supply you.

EASTER LILIES. Several of our growers make a specialty of Lilies, and give us a regular shipment every day in the year. From now on, and through the summer months, we will have a big supply of very fine Lilies.

YELLOW DAISIES. In the spring of the year they are always at their best. We have plenty of them—long stems and big flowers.

VALLEY. When you want good Valley be sure to call on us. Our Valley will stand shipping, and will give satisfaction to you and your customers.

Our supply is so well regulated that we are in a position to fill your orders on short notice, and can make immediate shipment. We aim to make our service the very best obtainable.

$6 to $7. Curiously enough, in that year other varieties of plants sold well. Just why lilies did not sell well this Easter is difficult to determine. The chief reason, undoubtedly, was the poor quality of the lilies. Taken as a whole, they were not up to the mark. This, undoubtedly, affected the appearance of the stock taken as a whole. People do not want unattractive plants. The heat and a change of taste in the flower-loving public were also factors. Given good bulbs, the lily will come back at Easter.

Historical.

The records of the June meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society for the year 1883 show some curious facts. Although this June meeting is now spoken of as the outdoor-rose meeting, there were no roses exhibited. It would be more accurate to say that there is no record of any roses having been exhibited and there were no classes for roses. The star exhibit was a basket of cut flowers shown by the president, Thomas Meehan. The principal competition was in strawberries. There were many exhibits of Captain Jack and Sharpless seedlings. The largest berries in each exhibit were carefully measured and their circumference given. It was evidently a great berry year. All the details of the meeting were kept with painstaking fidelity by the secretary, behalf of the Philadelphia Florists' Club. A committee consisting of George Aeugle, Walter Davis, Harry C. Eisele and Fred J. Michell, Jr., was appointed to receive entries and to arrange a schedule. Six of our leading concerns put teams in the field; namely, Bickmore Greenhouses, Robert Craig Co., Independent Wholesalers, Leo Niessen Co., S. S. Pennock Co. and M. Rice Co. Fifteen games were played alfresco and much good sport was enjoyed. The cup was awarded to the Pennock teams with a score of four games won and none lost. So much for the past.

The cup must be won three times to become the property of any club. The Pennock team has announced through the captain, Albert Swan, that it will defend the Campbell cup for the season of 1922. They expect to have some new blood on their team and will try to make it interesting for their opponents. The more the merrier. What say you, boys?

ceedingly large shipment of wreaths to New England last week.

The Porto Rican shipment of stock for the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood Station, included the golden Sansevieria Laurentii, one of Robert Craig's specialties.

It is rumored that Manager Reilly, of the Independents, has signed Joseph Kennedy, the hard-hitting infielder of the Growers' Market, for the coming season.

I. Rosnoski, of Chicago, was in this city April 24.

Adolph Farenwald sent a fine cut of Russell roses from his place, at Roslyn, to the Leo Niessen Co. at Easter.

The Market.

Since Easter we have had a weak market and flowers of all kinds show a marked recession in price. Demand from the retail stores has lacked vigor and there has been a considerable wastage in some lines. The weather has been extremely cool for April and not favorable for a large production. Roses have weakened considerably and short-stemmed stock sells as low as $2 per hundred in the case of Killarney and Ophelia. The last-named rose, which has been immensely popular for years, is losing favor and Butterfly seems destined to displace it. There are now some specially fine Hadley and Crusader coming in, and Ward roses from one or two growers are of good quality. Columbia continues the leader, however, among the hybrid teas.

Carnations have undergone a considerable decline in price, and anyone getting as much as $4 per hundred for good stock is doing well. A great many flowers sell much lower. Sweet peas galore are coming in, and the market is swamped with them at prices varying from 50 cents per hundred upwards. Yellow and white marguerites are abundant and of fine quality, selling tolerably well. Bulbous material, now mainly daffodils, is much overdone, and prices are the lowest of the season. The indoor crop is now nearly over and large trumpet varieties are flowering outdoors.

Cut lilies no one seems to want, even at $1 per dozen, and there is a veritable avalanche of callas at the same low price. Pansies, bachelor's buttons, Gypsophila elegans and myosotis are seen in moderate quantities. Some nice del-

Self-Watering Device For Hanging Baskets

MAKE all the hanging baskets you fill self-watering by using the Daisy Self-Waterer. Put in any basket after it is filled and never seen. Can be regulated to water any size basket. Never have to take a basket down to water it. With this device any child can water them. Always a uniform moisture, and plants will grow much better; that means more people will want baskets and that spells more money for the florist.

When shown and explained every lady who has a hanging basket will want one. DEVICE made of galvanized iron and copper and a sure seller wherever shown. Try a sample order and be convinced.

phiniums are now coming in, as well as a few candidum lilies. Both of these sell on sight. There is a tremendous glut of snapdragons, which are now in heavy crop, and only a fractional part are sold. Deep pink is far the most popular color.

There are rather more cattleyas coming in, but not a great many gardenias. One or two local growers lost practically their entire stock of the latter from the yellows. Lilies of the valley sell fairly well.

The demand for pot plants has not been robust. This is natural, following the heavy and satisfactory Easter trade in them.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club April 18, there was a splendid attendance, although the season is a busy one with all growers. Two new members were elected. It was unanimously voted to endorse the amended bill for the protection of the mayflower, or Epigaea repens, in Massachusetts. It was also voted to contribute a group of plants for the House Beautiful exposition in Mechanics' hall April 24.

The exhibits table was well filled. Carnation Betty Jane from Roman J. Irwin showed up finely, although it had been en route for five days, and it received an award of merit. Members seemed to like this variety. The W. W. Edgar Co. had a splendid vase of Lilium candidum, and James Donald had a fine assorted vase of exhibition-sized spikes of antirrhinums. From Walter H. Golby came several vases of huge Marinelli carnations, Le Miracle and La Merveille Francaise. These excited much interest. Mr. Golby said the plants averaged four flowers each, that the cuttings propagated readily and that they did well in benches, treated like other carnations. They were awarded honorable mention. Thomas W. Little had a fine group of specimen flowering plants, Senecio multibracteata, which were awarded a report of merit. These should prove a splendid annual commercially for the Easter trade. The plant is bushy and carries large quantities of pink cosmos-like flowers, succeeding well in a cool house. Mr. Little also received a report of merit for fine, blue Cineraria stellata. He showed, in addition, large plants of Schizanthus wisetonensis, white marguerites and genistas.

Prof. Clark L. Thayer, of Amherst, gave a most interesting and instructive lecture on floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He showed many stereopticon slides of the various buildings, campus, plantings on the grounds, classrooms, etc., and told of the instruction given to students and the advantages to the youth of such a college course, no matter whether he planned to enter commercial floriculture, landscape gardening or private estate work. The cost for a year at Amherst, including room, board, books and other incidentals, is about $450, a good proportion of which students could earn during the vacation periods if they wished. Many boys performed duties at the college which allowed them free board. There is now a fine range of modern greenhouses and every facility to give boys an excellent grounding in many necessary subjects which can not be taught outside such an institution. In addition to the regular floricultural classes, the school has classes in landscape gardening, pomology and vegetable gardening. Last winter a nursery course was started and proved so successful that it will be continued. Next fall it is planned to start a two years' course in private gardening.

A long discussion followed Professor Thayer's lecture. Prof. Ralph W. Curtis, of Cornell, spoke strongly in favor of the college course for boys and on how it broadened them. W. N. Craig, James Donald and others added their quota. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer.

Among the visitors were S. S. Skidelsky, New York, and W. E. Cahill, representing Roman J. Irwin, New York.

Wild Flower and Fern Show.

Great preparations are being made for the imposing exhibition of native ferns and flowers which will open in Horticultural hall May 3 and will remain open for a number of days. A. C. Burrage, Charles S. Sargent and H. H. Richardson are in charge of this exhibition, which promises to be one of the most unusual and attractive ever held in Boston. So realistic will the setting be that even birds and fishes will be introduced. Forested mountain slopes are now being constructed on various seasons, will be used in the planting effects, and all varieties of New England ferns will be included. In an adjoining hall will be a display of naturalized flowers and ferns. A record-breaking attendance is expected at this show.

Various Notes.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, is sending in a fine lot of Gypsophila elegans. Mr. Winkler is the raiser of Carnation Morning Glow, the most prolific carnation in culture today, and many other seedlings. He is now busy on a new carnation house, 40x200.

At the House Beautiful exposition, which opened in Mechanics' hall April 17, a number in the trade are exhibitors. The Blue Hill Nurseries has a fine group of evergreens. The Breck-Robinson Co. also makes a display. Peirce Bros., of Waltham, have a stand for the sale of roses and rose plants. The R. & J. Farquhar Co. furnished decorations for a wedding held April 21. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club contributed a fine group of flowering plants April 24. A total attendance of at least 100,000 is assured at this exposition. Here would seem to be a good place to work off some of the flower surplus now existing in the wholesale markets.

Business at the various seed stores is splendid this season, and all agree that their volume of business has already equaled the entire volume of the spring trade of 1921. It is a late season, but demand continues good and, apart from seeds, there is now a great call for hardy roses, evergreens, deciduous shrubs, herbaceous plants, seed potatoes and gladioli. The last-named are selling better than ever, in spite of all talk of overproduction.

William R. Nicholson has a grand lot of delphiniums, some thousands in number, now coming into fine crop. He is also headquarters for Gypsophila elegans and forced gladioli.

W. N. Craig addressed the Rhode Island Horticultural Society April 19 on "Hardy Roses," in the public library, Providence.

The American Sweet Pea Society has issued an interesting bulletin containing the premium lists for the convention and exhibition to be held at Boston, June 24 and 25. There are some excellent cultural articles in the bulletin. William Gray, the secretary, will lecture on sweet peas and their outdoor culture each day of the show.

April has not proved to be a specially balmy month. April 20 and 21 the temperature fell to 22 degrees and 24 degrees above zero and much damage was done to tree peonies, magnolias and some other early-flowering hardy plants. April 23 we had a number of snow squalls.

Nurserymen are extremely busy filling orders for new plantings and to replace stock killed last winter.

George W. Hamer, the genial assistant manager of the Boston Flower Exchange, is recovering from a severe attack of poisoning on the hands and arms caused by the juicy exudation from daffodils. Poisoning from daffodils is not at all uncommon and proves just as painful as that from Primula obconica.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Matters in relation to the recent fifth national flower show, held in Indianapolis, are gradually being cleared up. The immense amount of detail incident to a show of this character is not easily disposed of, but the committee has little concern as to the ultimate report pleasing everybody interested. Arrangements have been made to clear off the premium list at once, checks for all awards going forward. There will be, perhaps, a short delay in getting out the medals, as these are being struck at the United States mint, and no guarantee as to time is obtainable.

Owing to the many contingencies due to the changing of the location of the show, coupled with the secretary's necessary presence in the show city some time ahead of the opening date, during which time the final schedule had to be published, one or two inaccuracies may be pardoned, although, happily, none was of importance. Correction, however, should be made publicly in regard to one. The Ladies' S. A. F. kindly offered two premiums, which, unfortunately, through a clerical oversight, were classed with a third, offered by a prominent member of that organization, Mrs. J. C. Vaughan, who wished hers to be credited to the Ladies' S. A. F. The result was that proper credit was not given them in the schedule. The classes were: No. 515, a prize of $25 for the best table decoration arranged by a member of the Ladies' S. A. F.; and No. 142, for the best narcissus group covering twenty-five square feet, which prize was to be apportioned by the management in whatever manner it saw fit and so was put over into the section for private and amateur exhibitors. The error was made in crediting Mrs. Vaughan with all three prizes, while she should only have been credited with one, and not even with that, because she wanted the Ladies' S. A. F. to have the credit for her personal donation.

Checks to the guarantors are now going through the regular course.

The delay in a complete report is due almost wholly to the adjustment of various expense accounts.

John Young, Sec'y.

Kewanee, Ill.—John P. Lasson is growing carnations for the wholesale trade.

Tyrone, Pa.—In the near future J. E. Oster expects to begin the growing of dahlias and gladioli for the trade.

Everett, Wash.—The Broadway Floral Co., of this city, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $20,000, by A. Le Gross, Sr., Oscar Le Gross and A. Le Gross, Jr. It is announced this will make no changes in the management of the business or its immediate plans.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The Easter business for 1922 will go on record as one of the most generally satisfactory in the history of the business. The weather was ideal, both for retail business and long-distance shipping. There was no glut of stock on hand, but, except in a few cases, there was no scarcity, and both wholesalers and retailers have good reason to be satisfied. Lilies by the thousand made the market just on time, and sold well at fair prices, customers being much better pleased than when high prices prevail. Roses were plentiful and good, and there was an abundant supply of all kinds of bulbous stock, excepting daffodils, which were practically over. Dutch and Spanish irises were particularly good, but there was a shortage of such stock as Delphinium Belladonna, aquilegias and similar long-stemmed flowers, for baskets. Greens were scarce and high in price.

Various Notes.

Some of the finest and earliest gladioli of the season were noted last week at the store of the California Floral Co. Easter business was well up to the average, according to Paul Miller.

At the store of Walter Armacost & Co. the entire crop of Easter lilies was cleared away; that is, all that were ready. Miss Breeze, of the office force here, intended to leave last week to go to San Francisco, and from there to her former home in Boston, Mass. The shipping business was extra good here, but even at that it did not come up to the local wholesale trade, which outstripped anything in the history of the firm.

E. J. Reynolds is now connected with George J. Hall & Co., who report a good Easter business. Ed. Hall says that the local business here also was better than long-distance shipping.

At the store of S. Murata & Co. not a single Easter lily was left over, and, owing to the cool weather, everything went out of the shipping room in first-class shape.

E. C. Amling has his residence near the ranch at Sawtelle about completed, and it is a handsome and attractive place. Harold Amling also has plans laid for a residence near that of his father. At the lath houses of the E. C. Amling Co. an exceptionally good cut of plumosus was taken for Easter, and, owing to the general scarcity of this green, good prices were obtained.

Some particularly good tulips from the north were being handled last week by the L. A. Evergreen Co. Naturally, such stock sold rapidly at the American Florists' Exchange.

Angelo Tassano is speaking of taking a trip to Italy with his wife and family this summer, although he has not yet definitely decided to go. Mr. Tassano took his last trip to his home country when he married, and naturally is looking forward to another trip, as is Mrs. Tassano.

Gorini Bros. are almost always first in the market with Shasta daisies, and this season they have again topped the record with fine stock.

One of the finest Easter displays in the city was that of the Alexandria Florist, and it is pleasing to note that all of the stock was sold out. Besides Easter lilies and rhododendrons, there was a fine showing of forced Rambler roses and the whole display was finely arranged by Manager George Eischen and his staff.

Frank Warner is sending excellent Spanish irises and tulips to the market, and has a new delivery car on the road.

At the store of the Broadway Florist, Dan Stathatos was all smiles over an exceptionally good Easter. He is always a liberal buyer, but this time had to go out again at the last minute and secure more stock. Mr. Stathatos says that it was the best Easter on record.

Frank Raymond, of the Redondo Floral Co., says that the Easter business was the best his firm ever had. A. F. Borden, of the same firm, is going east for the F. T. D. meeting.

Another well satisfied retailer is H. Reeve Darling, of Darling's Shop. Mr. Darling is always conservative in his estimates of business, but this time he acknowledged that Easter was the best he ever had.

Albert Goldenson expressed himself as well pleased with his Easter business at the new store of Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson. Everything was sold out clean and new stock had to be purchased on the Saturday before Easter.

Miss Eileen Low, of Stuart Low & Co., London, Eng., was in this city and surrounding territory last week in the interests of her firm, having come here from San Francisco.

Manager Harry Friend, of Wright's Flower Shop, said that during the earlier days it looked as though Easter would not be particularly good, but Saturday and Sunday beat all records. As usual, an enormous amount of stock was handled in baskets.

C. E. Gutting was in with a fine batch of forced rambler roses for Easter.

The first meeting of the new board of directors of the American Florists' Exchange was held April 20. The entire board, consisting of F. R. Hills, John Polder, H. R. Richards, P. Priamos and Frank Warner, was present, also T. H. Wright, the retiring managing director, who helped out with suggestions with regard to improvements in the business. He also loaned an office room and other conveniences. Financially, and in every other way, the market has been a complete success, and everything points at present to much greater usefulness in the near future. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The warm weather of last week brought all spring flowers in rapidly. Roses are fine and plentiful. Lilae is coming to market in prime condition, and there is still some crab apple and Japanese quince. Gypsophila and many other early summer flowers are arriving. Sweet peas are now in excellent condition, and snapdragons, French and other marigolds, and many kinds of primroses, are all good. The heat and the beginning of the trade winds have injured the violet crop. Growers are not bringing many violets to market, and wholesalers are finding it impossible to take care of the demand for violets. Tulips are still good and plentiful, but the tulip crop has passed its zenith. Ranunculi and anemones are more plentiful. There is no scarcity of lilies of the valley, and orchids are being cut in sufficient quantities to meet the demand. Gardenias are less scarce than they were. On the whole, there is such an abundance of stock that the market is almost glutted.

in spite of the fact that retail florists seem to be doing a good business. The only noticeable shortage is in carnations. These are scarce, and it is predicted that prices will soon go higher, as there are not sufficient carnations in sight to meet the Mothers' day demand. Calla lilies came in late this year and the frost early in April injured the crop that was being nursed for Easter. A good crop of calla lilies is now coming in. Easter lilies, both cut and potted, were abundant for Easter, though their season is now close to its end. Japanese iris is not yet in, but there is Spanish and a little Dutch iris in the market.

coöperative Easter advertising in the local daily newspapers, and these firms believe that this action helped to stimulate the local demand for flowers, which was excellent throughout the Easter season. "The florists' telegraph delivery service is going ahead faster than ever," declared Mrs. Darbee.

J. A. Axell has a number of ideas for stimulating trade during times like the present, when the market is glutted with stock. "If all the local florists in the city would get together and advertise roses like these, for a dollar a bunch, for a 3-day sale, the public would flock to buy," declared Mr. Axell, as he held up a fine bunch of fresh roses. "There would not be roses enough to meet the demand. Another idea that would get us front-page mention in the daily newspapers would be to send out a few wagon-loads of flowers to hospitals and other public institutions," said Mr. Axell.

The C. Kooyman Co. has a fine window display of potted lilies of the valley grown in a room at the rear of the store, which is perpetually heated from the boilers of the Flower hotel, overhead. It was the idea of F. W. Davis, of Kooyman's, to utilize this heat, and the result is all that he hoped. It is now possible to cut lilies of the valley for the customer while he waits. The firm is going into the growing of these more extensively.

The Russell roses, with stems four feet in length, grown by the E. W. McLellan Co., are still bringing fame to that firm. Some fine gardenias are also being cut at the McLellan nurseries.

Joseph's workroom is being enlarged considerably and improved, on account much satisfaction as carnations, and the trade could meet all demands." Mr. Inoue added that this firm had enjoyed the most prosperous Easter in its history. There were not so many $20 orders as last year, but the great increase in orders of about $5 more than made up for the difference.

Enomoto & Co. enjoyed a better Easter business than last year, although flowers were cheaper. They shipped out many roses, Spanish iris, tulips and eucalyptus boughs with buds and pods. Violets they have discontinued shipping, because the quality of the stock is no longer good. Cecile Brunner roses, which were scarce earlier in the year, are now coming plentifully from their nurseries.

M. Domoto is often called the Lily King, because of the large number of lilies grown by Domoto Bros. Many thousands of Easter lilies, both cut and potted, were handled in this firm's large Easter business.

The Matsonia, the Empire State and a number of other big steamers, sailing last week, kept several of the leading florists working at full pressure to fill orders for bon voyage baskets. Podesta & Baldocchi have a standing order to decorate all the boats of one large trans-Pacific line on sailing day, and this always adds to the rush of work when several steamers leave on the same date, as bon voyage baskets are becoming a regular part of the telegraph delivery work at this seaport.

L. B. Harding, formerly of Podesta & Baldocchi's, has gone into the growing business for himself, in the trans-bay region.

"Easter business was good, even better than last year," was the statement made by Frank Thatcher, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.

Avansino Bros. & Co. have some brown and yellow flowers featured in their window that cause some people to ask, "Are they orchids?" The answer is always, "No, they are tulips, 'Cap' specials." Louis Capurro, of this firm, says he was fortunate in securing an unusual variety of the parrot tulip, and growing it successfully at his brother-in-law's place across the bay. Here, too, he has just planted some fig trees from Palermo, Cal., that were two years in quarantine.

F. C. Jaeger & Son had an excellent Easter business. "We sold everything out and had to stay up all of one night and part of another, to keep up with the demand," said F. C. Jaeger, Jr. This firm is now laying its plans for a big Mothers' day display.

The Suzanne Floral Co. had two small weddings to add to its busy Easter trade. Its last banquet was at Tait's cafe, for 250 guests. The decorations were all in roses.

The California Floral Co. has been busy with funeral orders. A pall recently made was of Ophelia roses and lilac.

Charles C. Navlet's dahlia bulbs are just coming in. The cold earlier in the year caused them to be late and the firm is now busy filling previous orders. Potted bougainvilleas are coming in from the nurseries, and make a fine display in the store. It was formerly believed that this ornamental climbing plant would only grow in the south, but it is now found that it can be cultivated successfully in northern California, if placed in a sunny spot.

The Growers' Floral Co. is fortunate in having fine carnations. The firm did an excellent Easter business. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The Easter trade was fully up to the expectations of all in the trade. Easter lilies dominated the market, selling at from 17½ cents to 25 cents. There was an abundance of potted hyacinths and tulips, which moved remarkably well, but at lower values than those of a year ago. Hydrangeas and roses were also popular and were all disposed of. In cut flowers the call was strong for roses of various grades. Corsage bouquets were numerous, but carnations and Darwin tulips were not in brisk demand. A feature of the business was the large sale of cut Easter lilies at $4 per dozen. These were used chiefly for church decorating work.

Fred M. Young reports a good clean-up in Easter lilies. He was unable to take care of the demand for his lilies. His stock was A-1.

The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. did a large shipping business during Easter week in lilies and various pot plants. This firm had a large call for fancy flower boxes, of which it makes a specialty during holidays.

Miss Gertz, formerly with the Smith Flower Shop, has taken a position with Clarke Bros. in the retail store.

Niklas & Son report a large sale of Easter lilies, with the Easter business up to expectations. N. V. H.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The Easter clean-up of lilies for the Seattle trade was generally as good as could have been expected, although some dealers found it necessary to make last-minute sacrifices in the matter of prices. This was not due to lack of demand for lilies, but to an unfavorable condition created by foreign growers' activities. All over the city temporary stands or arrangements with cigar store men, grocers and seed dealers had been made by foreign growers, who at once named a price on the lilies 15 to 25 cents per bloom under that at which the florists started the holiday run. Some stores were less affected than others.

"Not only should this not have been done from the standpoint of good business on the growers' part," says one of the local florists on the committee appointed by the Seattle Florists' Association to check the temporary merchant situation, "but it was not good, clean business on the part of the merchants taking in the lilies. Can you imagine the cry there would be from the cigar men, if at Christmas time we commenced to sell a line of cigars in our flower shops at less than market prices, or any other of the lines which handled flowers? We are inclined to raise this point through the retail trade section of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and through other retail associations, and believe they will quickly recognize the justice of our claims."

Beyond this annoyance, there was a volume of business in Seattle for Easter which was highly satisfactory, considering the actual amount of stock sold, which surpassed last season considerably.

Various Notes.

M. Wallmark, Everett, Wash., was a trade visitor last week. He reports an excellent Easter business at Everett.

The Hollywood Gardens enjoyed a successful Easter trade, foreign growers' activity interfering with its sales hardly at all. As usual, a number of novelty containers were featured for the day and this shop's buyers showed a keen interest in these. The passing of Easter has brought about a return of interest in decorations of real size and several important commissions have been handled during the week. The greenhouse deliveries of Easter lilies were ready in ample time this year, and made a fine showing. Good progress on the rose crop is reported.

With an augmented sales and delivery force, the Pinehurst Floral Co. was in a position to care for the good Easter business in fine order. The medium-sized plants were the items most commonly wanted and buyers also showed a preference for shorter-stemmed plants. This shop has been featuring some fine hydrangeas in its windows.

Irving Harris, of the Bon Marche Flower Shop, advises that there has been a surprisingly long season on seeds this spring, due, undoubtedly, to the lateness of the season. The last few days, with the better weather on hand, have brought more inquiries on bedding stock.

Francis H. Brown, C. W. Jepsen and Gertrude Jepsen have incorporated the firm of O. W. Jepsen & Co., with a capital stock of $5,000, to engage in the manufacture and sale of artificial flowers. It is understood they are planning a local retail salesroom in competition with real flowers.

General business for Kenney's is showing a healthy increase as the season advances, according to William Desmond, and this is especially true of the call for potted stock. Funeral work has also been heavy.

A good-sized crowd was on hand Tuesday evening, April 18, for the regular meeting of the bowling committee of the Seattle Florists' Association, and some good scores were chalked up. It is plain that the team members are out to repay Tacoma for the short end of the score handed them at the recent meeting between the two.

The Orpheum Floral Co. cleaned out its supply of Easter lilies early Easter Sunday and was forced to draw on other trade sources for enough stock to start the next week. A special sale on potted plants has been featured in later window displays.

The City Flower Shop, following its annual custom, developed one of the most attractive Easter windows seen in Seattle. The front half was wired off and banked in the rear with moss. In the foreground were placed a score or more of baby bunnies. These not only attracted attention to the window and its lilies, but proved an item of ready sale with the younger element among the shop's customers.

A. B. Matthiesen advises that the cut of carnations from his greenhouses is still short of what might be expected, but as normal spring weather comes this condition is sure to disappear.

With its new basement salesroom warehousing and exhibiting the lilies, and all lily pots marked in plain figures, so that inexperienced salespeople had no trouble with prices, the Woodlawn Flower Shop was able to care for the holiday rush with a minimum of fuss and flurry. The general arrangement of the main salesroom did not have to be changed much, and the routing of lily customers through the upstairs packing room and down into the basement served to give them a better idea of the magnitude of this establishment. AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

MARSHALL H. DURYEA, of New York, was at Chicago last week on one of his flying business trips.

THE assets of the Everette R. Peacock Co., reports the receiver, are growing. Glad tidings? No. The onion sets are sprouting, that is all!

THE annual spring meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association will be held at Omaha, Neb., Saturday, April 29, at 10 a. m., at the Hotel Fontenelle. Discussion will be entirely of garden seeds.

THE heavy demand for shrubs and fruit trees has made it necessary for the S. Bryson Ayres Seed Co., of Kansas City, Mo., to take over 6,000 square feet of additional space in an adjoining basement, which was formerly occupied by a restaurant.

A VOLUNTARY assignment was made March 31 by the William A. Davis Seed Co., Bozeman, Mont., for the benefit of creditors. It is anticipated that the liabilities will be met in full when the stocks on hand, particularly peas, have been realized upon.

A PUBLICITY committee has been appointed by the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association. It consists of F. W. Kellogg, Milwaukee, chairman; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, and M. H. Duryea, of New York. The committee will have charge of the publicity plans formulated at the recent meeting of the organization.

THE Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association has adopted a slogan, "Better Seeds, Better Crops." An emblem has been formed by arranging the words, one below another, in a rectangle. Within the "o" of "crops" appears the name of the organization on a shield, from which is suspended a pair of scales, and the word, "Reliability," below.

HOLLAND bulb salesmen are centering on New York, preparatory to sailing next week for home. Some go back almost empty-handed, but the representatives of well known houses with established trade are satisfied with the results of the season's work. They recognize that conditions are not what they were, that competition is keener than ever before and that it may be some time before an established state of affairs will be developed in the bulb trade.

J. E. CURRY, Washington state seed inspector, announces that during April it has been necessary to condemn large quantities of seed in different parts of the state of Washington, because the weed content was too high, or because lots were improperly labeled. Red clover and orchard grass seed has been the one most commonly affected, and the majority of the lots found wanting came from shipping points in the Willamette valley, in Oregon. Mr. Curry says it is his understanding that all of the good seed grown there this year has already been sold into the east, leaving the poorer lots for western sale and consumption.

LILIUM CANDIDUM PRICES UP.

Last year the American trade was astonished when the French bulb growers pushed up the prices to unheard-of heights, adding more than fifty per cent to the 1920 prices on Lilium candidum bulbs. But the limit was not then reached. Preliminary offers on bulbs of this flower reveal an advance of approximately twenty-five per cent over the high prices of 1921. Contrary to last year's quotations, advances this season are largest on the smaller-sized bulbs and less on the biggest sizes. The prices quoted on Lilium candidum by a Paris firm are here given, with the prices of 1920 and 1921 alongside for comparison. The quotations are f. o. b. PEACOCK REPORTED INDICTED.

True bills against Everette R. Peacock and four others, former officers of the Everette R. Peacock Seed Co. or officers of the Milwaukee-Irving bank, were reported to have been voted by the grand jury at Chicago.

Formal indictments will probably be returned before Chief Justice Scanlan before the end of the week, it was said. It is expected that they will contain at least twelve counts against Peacock and his codefendants, charging them with various forms of conspiracy to obtain funds from the Milwaukee-Irving bank by fraudulent means.

The four who, it is said, are held with Peacock to be responsible for the frenzied financial deals which resulted in a $450,000 shortage in the Milwaukee-Irving bank are: Axel Setterberg, former vice-president of the seed company; Albert Sporleder, former president of the bank; Albert Gascon, former seed company officer, and Harold W. Anderson, cashier of the bank.

The circumstances which led to the indictment mentioned were described in last week's issue of The Review.

REVISING A MAILING LIST.

Buying Buyers with Advertising.

Do you want to build up a mailing list of names of purchasers? Would you like to eliminate the waste of your printed matter which reaches the mere information seeker? The firm of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, operates under the principle that when you meet a man who is willing to pay out even the small sum of $2 as a material evidence that his æsthetic nature craves development, you can make up your mind that right here is material for a permanent customer. "But," you ask, "how am I to distinguish between the two men?" That is easy. You let them tell you themselves. You simply place a stimulus before them and observe what their reactions are towards it. The results are the foundation of your active mailing list. The manner in which the Stumpp & Walter Co. has worked up an excellent mailing list was described in the April 20 issue of Printers' Ink by James True, as follows:

"For several weeks this spring advertisements appeared in the rotogravure

"These advertisements measure about five inches by two columns; they illustrate the flowers, and are surrounded by a heavy border. But they make no mention of a catalogue, although they are designed to secure names for catalogue distribution for the Stump & Walter Co., New York.

Making Bulb the Leader.

"About five years ago," explained William A. Sperling, secretary of the company, "we determined to reduce our catalogue waste by getting people interested first in some item of our merchandise. We knew that thousands of copies of our printed material were unproductive because they were being mailed to the merely curious, who answered the advertisements that urged them to send for free literature.

"We concluded that if we could build up a mailing list of purchasers rather than inquirers, it would be very much more productive. So we decided to try assortments of bulbs as leaders, for two reasons. First, they are popular with nearly all growers of flowers. Second, much of the bulb planting is done in the fall, when trade in our business is slack and we need the business to reduce overhead and to keep our organization intact. Both tulip and gladiolus bulbs are easy to cultivate, and the flowers are admired by everyone.

"The first special offer we advertised was a generous assortment of tulip bulbs. That was in the fall of the year, and the returns were encouraging. The next spring we advertised gladiolus bulbs—fifty mixed for $2, postage paid. Thousands of orders came to us, and we have advertised the special mixtures every fall and spring since.

"Because of the advertising we have gained something of a reputation as bulb specialists, and this department has grown splendidly. Now we have large standing orders with our Holland growers, and all the bulbs we handle are grown especially for us.

Tying Firm Name to Garden.

"The bulbs that we are now advertising are the best quality that it is possible to obtain—we cannot afford to offer anything else at any price. To get the results we are after, the advertised value must be exceptional and genuine. If a purchaser selected a similar assortment from our regular stock, he would pay from $5 to $6 for it. And if he does not fully appreciate the unusual value of his purchase when he gets the bulbs, he is invariably convinced of his bargain, we believe, when the flowers bloom in his garden.

"In both our spring and fall advertising we try to tie up, in the minds of readers, the thought of gardens with our firm name. That is one idea, but the main intent of all our advertising is to build up a mailing list of the names of people who have made a purchase from us.

"Every purchaser of our special bulb offer gets our catalogue. The next season we make the same offer through the mails to our list that we advertise in newspapers and magazines. And we send our catalogue only on request and to those who order bulbs. In this way our list is almost automatically kept alive.

"From time to time, of course, we mail folders, circulars and letters on seasonal specialties, as a follow-up to our catalogue. And we know from experience that all our mailings, going only to those who have purchased from us, bring a much higher percentage of orders and an average order of greater amount than would be possible if the mailings went to a list made up of people who had requested only catalogues. Beyond all doubt, our decision of several years ago has been more than justified by results.

"So we do not advertise our catalogue. We advertise, instead, special offerings of bulbs. We mix them carefully to insure variety, and we mail them in attractive packages with full directions for planting and cultivating.

"The price of the package—always $2 for fifty bulbs—is sufficient to warrant us in believing that every purchaser has a garden of some size and enjoys the cultivation of flowers. And this is further indicated by the fact that we eventually sell other bulbs, seeds and Making Future Sales Easier.

"Our correspondence shows us that the price of our special offers creates in the minds of the majority of purchasers the thought that they have become customers of our house. This makes future sales easier, and such a favorable state of mind is impossible to establish with a purchase of ten or twenty-five cents, for a collection of seeds or plants whose only appeal is cheapness, or by selling the catalogue for a small amount which is to be credited on the first order.

"Then the unusual variety of the assortment stimulates interest in the catalogue. When the flowers bloom, most purchasers desire to know the names of the different specimens. Some of them are illustrated and all are described in the catalogue, and the purchasers study the book in order to identify their favorites, which many of them reorder the following season.

"In planning our special offers we have tried to give purchasers the best values they ever received, something that would create both an immediate and a future favorable impression, tie up our name with their gardens, stimulate their interest in our catalogue and other direct mail material, and induce future business. The cost of doing this with our offer—merchandise and advertising—is just what we receive for it.

"The net selling cost runs about half the percentage of cost usual in selling seeds and bulbs profitably by mail. But it must be remembered that we are advertising an extraordinary value. The mixture of fifty bulbs, the package, printed enclosures, labor, postage and advertising cost us just $2. However, we are very well satisfied to break even on the proposition."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

D. V. Howell, Peconic, N. Y.—Illustrated catalogue of the Howell specialty, dahlias; fourteen pages, in a brown and blue cover. "I give my whole time to the growing of dahlias," says Mr. Howell. "My bulbs," he says again, "are all field-grown; no plants or pot-grown bulbs."

William P. Yeagle, Bristol, Pa.—"Wholesale List of Pansy, Vegetable and Other Plants in Season," a 6-page folder. The stock listed includes a general line of vegetable plants and half a dozen staple species of flower plants. Pansies are a specialty. Strawberry plants also are offered.

Charles D. Ball, Philadelphia, Pa.—"Palms and Decorative Plants," an illustrated folder. In palms, two of the leading species of kentia are listed, in a full line of sizes. The other plants offered include one species each of pandanus and latania. "I sell to florists only," says Mr. Ball. "Prices given," he adds, "are my uniform wholesale prices and are intended for all customers."

Mas-Art Basket Works, Inc., Oakland, Cal.—The makers and purveyors of artistic baskets would naturally be expected to issue an artistic catalogue and there is no doubt that this catalogue will fulfill the expectation. It contains twenty-eight large pages, about 9x12 inches, printed on a good grade of enameled paper; it is finely illustrated and is bound in an exceptionally substantial, marbled brown cover, embellished with the company's name and trade-mark in different shades of green. Besides baskets, the stock comprises wickerwork ferneries, bird cages, floor lamps, wedding accessories, chairs, desks, tables, etc. "All the articles described are made in our own factory and we originate all our designs," says the company. The prices are not quoted in the body of the catalogue, but in an insert at the beginning.

Bellaire, O.—Frank King, who suffered a considerable loss from the hail storm which swept that section of the country recently, will erect a new greenhouse, 20x40 feet, in May of this year.

Platteville, Wis.—The Platteville Floral Co. says that Easter business went beyond all expectations. The firm was stocked more heavily than ever before and everything was cleaned up Easter Sunday morning. April 25 this firm passed its thirteenth year. This Easter has been the best of all holidays so far.

Berwick, Pa.—D. W. Davis has opened a new flower store on East Front street.

Lansing, Mich.—Dwight W. Laylin is a newcomer as a grower of gladioli and is making a great success of it.

Brooklyn, Mich.—Charles W. Feller is planning to build a greenhouse this summer. He is now planting several acres of irises, gladioli and peonies.

Freeport, Ill.—Bauscher Bros. afford confirmation of the report as to an unusually strong demand for bench rose plants. "We were all sold out of bench roses a few days after The Review went out carrying our ad," they say. At a little later date bench plants probably will be more plentiful, as growers now wait for Mothers' day before replanting.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE late season has handicapped nurserymen in packing and shipping orders. Snow has fallen in some localities since Easter, causing further delay.

AN offer in the classified columns of the items on your wholesale list on which you are "long" would add to your profits and cut down the brush pile.

As agricultural conditions improve and the farmer's buying power shows signs of returning, nurserymen in the west and south anticipate a marked shortage of stock within another year.

A LARGE greenhouse is being constructed on the estate of Irwin A. Yarnell, at Lake Wales, Fla. This place consists of approximately 4,000 acres of land, which is a colonization project. There are about seventy acres of nursery stock on the grounds.

EXPLANATION of the heavy demand for perennials is given by N. I. W. Kriek, of the Weller Nurseries Co., Holland, Mich., who declares last summer "took the life out of many hardy plants and the winter, too, did its share." This firm has had heavy orders, the total running far ahead of last year.

THE nursery trade has had an excellent April. Although the ground has been wet over large sections of the country, making planting slow, the spring has been so late it has made an unusually long planting season. Over the eastern half of the United States the season is about two weeks late.

ARBOR day was commemorated April 22 in the state of Rhode Island, and in Providence and adjoining neighborhoods more than 31,000 shrubs and plants were planted. These were furnished by Daniel A. Clarke, of the Red Oak Nurseries, Fiskeville, R. I., who personally attended to the distribution and gave instructions as to the planting.

As spring advances, the amount of scorching and winter-killing is found to be tremendous among evergreens in the vicinity of Boston, Mass. One prominent nurseryman estimates his loss at $20,000, and all nurseries and private owners are hard hit. Rhododendrons, kalmias, leucothoes, andromedas, Evonymus radicans, thujas, retinisporas, junipers and hemlocks are among the worst sufferers. The winter was not severe, but the ground froze up while the roots had insufficient moisture. Then the terrible ice storm came in late November, and there was a somewhat scant snow protection, but much ice-covered ground for months. This, with generally clear skies and cold, cutting winds, made the winter an unusually trying one.

WINTER DAMAGE TO THUJAS.

It has been reported from various sources all over the country that thujas, or arbor-vitæ, have suffered seriously the last winter. This seems to have been caused by the warm, sunny days, which started the sap in the branches, followed by freezing temperature at night. The outer branches have killed out, and the foliage has turned brown in many cases. A close examination of these trees shows that while some of them are dry and brown, they will no doubt grow from the live buds below the line of winter injury and satisfactorily recover after the present growing season. There is not so much cause for alarm as might be expected from a casual observation of this damage.

Thujas were damaged the worst of all evergreens, although some damage was noted on some other varieties also.

PLANTING CHRISTMAS TREES.

The Illinois State Nurserymen's Association is ever on the alert to take advantage of all opportunities offered it to turn a disadvantage into an advantage. Because the state of Illinois has prohibited the shipment of Christmas trees from the bug-infested sections of the east, and because the forests of Michigan and Wisconsin must not be destroyed, the association is advocating the planting of these trees in connection with the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, now being carried on by the Illinois nurserymen.

Among some of the reasons given by members of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association for the increased interest in the planting of Christmas trees are that these trees are profitable to grow, they bring moisture, they are easy to grow and they will create an interest in

Dreer's Pot Grown Hardy Perennials

The Stock here offered, all of the best planting size, is pot grown unless otherwise noted. It is superior at all times to field grown stock, and particularly so late in the season, there being no risk of loss even under unfavorable weather conditions. Extensive planters, among these the leading Landscape Architects, have for many years shown their appreciation of the Dreer Pot Grown Perennials.

the forestation of 11,000,000 acres of poor land in Illinois.

The Norway spruce is the best variety to grow, while white spruce will also make good Christmas trees. The trees that are called "once transplanted" are the ones to plant. The cost of the trees is from $60 to $100 per 1,000. The soil must be well drained and fairly rich.

YOUNG EVERGREENS.

When is the best time to buy evergreens to line out? Should they be reset every year to make transplanting easy when they grow larger?

J. A. C.—Pa.

Now is the time to buy young evergreens to line out. The last half of April and the first half of May is the best time for this work. The young plants do not need to be replanted more frequently than every second year, and as they grow larger, three years may elapse between transplantings.

HARDY MAGNOLIA TREE.

There is now blooming on one of the lawns of Monmouth a magnolia tree about six feet high. I have had about twenty calls for this tree and have written to several nurseries about it, but they do not seem to know anything about this tree. Will you kindly tell me what kind it is and what nurseries have it in stock? It is making a big hit here and I should like to buy a few for my trade.

C. H. S.—Ill.

The tree referred to is Magnolia Soulangiana. This is a splendid variety, so far as the hardy magnolias are concerned. It does not have much merit, however, but sells because folks enjoy something odd. The flowering almond is a much better plant. The hardy magnolia was propagated extensively in Holland and was imported to this country before the quarantine went into effect. Several California growers and one or two in the south are producing the tree.

RHODODENDRONS FROM SEED.

Rhododendrons can be propagated from the seed without much trouble. The receptacles in which the seeds are to be grown should be well drained pans, filled with sandy peat. Loam is not nearly so good as the sandy peat. Water the soil in the pans before sowing the

WHAT THEY SAY OF EASTER

AT PADUCAH, KY.

Easter business, according to Schmaus Bros., was fine. There were good sales in all lines of plants and cut flowers. The demand for corsages was great. In plants, lilies were in greatest demand. The trade was almost equal to that of 1920. Easter might have been still better, had there not been so many tulips, irises and other cut flowers from open ground. The season is the best ever for outdoor planting.

AT SYRACUSE, N. Y.

"Easter business was the best we ever had," reports W. E. Day. "Medium-priced stock sold the best. I was much surprised at the number of corsages ordered. We were fortunate in regard to weather and stock, having plenty of both of good quality. Telegraph business was much better. Things in general are improving, and we hope to see a great year here in 1922."

AT IRVINGTON, N. J.

The Easter trade was fine, reports E. Jacobi. He says: "We doubled the amount of our sales over last year, and we have no fear for the future. We could have increased the amount of business transacted at Easter a great deal if this section had not experienced the hot wave, April 11 and 12, which ruined many plants. Fortunately, however, I had a good cellar, where I stored many of the plants and saved them. It was a man's job to carry about 1,000 pans and several thousand pots into the cellar, but I am glad I was able to do it."

AT SCRANTON, PA.

The Easter business in Scranton, Pa., among the florists this year was fine and it more than met expectations, considering the coal strike, which went into effect here April 1. The strike did not seem to affect in the least expenditures on flowers. It would appear that Easter is one time of the year when people will have flowers. Of course, the strike has not been in effect long enough to embarrass the general public and the miners have been working so steadily for the last few months, making from $200 to $400 per month, that they have considerable savings and there is a great deal of money in circulation in this vicinity.

The supply of blooming plants and cut flowers within a radius of eighty miles of Scranton was abundant. Cut flowers were completely cleaned up. In plants, however, some were left in practically every greenhouse and store. Hyacinths and tulips were exquisite, and hydrangeas were in a fair condition—the French varieties do not grow so large a flower. Genistas were in prime condition; lilies, in abundance and quality, were above the standard; cinerarias and primulas were practically out of the market and, although a few were to be had, the warm weather put them out of commission; baby ramblers and climbing roses were, if anything, more beautiful than ever, probably due to the lateness of the season. Corsage bouquets were in great demand and have become one of the prime features in the cut flower line at Easter. Each florist in this vicinity reports larger sales and more cash receipts than those of any previous year. G. R. Clark.

AT UTICA, N. Y.

This Easter's business was the best ever, report C. F. Baker & Son. They thought the business of last year was the greatest, but this year's runs ahead. There was no shortage of stock, and a strong demand for corsages, orchids, violets and valley was noted. In plants there were ramblers, blue hydrangeas, lilacs, lilies, spiræas and baskets of growing spring flowers. The greatest trouble was experienced in making deliveries. The trade began early in the week and continued until the doors were closed. The entire force worked two available supply for Easter. As usual, the Easter lily led in sales, closely followed by the hydrangea and the bulbous plants. The genista and the spiræa were looked upon askance and did not sell as readily as the others. Combination plant baskets took the place of azaleas and helped move the doubtful plants. Roses found a fair sale. The supply of cut flowers was sufficient to meet the demand and, consequently, the prices did not soar as high as usual. Roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and daffodils were to be had in quantity and moved quite readily. Spring flowers, sweet peas, roses, lilies and carnations would probably be the order of their salability. Corsages and spring flower baskets were in considerable demand. The telegraph business showed an increase over that of last season, both in the incoming and outgoing orders. If this Easter has not taught us anything new, it at least has shown that proper advertising, combined with quality material at reasonable prices, has brought about favorable results."

AT BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

"A grand, glorious Easter trade for Bridgeport," was the general report of the local florists, and the weather the latter part of the week was all that could be desired. Easter lilies would have held their own for popularity had there been the usual supply, but there was a general shortage of this stock. There was an enormous stock of bulbous plants of all varieties, which sold readily, and in most cases the prices were between twenty-five and thirty-five per cent lower than in previous years. In the first part of the week bulbous plants were most popular, but in the last two days the demand for corsage bouquets was exceedingly large.

Robert Hawkins reports everything cleaned out.

Al. Vogel says that trade was far better than expectations, and, while there were plenty of bulbous plants, Easter lilies were scarce.

Among North Bridgeport florists, Mr. Doebeli was kept busy with his two stores and says his pot plants sold for practically the same prices as last year.

John Beck & Son had their two extra stores in the center of the city to handle their large Easter trade, and these, with the prices lower than in previous years, helped to clean everything up in great shape.

Gus F. Herthal, of the West End Florist, says that while there was a shortage of Easter lilies, there were plenty of other bulbous plants, and in addition some fine rose bushes and lilacs, which sold readily. By Sunday at 10 a. m. this establishment had all orders delivered.

At the Park Gardens both cut flowers and pot plants were popular. Corsage bouquets of roses, sweet peas and violets were in great demand. They had two books full of telegraph orders to be sent to all parts of the country.

Victor Carwardine was completely cleaned out of everything and had a rush of funeral and wedding work all in nights and two days to fill the orders. Buyers were recruited from all classes of people. A fleet of seven automobiles was unable to make deliveries as fast as the sales were made. All in the trade were completely sold out in this section. C. F. Baker & Son are an old established company. They have had forty-five years of experience in growing and dealing in flowers, and the members of this firm find that the present and future of the business is brighter than ever.

AT INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

"Were the Easter business a barometer by which to gauge the prosperity of the country," states A. Wiegand's Sons Co., "it would surely indicate a return to a more settled and normal state of affairs, for it was undoubtedly of greater volume than that of last year. It is quite possible that this condition resulted through the stimulus of the recent national flower show. In general it may be said that the plant end of the Easter business had somewhat the better output, despite the fact that the lateness of the season threatened to reduce the

the one week, so that with their Easter trade all hands were kept busy.

The Arcade Flower Shop reports Easter trade satisfactory.

Frank C. Foehrenbach had a fine supply of bulbous plants and was completely sold out. The demand here for Easter lilies was greater than the supply. I. L. B.

NEWARK, N. J.

As usual, immediately following an active holiday trade, the business in Newark has been a little slow since Easter, except for funeral work and a few weddings. The sale of seeds, hardy rose bushes and other hardy plants for spring setting is increasing daily. Large quantities of pansies for outdoor setting are being sold.

Phillips Bros. report this year's Easter trade the best in the firm's history. There was a larger sale of plants than of cut flowers. While violets were scarce and generally of poor quality, the firm succeeded in getting a quantity of blooms of good quality, which sold for $4 per hundred. Large quantities of sweet peas were sold, these, in a way, taking the place of violets. R. B. M.

TORONTO, ONT.

Looking back at Easter, after there has been a chance to compare business with other years, it may be said that business was satisfactory. Those who did not order so heavily as in other years were sold out and the others had little left over. The lilies and azaleas, which were fine, big, healthy plants, sold well. Of the cut flowers there was a big demand for sweet peas, while lily of the valley sold well.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club had a big meeting to greet Professor Crow, who is retiring from the position as professor of horticulture at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Professor

Turning a Disadvantage Into An Advantage

Every summer down at Southampton, L. I., they hold a flower show, which is rather of a society event.

But aside from making something for the moneyed folks to do, it sure stimulates the gardeners to grow better things.

It happened that last year a great big pole had been put up right in front of the Exhibition tent entrance.

There were a lot of hard things said about it, until along comes a lassie of 18 summers, and remarks kind of offhand like: "You men make me smile. What's the good of talking about it? Why don't you do something about it?"

"Why don't you put vines on it, and doll it all up with flowers, and make it an attractive feature instead of a detracting one?"

Of course we all felt like 13 cents, but straightway turned that pole into a joy.

You should have heard the comments people made.

One old Moneybags said in a gruff way: "Bully, bully! That's what I call turning a disadvantage into an advantage. Made all my money on just such disadvantages."

What he said, kind of set me thinking. Maybe it will you, too. Might help both of us in our F. T. D. business.

Crow will take postgraduate work at an American college and will probably locate in the United States eventually. He gave an excellent illustrated lecture on the different flora of the various countries and showed how moisture and temperature affect plant life. He was accorded a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of the lecture.

Professor Crow will be succeeded by A. H. McLennan, a vegetable specialist. The gardeners and florists feel that, as far as profession is concerned, it is a backward step.

Florists of Toronto have been enjoying considerable telegraph delivery business of late. This applies to both incoming and outgoing business. The

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business was fine all last week. The wave of buying, started at Easter, has kept on. The freedom with which money has been spent indicates that there is a great amount in circulation, notwithstanding the economy manifested in some lines of business. Easter Monday was a banner day. The new city executive, Mayor Cromwell, and the other Democratic officials who were recently elected, took their oaths of office that day. They were the recipients of floral tributes worth approximately $6,000. More money was spent for flowers than in any former city administration. Huge baskets of cut flowers, plants and designs formed a mass of color in the council chambers and offices of the various members. Two women were elected to the upper house of the council, which added to the interest of the occasion. In addition to the municipal celebration, there were numerous funerals Easter Monday and many orders for hospitals and sick rooms. Stock was cut freely all the week, but everything was used.

Various Notes.

Glenn K. Parker, manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., spent Friday, April 21, at Pleasant Hill, Mo. He went down to look over stock in the greenhouses. Incidentally, he spent a few hours fishing and caught twenty-one bass.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Carroll, Eldorado, Kan.; Mrs. Edwin Craft, Blue Rapids, Kan.; James Hayes, Topeka, Kan., and R. L. Isherwood, Chillicothe, Mo., were visitors last week.

Fifty per cent more church decorating was done by A. F. Barbe this Easter than last. Everything in the line of plants that could be rented was out.

Samuel Murray had orders for seven funerals Easter Monday.

Brown's Greenhouses are preparing for a heavy season of planting.

Easter Monday was the best, outside of a holiday, that Miss Boggess ever handled. Most of her work was for funerals, some of them out of town.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. handled quantities of Easter and calla lilies, purple and white heather, narcissi and outdoor Darwins through the week. Carnations and roses were especially fine.

Alfred H. Peterson, 42 years old, a veteran city detective, died April 20 of hemorrhage of the brain. He had been ill only a few days. Mr. Peterson had been connected with the police department since 1909. In 1913 a resolution was passed by the city council commending him for bravery in shooting a highwayman and protecting property after he himself had been shot and dangerously wounded by the bandit. and cleaned up on stock. He is remodeling the store. The interior is being painted in ivory white, flower beds are being planted and two fountains are being placed near the entrance. A Japanese garden, 74x120 feet, will be planted back of the store, which has a frontage of seventy-four feet on Main street. A truckload of lilacs was brought from the greenhouses at Lake Forest April 22, and sold well that day. A similar quantity was shipped to Chicago.

W. J. Barnes sold some beautiful pink spiraeas for Easter. His hydrangeas were popular sellers, next to the lilies. Easter business, he says, was excellent.

Adolph Mohr reports from twenty to twenty-five per cent better business at Easter than any previous holiday, including Christmas. All of his stock was fine and it was handled easily.

E. A. Humfeld was well supplied with stock from his own greenhouses Easter. He wholesaled lilies and cleaned up.

William Foith has planted 25,000 carnations. He did not sell much young stock and is well supplied in this line. His crop for Mothers' day never looked better than right now. His cut for Easter was somewhat short, owing to the fact that he held it back for Mothers' day.

O'Connell's Flower Shop had two of the largest baskets for the new council women and more than $500 in other work at the city hall April 17.

J. R. McGrail decorated the city hall for the inauguration of the new mayor April 17. Palms, smilax and lily plants were used. Mr. McGrail also had the major portion of the orders, having twelve out of the sixteen city wards. Two huge furniture vans and the store truck carried the flowers from the store

Girard's face, placed her on his shoulder and made his way to the fire escape and safety. Miller and Heney did the same with the children. An expert machinist finally entered the building and shut off the valve. It was two hours before repair work could be started.

Added space has been taken over by

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Easter Market.

Considering weather conditions, it is hard to figure out why Salt Lake City and vicinity obtained such a tremendous Easter business. Every day the week before Easter it snowed. Not all day every day, but when it was not snowing it was so cold that we wonder how people had nerve enough to be out. Easter morning Salt Lake City was buried under a foot of snow. Street cars were stalled, and about one-fourth of the telephones of the city were out of commission. Nevertheless, business was as good, and, with a great many florists, even better than last year, and last year was a record-breaker.

The supply of pot plants was larger and the quality better than ever before in the history of this section. All growers were sold out of most items four or five days before Easter. Easter lilies were completely booked up a week before the big day, and it can be said conservatively that a third more lilies could have been disposed of, had they been available.

Rambler roses at $2 to $4 per hundred were in larger supply than ever before, but all orders after Thursday, April 13, had to be turned down. The supply of hydrangeas was not ample, the prices on these ranging from $1 to $3. Spiræas were in big demand at $1.50 and $2 per hundred. Lilies brought 25 and 30 cents per bud. Aside from the above, there was a good supply of pelargoniums, hyacinths, Darwin and Murillo tulips, daffodils and lilies of the valley, but everything in bloom was readily sold. A few genistas and azaleas were in evidence, but these did not last long when the public began to buy.

A big supply of cut flowers was looked for this year, but, on account of weather conditions, all growers found it impossible to fill their orders. Darwin tulips were about the only item with supply equal to the demand, and these cleaned up just right. Rose prices ranged from $8 to $20 per hundred. Red and pink shades were mostly sought, but, on account of the shortage, even the White Killarneys, which are generally ignored, were all sold. Carnations were extremely scarce at $6 to $8 per hundred. The few Laddies offered at $12 per hundred were quickly taken. Daffodils were numerous, but more could have been used. Calla lilies were offered in limited amounts, at $2 per dozen. Excellent lily of the valley was in fair supply at $8 per hundred. On account of the shortage of Easter lilies, few cut lilies were offered, most of the stock being sold in pots.

As before stated, Easter business was great. It is possible that receipts would have been a little larger had the weather been good, but it could not have been much better, as there was little stock left in any of the greenhouses to sell.

Prices were about the same as last year. The moderately priced stock sold when you consider that one greenhouse company, located out in a valley of the Rocky mountains, where all is "wild and woolly," puts on the market flowers and plants of that weight for one flower day, it sounds different.

The Miller Floral Co., at Farmington—and, by the way, Farmington is only a small town located about mid-way between Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah—reports that the express company has just given it figures to show that its shipments of cut flowers and potted stock the week before Easter weighed a little more than twenty-five tons. It is likely that growers in the east will say that this is only a drop in the bucket. That is possibly true, but remember that Utah has only 449,000 population. Of course, Utah did not consume all of the amount before mentioned, as the company ships into eight states outside of its own.

"Did I hear someone ask what these twenty-five tons consisted of?" If so, will say that the following constituted the most of it: Five thousand Easter lilies, cut and potted; several hundred each of hydrangeas, spiræas, rambler and baby roses, hyacinths, daffodils, single, double and Darwin tulips; 2,500 pelargoniums, besides geraniums, potted lilies of the valley, ferns, palms, Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii, not to mention the cut of roses from 60,000 rose plants, carnations, daffodils, tulips, calla lilies, and other miscellaneous cut flowers.

This firm enjoyed the best Easter business in its history. Everything in the plant line was sold three days before Easter, and it was found necessary to cut all orders for cut flowers, and many orders had to be turned down entirely.

Various Notes.

Miss Childs, of the B. C. Morris Floral Co., reports better receipts this year than last. Everything cleaned up just right with this firm.

Sid Lambourne's new shop was a sorry looking flower store Saturday, April 15; just one rambler rose was left, in the plant line, and Sid had to buy flowers from a brother florist to fill his last cut flower orders. That he was satisfied one could tell by the beautiful smile he carried, even after the rush.

The store beautiful was that of the Miller Floral Co., on Broadway. This concern moved about 1,000 Easter lilies, besides several truckloads of other stock. One truck was kept busy all the week taking the Easter stock from the greenhouses to the store, and five trucks had to "keep it in high" all day and part of the night Friday, Saturday and Sunday to get the delivering done.

Miss Buble, of the Evans Floral Co., sold out completely Saturday night, April 15. Besides, she had a nice bunch of funeral orders for Easter Sunday morning.

Mr. Eldridge, of the National Florist, always smiles, but his smile this Easter was a trifle larger than ever.

The Huddart Floral Co. enjoyed the best Easter business in its history. This concern surely had its plants in full dress. Mats, ribbons, etc., were used extensively, and not without results. Practically everything was cleaned up Saturday night, April 15, and many of the Sunday orders were held up until more stock came from the greenhouses. "Some day!" said Mr. Alt. This firm handled the only azaleas seen in Salt Lake City. The plants were exceptionally fine.

At 9 p. m. Saturday night, April 15, the writer called on the Sanders Floral Co., just at closing time. Everything, plants and cut flowers, was sold, packed and all of the Saturday's orders delivered. This firm placed larger orders with its growers this year than ever before. From all appearances, the

E. A. Lambourne enjoyed the best business he ever had. The window display of this concern for Easter week was worth special mention.

The writer found Mr. Cooms, of the Ideal Floral Co., so busy selling out that he did not have time to say much. Before Easter he was somewhat afraid that people did not have the money, but since then he had changed his mind.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., visited Robert Miller, of the Miller Floral Co., for a few days, the first part of this month. Mr. Hill seemed well pleased with the west, and when he vis-

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Growers and retailers in Rochester and vicinity are much pleased with the Easter business. In some cases it surpassed their highest hopes. More stock has never been disposed of at Easter. Big sales were in the minority, but a greater number of medium-priced articles, with an overwhelming demand for a cheaper article, were prevalent. Some good advertising was done by several of the local men, which possibly benefited all, and brought gratifying results. Business resumed its regular routine by Tuesday, April 18, and things have been running well since. Stock is arriving in good supply and the demand has been good. Several weddings and other social events have made an added call, and funeral work has been extremely heavy. Some extra good lilies that did not get in for Easter have reached us, and are moving well. There is a heavy crop of roses reaching us, which includes extra fine Crusader, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, Ward and White Killarney. Sweetheart roses are selling well and are of good quality. Extra good American Beauties are seen, and move fairly well. Carnations are plentiful and clear easily. A heavy supply of jonquils reaches us each day. Yellow daisies, marguerites, mignonette and stocks appear to be plentiful. Sweet peas are plentiful and include several grades, the longest stock selling far more readily. Valley is of good quality and clears easily. Orchids have not been called for, particularly this last week. There is a good demand for calendulas, with which this market is fairly well supplied. Violets continue to reach us, but the quality, naturally, is quite poor.

Various Notes.

Sidney Kuney, of Waterloo, N. Y., was a visitor to the trade Thursday, April 20. He says they, the firm, did an excellent Easter business.

Miss Catherine Stevens, of the office force of George B. Hart, spent a few days at the home of her parents, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, April 25.

The nurserymen of Rochester, N. Y., are all exceptionally busy right now. Now that the good weather has opened up, shipping has commenced in real earnest, and forces are working overtime in order to cope with the big business.

The Hart & Vick seed store is particularly busy at this time. This season has opened up with a series of gratifying surprises, and a larger force has been found necessary. The outlook appears cheerful and the greatly increased mail order business is even bigger than was anticipated.

J. B. Keller Sons had a wonderfully attractive window display, in which red Darwins were used exclusively.

McGregor's had a pretty wedding decoration last week at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Candle standards, decorated with wild smilax, white carnamain aisle. The bouquets were unusual, that of the bride being violets and Easter lilies, with colonial bouquets for the maids. The table decorations at the hotel were pretty.

We had the largest quantity of good stock this year that we have ever had," said he, "and we not only did the largwe got everything delivered in good time." Taking me to the icebox, he showed me a large cut of flowers that had arrived that morning, and he stated that business was starting up unusually brisk.

While the supply of cut flowers was perhaps as large as that of last year, there was a comparative shortage, for, if there was any difference, cut flowers sold even better than did pot plants this year. More and more we see that Easter is not a one-flower day. Lilies are still popular, and probably always will be, but they are no longer the whole thing.

We only saw occasional groups of azaleas and the quality of these was not good. A few spireas were offered, and they sold readily. There was a fair stock of good hydrangeas and they sold readily, but the same could be said of everything. There was no really good stock left anywhere in the city, so far as we could learn, after dinner Easter Sunday.

Practically every florist in town reports a heavier business than that transacted at this time last year. Stock was exceptionally good, both in pot plants and in cut flowers. Lilies were of superlative quality, most plants having five or six flowers, and we saw no leggy plants; neither did we see any of the stunted plants that are sometimes offered. Hyacinths and tulips were exceptionally fine this year and they sold almost as readily as lilies.

Present Conditions.

Business has been unusually good since Easter, and, as the porch box and bedding plant season is at its height, everyone is likely to be kept on the jump for the next three or four weeks.

Roses are arriving in large quantities now and the quality is fine. Carnations are beginning to show the effect of the good, warm weather.

Your reporter returned home the day before Easter from a ten days' trip, visiting the great cut flower centers of the east; namely, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Cincinnati. It was especially pleasing to note that the Nashville public had as good stock, both in quality and assortment, as was offered in the cities mentioned above.

Roses are beginning to bloom in the open and lilacs are a thing of the past. The iris is already making a wonderful showing here, for Nashville is decidedly an iris city. There are probably more members of the National Iris Society living in Nashville than in any other city of its size, and there is a large local iris society. Kirkland, Chancellor of Vanderbilt University, and Floyd Bralliar, all of whom have been breeding the iris extensively, are much interested these days, as their seedlings are opening. Some really good varieties are appearing for the first time this spring.

With the largest building program on in the history of the south, the nurserymen are doing everything possible to produce a supply of ornamental stock for fall business. Probably the supply of good ornamental stock was never shorter in our district than at present. The fruit tree business has been rather disappointing, as it did not finish as well as it began. However, a full crop of fruit seems assured this year and, unless prices should be exceptionally low, this should bring about a good demand next year. Floyd Bralliar.

"We cleaned out our entire line of Easter plants, consisting of about 7,000 pots, besides our full line of cut flowers," said a member of Adams Florist. "Corsages were in the greatest demand and our business was the most successful in years. We were fortunate enough to secure a vacant building across the street from our store and used it as an annex for our Easter business. Without this building, we should last week was not so brisk as expected. The retailers expect much business from now until the middle of June, since, according to the social calendar, there will be plenty of weddings, dinners and social functions, which should create plenty of business for all the florists. The wholesale cut flower market opened April 17 with a splendid assortment of seasonable cut stock. Carnations, which have cleared daily, dragged somewhat last week, but prices in big lots keep the surplus down to a few thousand. Roses were plentiful in all varieties, while prices were lowered, in order to dispose of the great bulk of these. Premier is at its best and some extra fancy long were noticed, along with Columbia, Russell, Butterfly and Milady. White Killarney was in demand all last week. Bulbous stock in tulips, jonquils, calla lilies and valley had a heavy cut all last week. Sweet peas were too many for the demand and prices were lowered considerably, in order to avoid a glut and to make room for next day's shipments.

In the miscellaneous class the market has plenty of snapdragons, calendulas, daisies, pansies, lilacs, irises and mignonette.

In greens the market has plenty of everything the demand calls for.

With the approach of the planting-out season, plants of all kinds are in splendid demand.

Executive Committee Meets.

The members were the guests of President Amling, of the W. A. Amling Co., and William Robinson, of the A. N. Nielsen Co., on an automobile trip through Pana and a visit to the greenhouse establishments of the hosts. The Amling range, which is much enlarged since our last visit, now consists of 200,000 feet of glass in Premier, Columbia and Butterfly roses, all in fine shape and producing a large cut. The Nielsen range consists of 50,000 feet of glass, under which only roses are grown. The visitors found this range in first-class shape. The cut from this place is heavy daily. The cuts of both ranges are handled by H. G. Berning's St. Louis market. At noon the visitors were the guests of the Rotary Club for dinner at the Francis hotel. After-dinner talks by J. F. Ammann and W. A. Rowe were most pleasing to the Rotarians.

At 2 p. m., President Amling called the meeting to order, in the parlor of the Francis hotel. The minutes of the meeting held in St. Louis, February 28, were read and approved. The financial reports of the secretary and treasurer, stamped with the O. K. of the auditing committee, were read and a motion prevailed that both reports be accepted and filed. The secretary's report showed a number of delinquents on annual dues. It was moved that the secretary send out notices every thirty days to delinquents and special notices to 1921 delinquents, asking them to report their intentions regarding their membership, at the July meeting of the district. New members elected were: A. Jablonsky, P. Jablonsky and Arthur Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., and the firm of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill.

The resignations of J. M. Walther, of St. Louis, and Mrs. M. Copeland, of Marion, Ill., were held for further consideration. L. Stapp, of Rock Island, was called upon for a report of the district meeting, at Rock Island, July 17 and 18, and he stated that the Tri-City Florists' Club would be pleased to have the district as guests next July. As chairman of the entertainment committee, he has appointed J. B. Tuckis and Henry Gaethje, of Rock Island, and William Goos, of Bettendorf, Ia., to assist him. The chair appointed J. F. Ammann and W. A. Rowe a program committee. It was announced that the Rock Island meeting would be held July 17 and 18; that the executive committee would meet the first day at 1 p. m., and that the district meeting would be at 2 p. m. and the evening session at 8 p. m. The appointment of a membership committee, laid over from the last meeting, was taken up and discussed, after which the chair appointed I. V. Cole, Phil Daut and James Cole, the committee for Illinois, and W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher and J. J. Beneke, for Missouri. All committee reports were laid over for action at the July meeting. The offering of special prizes for the St. Louis fall flower show was laid over for action at the next meeting. The St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association's Easter advertising came up and it was fully explained by J. F. Ammann, as to how it became possible to have the double-page advertisement in the daily newspapers. An interesting discussion followed.

Various Notes.

H. G. Berning, in need of more room in the shipping department, is moving the office to the second floor, into a large front room facing Pine street. This room is being fitted up with a complete set of office fixtures. H. Waldbart, head bookkeeper, says he likes the change and the boys downstairs are glad for the room.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners will hold an important meeting May 3, at the Municipal Greenhouses in Forest Park, at 8 p. m. A number of interesting discussions will feature the meeting and will be mentioned in the secretary's meeting notices.

The St. Louis Flower Growers' publicity executive board will meet in publicity headquarters, May 2, at 2 p. m., to take up Mothers' day advertising, which, it is expected, will be as heavy as that of Easter. A full attendance is requested by Chairman Bourdet. At 3 p. m. the same day and place, the executive committee of the St. Louis Flower Show Association will meet to hear reports of the various committees. Chairman Ammann expects a full attendance.

The Oppermann Floral Co., at Shaw and Kings highway, has, in the course of erection, a new store, with a large conservatory in the rear, at Kings highway and Columbia avenue, just a few blocks south of the firm's old location, which has become too small for the fast-growing business.

Otto Bruenig, owner of a rose-growing range in Olivette and brother-in-law of H. G. Berning, was taken sick last week and is at the hospital. From last accounts, Mr. Bruenig was resting easily, but would be confined there for at least ten days.

I. V. Cole, head of the retail store of Hembreiker & Cole, at Springfield, Ill., says that their Easter business was the largest they ever had, as also were the telegraph orders received and sent. Other Springfield florists also did a large business.

Kalisch Bros. have started to cut a fine lot of outdoor tulips. Other seasonable stock will come right along from now on. They will have many thousands more gladioli than last year.

Ben Albers, who was married April 16, 1913, and D. Boon, who was married April 20, the same year, celebrated the events last week. Both are well known in trade circles.

M. C. Wright, representing the Lord & Burnham Co., of Chicago, spent April 21 here, giving a few estimates on contemplated greenhouse building this summer.

Oscar Ruff and L. Jules Bourdet started on a fishing trip April 20 to their clubhouse lake in the southern part of the state. They returned April 23 and say the water was too high for a big catch.

At the opening of the American League baseball season, at Sportsman park, April 19, many floral offerings were given the players of both teams. A party of florists occupying a box was mildly panning the umpire, when some one in the grand stand shouted, "Don't 'Say It with Flowers,' Say It with Pop Bottles."

Frank Windler, head of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., says the firm's Easter week business was away ahead of any previous one and never was cut stock better or more plentiful.

Easter business on the east side, from reports of Frank O'Leary, manager for Grimm & Gorly's branch, Charles Haun, of Haun & Weis, and Miss Doussard, was the best in years.

The Belleville florists, Gustave Grosart, A. G. Fehr, H. Emunds, W. E. Ogle, M. Schoenberger and Halstead & Klamms say it was a great Easter in all lines.

At Alton, Ill., the Alton Floral Co. and Mrs. J. Krug say that this year's business was wonderful in plants and cut flowers. Last year's business was big, but this year's was better.

The "Say It with Flowers" Bowling League closed its season of ninety games April 19 and it was a most successful season. The league was organized three years ago. The Sweet Peas, with fifty-eight games won and thirty-two lost, won the championship, followed by the Violets, Carnations, Orchids, Roses and Daisies. A meeting of the members will be held at Berning's wholesale house April 24 for the distribution of prizes and will arrange for seeds and do not sow the seeds too thickly, as fresh seeds have great vitality and will come up abundantly. The seeds when planted will require only a light dusting of sand. Personally, I like to scatter in the pans a layer of well chopped sphagnum moss, which has little life left in it. After watering, sow the seeds on this moss. The rapidity with which the seeds germinate in this material, which holds the moisture well, is remarkable. The sphagnum covering must be light, as it is easily overdone. The seeds will germinate well on only a thin layer of chopped sphagnum, but cannot be left in this medium as long as in the sandy peat.

It is necessary to prick off the little seedlings while they are still small and they can go quite thickly in shallow flats of sandy peat. A little leaf-mold can be added advantageously. Give the seed pans a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night, no more; 50 degrees at night is ample for the seedlings when transplanted. Gradually harden the plants off and in the following spring plant them out in frames, using lath screens over them during the hot summer months. The covers or screens should be removed, if time permits, when overcast or rainy weather occurs. The young rhododendrons can be planted out in nursery rows after they have had one season in the frames. January, February and March are the best months in which to sow the seeds, while the least desirable time to sow is the summer. Seeds may also be sown in ordinary cold-frames if you use care in making a suitable seed bed, and instead of using flats when transplanting you can prick into other frames. This answers well where there is no greenhouse at command, but an early start in heat insures stronger plants the first season. C. W.

NEW TUBEROUS BEGONIA.

There is now flowering at the Melbourne botanic gardens, says the Australasian Nurseryman and Seedsman, a new type of tuberous-rooted begonia, which is unique and exceedingly fine. The flowers are pure white, double and full, and as large as any of the large-flowered tuberous begonias. But the edges of the petals, instead of being smooth and entire, as they usually are, are all deeply and distinctly serrated, with rounded and uneven serrations. The petals, too, are ruffled and folded. Altogether, the flower has a highly decorative appearance, and it has been much admired by visitors. The plant was grown in a pan of imported seedlings by Wm. Bone & Sons, Caulfield, Victoria, and it has been named J. Cronin, in honor of the well known director of the Melbourne gardens.

St. Paul, Minn.—A greenhouse has been built by Frank H. Lindig, a market gardener, who will grow bedding plants, geraniums, pansies, etc., for the spring market.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business since Easter has been all that could be desired and everyone has been kept on the go. The greenhouse men have been busy moving their stock, which has come along fast during the warm, sunny days; the stores have been busy handling an unusually large number of weddings and social affairs.

Various Notes.

There has been comparatively little greenhouse building in Rhode Island during the last several years, but rumors indicate that there is to be considerable additional glass put into service before the fall benching occurs. A number of growers are said to be contemplating adding to their ranges.

Hugh Clark, who is associated with the Colonial Flower Shoppe, of Providence, and his wife were the guests of Page Potter and Archie Akins, at their home, in Georgiaville, Thursday evening, April 20, on the occasion of their fifth wedding anniversary. The rooms were prettily decorated in yellow and white and at the dinner, which was given in Mr. and Mrs. Clark's honor, covers were laid for twelve. An enjoyable evening was spent, with vocal and instrumental music, and Mr. and Mrs. Clark were the recipients of numerous useful, as well as ornamental, articles of wood.

The flower department at S. S. Kresge's, Pawtucket, has been reopened, with plants and cut flowers.

John Roth & Co. have been adding to the icing facilities in their store, at 247 Broad street.

Samuel Resnick, of Bowers & Co., has been suffering from a severe bronchial cold.

Thomas K. Winsor and family, of Greenville, have returned from Fort Myers, Fla., where they spent several weeks.

E. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., was in Boston last week on business.

A representative of the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, was a business caller on the local trade last week.

Frederick Dietz, of French street, has been busy the last week on funeral work.

Permanite

Garlanite

GARLANITE, the New Putty-Colored Glazing Compound, is the result of years of experience and untiring effort to produce a PERFECT Glazing Cement.

GARLANITE, made in putty consistency for bedding and semi-liquid consistency for bulbing over the top, assures you of the utmost in Glazing Service. The beautiful Putty color, its elasticity and the ease with which it can be applied or removed when necessary to replace broken glass makes GARLANITE the most desirable of all glazing materials for both new and old work.

PERMANITE, of course, still leads the field of black materials.

Get What's Coming to You From Your Land

Now is the time to hop on your land and make it yield up the profits it has been withholding.
Good seed, good tillage, plenty of fertilizing elements, and above all the Skinner System of watering.

If you've been going along in the old-time way, you'd better now try the plan of increased production, off the same number of acres.

You can get twice the crop off the same ground, or the same crop off half the ground. That's what the Skinner System of watering will do for you.

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it?

Still, the truth is the truth, and there is no getting away from it.

With the Skinner System you insure quick and complete seed germination.

You keep the crop growing. No stand-stills.

You have no drought losses.

Early planting, plus quick germination, plus constant growth is bound to mean an early crop of extra dollars.

You also keep crops bearing later in season, when prices are apt to be good. You get the early end; the late end, and the middle besides.

Make up your mind to get the Skinner System making dollars for you this year. It will mighty soon pay for itself and be a life-long friend.
Write us, right now.

LATE MUMS PAY BEST

White and Pink Seidewitz are the two best late varieties and we have a large stock of rooted cuttings ready. We offer you

GOLDEN QUEEN—The best yellow for early October, maturing about the 10th. Same color as Golden Glow, fine incurved form and double from any bud.$35.00
OCTOBER QUEEN—Pure white, large size, maturing October 15 to 20; exceptionally fine stem and foliage. 48.00
WM. H. CHADWICK—Large, incurved, white sometimes shaded pink. 35.00
HARVARD—Japanese reflexed; very dark crimson; in perfection November 15 or later; the best red yet introduced; double from any bud. 35.00

WHITE SEIDEWITZ—White sport of the popular Seidewitz, resembling it in every respect except color, which is a pure white; this variety should rank as does its parent as one of the best varieties for Christmas blooming.$45.00
SEIDEWITZ—A beautiful late, incurved, bright pink, maturing from Thanksgiving to early December; surpasses all late pinks
we have grown. 48.00
EARLY FROST—A very good early white to follow Smith's Advance; pure white, in-curved. 35.00

These Good Pompons Ready in Quantity

MRS. FRANK BEU—The very best Thanksgiving bronze, shading to fine red; every florist wants some of this grand late variety.$39.00
MRS. MAZEY—Bronze sport of Godfrey. 48.00
ANNABELL—Wine colored sport of Godfrey. 48.00

SUNSHINE—Deep yellow in color, firm and fresh for Thanksgiving without any bolting back and remains in perfect condition. If desired, for two weeks longer; should be partially disbudded, otherwise the perfectly formed flowers will be too crowded.$48.00

Greenhouse Heating

FIGURING BOILER CAPACITY.

I have a steam tubular boiler, 40-inch shell, twelve feet long, with thirty-six 3-inch flues. Can this boiler be used with satisfaction for hot water heating? If so, what is its capacity? I have two houses, 30x150 feet. H. M. B.—Ill.

The boiler is probably rated at thirty-five horsepower and should handle about 3,500 feet of hot water radiation in an economical manner. For the best results it should have four 4-inch flow pipes and four main return openings of the same size.

The amount of the glass in the walls of the houses is not given, nor is any mention made of the temperature desired, but if there is not more than two feet of glass in each of the four side walls of the houses, and they are well built, it should be possible to keep one house at 60 degrees and the other at 50 degrees when it is 10 degrees below zero outside. The grates for the boiler should be 3x4 feet.

If the houses are built together, with one wall in common, a little extra attention to firing in zero weather will make it possible to keep the temperature at 60 degrees in both houses.

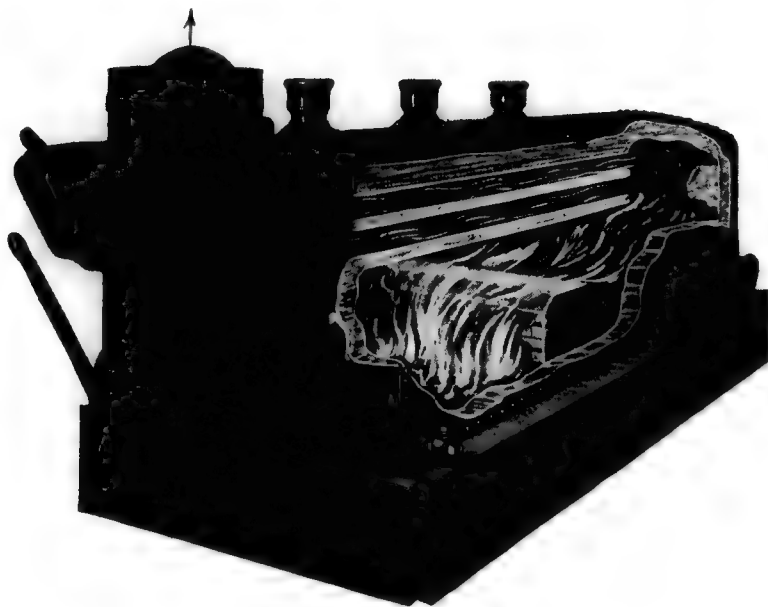

HEATING TWO HOUSES.

I have a heating problem which is giving me a great deal of difficulty. The range in question consists of two houses, one 19x100 feet and the other 25x100 feet. The boiler used in the heating system is rated at 4,450 square feet of radiation. The chimney of this system has an inside diameter of eighteen inches, is thirty-five feet high and is of brick construction. In spite of the fact that I was led to believe, when purchasing this heating plant, that I could heat two 25-foot houses to 50 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero, it has been impossible to raise the temperature of the water in the pipes above 140 degrees. In a trial test recently made the temperature in the 19-foot house remained at 36 degrees and that in the 25-foot house could not be forced above 45 degrees. Can you tell me wherein the trouble lies? I should like to obtain 50 degrees when the outside temperature goes to zero. J. C.—Pa.

From the sketch which accompanied the inquiry, it is learned that the boiler has a grate 30x65 inches and that the top of the boiler is two feet below the floor of the greenhouses. Four-inch flow and return pipes connect the boiler with the coils. The 19-foot house has ten 2-inch return pipes and there are fifteen returns in the 25-foot house. The south house has four feet of glass in the south wall, while the north house has three feet of glass in the north wall. The expansion tank is attached at the farther end of the houses, from which it is inferred that the flow pipes rise to that point and from there fall towards the coils and thence back to the boiler.

While the arrangement of your piping could be greatly improved by using two extra returns in the 19-foot house, it is impossible to understand why the results you have obtained are so unsatisfactory. The houses require only 1,500 square feet of hot water

"The Boiler of Unequaled Fuel Economy"

The Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler with its thin waterways in which the water movement is upward, the natural way, giving rapid circulation, is the key to real fuel economy. It is easy to maintain high temperature in your heating lines with a Kroeschell.

Order Now

Orders may be placed now for delivery during summer or fall of 1922. You can save 5 to 10 per cent if you purchase a boiler during this month. It will pay you to take advantage of this offer.

radiation, and, after making every al-coal, together with a good surplus caa rating of more than 3,000 square feet.

The grate need not have been more than in the 19-foot house and with ten returns in the 25-foot house.

If the pipes are properly graded, there is no reason why the circulation should not be all that is desired of it. With a fair grade of soft coal and good firing, there should be no trouble in securing 50 degrees in zero weather, even with the present radiation.

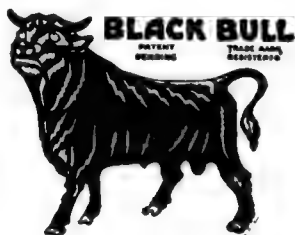

BUYING SECOND-HAND BOILER.

We should like your advice in regard to a Scotch marine boiler, which we can buy cheap. This boiler is twelve feet long, sixty inches in diameter, and has forty-eight 3-inch flues, ten feet long. The boiler is to be used for hot water heating. There are five 2½-inch openings. Will these openings be large enough for hot water use? Can you tell us how many feet of 2-inch pipe this boiler can handle with either steam or hot water? S. F. C.—Mo.

The boiler described is probably rated at about forty horsepower and, with a grate and smokestack of the proper dimensions, it would readily handle about 2,000 square feet of low-pressure steam radiation and about 4,000 square feet of hot water radiation.

The openings will be large enough for steam heating, but four 4-inch main flows and the same number of 4-inch returns are needed for the best results with hot water. It is desirable to have the boiler openings of the full size of the mains, but fairly good results may be secured with the mains if reduced to 3-inch at the boiler.

The boiler should be able to supply 6,400 linear feet of 2-inch pipe for hot water radiation, or 3,200 linear feet in steam coils. However, it would be preferable to use 1½-inch pipe for steam coils and the boiler would then handle 4,600 linear feet. This would be sufficient for 12,000 to 16,000 square feet of glass, according to the temperature desired in the houses.

CYPRESS FOR STAKES AND CYPRESS FOR LABELS

A tree or plant Label is a small matter, just a thin strip of wood with notches near one end. A whole pocketful may be bought with a penny or two, yet the cost of them counts in the year's expenditures. And there's no need in buying new each year, unless you really prefer to spend your money. Get them of Cypress and they will last. So with stakes—they are made of Cypress and cost little more than those made of woods that begin to rot as soon as they are placed in the soil. Every dollar you save in these small matters stays in the bank to help swell your balance.

JUST ONE TESTIMONIAL

C. E. Robbins, 4 Vanden Bosch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y., writes: "My attention was first drawn to Cypress several years ago by using some of it for dahlia stakes, along with some pine, etc., and after the pine had rotted away the Cypress showed no sign of decay. Since then I have used it for boats and canoes, and it has been very satisfactory." This is a small matter, but it is worth while to listen to the experience of others.

WORCESTER, MASS.

Easter week passed with a trend to dullness in flower sales, although the florists' stores and windows were well stocked up, like miniature Covent Gardens. The Worcester retailers regard the lull in business as an after-effect that follows all big holidays. Stock remains plentiful and the grower receives seasonable prices. Outdoor vegetation has received a seasonable check with a visit of Jack Frost, the thermometer falling as low as 28 degrees above zero.

Harry Randall, the Pearl street florist, has won a notable victory in the prevention of an attempt to establish a rendering concern in the vicinity of his new colonial home in Auburn. Only the odor from flowers for Mr. Randall!

The Worcester County Horticultural Society is preparing to make a big event of the show scheduled for May 18, which will be open to the public free from 3 to 9 p. m. E. A.

ORLANDO, FLA.

The Easter business at Orlando was the best ever. Telegraph orders showed an increase with the local florists. Good stock was scarce, owing to a prolonged drought and unseasonable heat, for ten days before and including Easter Sunday. During this whole period maximum temperatures ranged from 90 to 98 degrees. These temperatures are seldom exceeded at any season of the year. Flowers shipped in from the north nearly all arrived in poor shape. A great many more Lilium longiflorum could have been sold, even at the price of 75 cents per bloom.

The first annual meeting of the Florida State Florists' Association will be held at Lakeland, May 5, following the annual convention of the State Horticultural Society, May 2 to 4. An interesting program has been arranged and a good display of flowers and plants is expected.

W. H. Schulz, Jr., Winter Haven, a large grower of Asparagus plumosus for the northern trade, is installing a pre-cooling room for his product. The machine will have a capacity of 300 boxes per day. The temperature of the greens will be brought down to 36 degrees before shipping. These pre-cooling plants are in general use in the citrus packing houses and are a great success.

The Market.

The week immediately following Easter showed a marked increase in business over the preceding weeks. Business has been inconsistent this year and one never knows just what to expect. Everyone reports a good Easter business, however, with a great shortage of corsage material of all kinds.

Stock was plentiful last week, with bulbous stock predominating.

Daffodils, tulips and narcissi are arriving in large quantities and the wholesalers find that they must literally give the stock away to get rid of it, and even then much of it has gone to waste. Sweet peas are now beginning to be a drug on the market. The rose cut has been extremely heavy, while carnations are not so plentiful. Some exceptionally fine calendulas are now finding their way to the market and are reasonable in price. Easter and calla lilies move slowly at present, although the supply is limited. Some good ten weeks' stocks are appearing. The first gladioli put in an appearance about a week ago. Easter violets are poor at this time of year, but the trade does the best it can with them at this time, owing to the scarcity of corsage stock.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held May 8 and everyone should attend, as some important questions are due to come up for discussion.

E. J. King, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor last week.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, O., was in to say "Hello" to the trade.

Charles Kirchner helped out at the retail store of the J. M. Gasser Co. over Easter.

A. Jones, of Humm & Jones, of Oberlin, O., was a recent visitor.

W. A. R.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

Easter here was up to that of previous years and, in some cases, even better. There was an abundance of stock of all kinds in cut flowers and plants. The weather over Easter was ideal.

Theodore Kuebler reports heavy Easter business. He had plenty of stock of all kinds, especially bulbous stock.

Mrs. J. C. Elspemann enjoyed her usual big holiday trade.

Stock at the place of Royston & Fenton is in fine shape.

E. L. F.

Atlantic, Ia.—Lee S. Magill, a market gardener here, grows flowers as a side line. He has just completed a small greenhouse.

SEATTLE NOTES.

total business and especially on the number of lilies moved, the sales for this year set a new Easter record for this shop.

An active inquiry on mum cuttings is reported by B. E. Hammond, of the wholesale house. Shipping business in Easter lilies was excellent; the short-stemmed stock this year made for easier packing conditions and all of the lots carried through in fine order.

Easter advertising by the publicity board of the Seattle Florists' Association was carried in all four of the Seattle daily newspapers, a design supplied by Dr. Walter A. Moore being used. Smaller space than was used on previous holidays was taken, it being the opinion of the board members that the public needs less urging at Easter to make it buy flowers than on other holidays.

Heavy sales of late daffodils have been enjoyed by the Art Floral Co. and there has also been a better demand for tulips. Some fine red and yellow varieties are coming in from the growers at this time.

Rosaia Bros. report one of the most successful Easter sales' records in the history of their business, the delivery fleet of this shop being taxed to care for the business, and a large extra force of salespeople being required. A heavier cut of Premier roses is noted at the greenhouses and, in point of quality, this stock is the equal of anything being shown on the market at the present time. Funeral work has been heavier of late, and some large commissions on special floral pieces have been filled.

In addition to the group of Seattle florists who will visit the Bellingham tulip festival this month, the Chamber of Commerce has decided to send its glee club on the same trip. The majority of the visitors will drive to this event.

General interest in gladiolus bulbs for spring planting is holding up splendidly, according to Henry Morgan, of Morgan's Flower Shop, where these are still being featured. Last week was the annual local dog show, and a number of the Morgan entries were among the prize-winners.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. reports a further increase in the shipping demand for fern leaves, advices from the buyers indicating that stock shipped from this section is arriving at its

The front cover of the society section of the Seattle Times was last Sunday, April 23, devoted to a full-page color reproduction of a photograph of Ascah Jane Moore, little daughter of Dr. Walter A. Moore, of Hollywood Gardens.

General business for Felix Rosaia has been showing a nice increase, and several notable social decorations were handled by this shop of late. Elaborate preparations for a large ball were included in these.

Results of last fall's dahlia show held at McCoy's are being seen at this shop now, a good general interest being shown in this offering at present. Funeral work has been holding up in fine order, especially fraternal business.

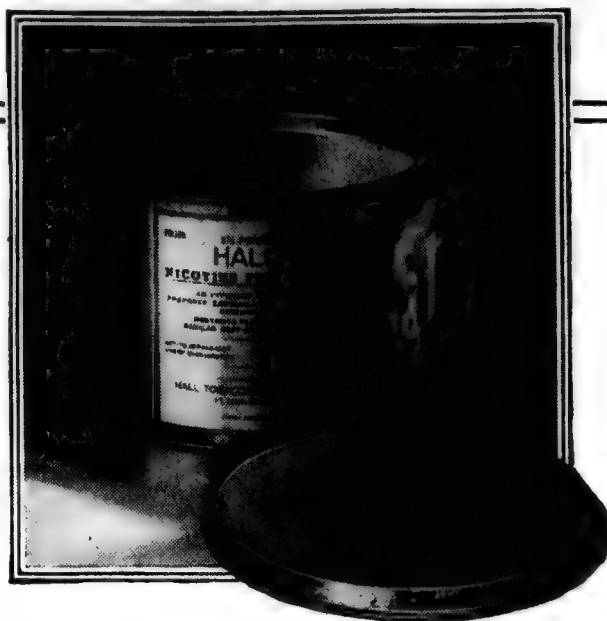

William S. Goldsbary, northwestern representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is making a few short side trips to nearby trade centers in the interests of his house.

"Our Easter business this year was the greatest surprise that we have ever had since we have been in the flower business," stated Burley C. Johnston, of the Quality Flower Store. "Heretofore, while the Easter business has been good, it has never been one grand rush. This year we provided for a normal increase over other Easters, but we did twice as much as in any other year and could have done a third more than we did. Why? We don't know, unless it was possibly because this year Easter came during our bedding plant season. People have been calling for porch box plants for a couple of weeks. Just at this season our greenhouses looked attractive, with lots of lilies, hyacinths, and other flowers, and people just couldn't keep from coming back to get some for Easter. Hereafter we are going to have two ideas in running our greenhouses; they must not only grow the flowers, but they must be attractive at the same time. We have a store right downtown, with greenhouses adjoining, and the appearance of the greenhouses affects trade even more than that of the store itself. We will erect three more greenhouses this year; in fact, we have already started work. They will be planted to carnations, chrysanthemums, sweet peas and calla lilies."

The Leed Seed Store is arranging to open a cut flower department.

It's easy to fumigate now!

Easy—because Hall's Nicotine Fumigator comes in airtight tins with conical measuring dipper enclosed. Just dip out the required number of cones and you are ready to fumigate.

Economical too—because you can use exactly the amount required. One cone will fill 7000 cubic feet with a dense volume of deadly nicotine fumes. Three cones will rid the average greenhouse (20 by 100 feet) of aphids, thrips and similar soft-bodied, sucking insects. And the cost will be only 25 cents.

10-pound tins, $8.50; 2½-pound tins, $2.50; 1-pound tins, $1.25.

Hall's Free Nicotine

40% Nicotine guaranteed. For effective greenhouse spraying or vaporizing—dependable, economical.

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT

For all Glazing—new work, tightening leaky roofs and repairing broken glass.

Applied easily, quickly and economically with the new "Oh Boy" automatic glazing gun.

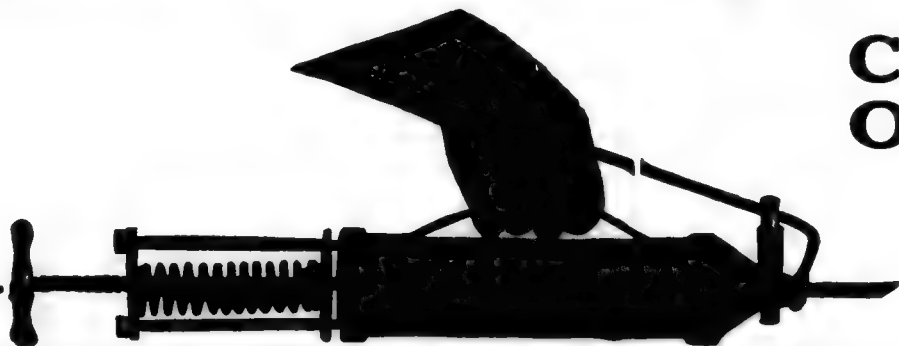

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT remains elastic at all times—forming a waterproof and airtight joint over the sashbar. It will stand the extreme expansion and contraction that a greenhouse is subject to and will not check or crack—nor will it harden. It lasts from five to ten years.

100,000 ASTER SEEDLINGS.

High priced quality seeds were germinated in flats that were previously sterilized with the soil under high pressure of steam. It's a lot of extra hard work and expense, but this is the only way to get healthy plants, and I want you to have plants, to start with, that have a healthy and clean root system. My flats are placed on raised beds of sterilized soil, no weeds or bacteria come in touch with them.

The seedlings are not leggy, sappy nor stunted, just in condition to stand the transplanting or potting and keep right on growing. My list of varieties is complete, if you fail in the early market you may win in the next one. I have no guarantee of success to offer you, but try and find out for yourself the best way to succeed under your own conditions.

Queen of Market, earliest of all, white, pink, lavender.

Carlson's and Invincible, next early, bearing Peony formed flowers, white, pink, lavender.

Lavender Gem, very early and best in existence, lavender.

Pink Enchantress, flowers very double of large size, making it a grand Aster.

Peerless, large flowers on long stems, pink and white.

Daybreak, excellent for cutting, flowers large and double, shell-pink and salmon.

Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.

Ball's White, originator's seeds, the sensation of Chicago market in 1921, very full and well centered, ideal for long distance shipping.

Crego's Giant, best late in existence, large flowers borne on good stems, white, pink and lavender.

All labeled and true to name.

75c per 100, not less than 25 of a kind or color; $5.00 per 1000, not less than 50 of a kind or color; 10,000 for $45.00, see Pansy, Salvia, Vegetable

CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In offering our block of 300,000 TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS to the trade, we can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, in as much as we have specialized on CYCLAMEN for years, and are constantly improving our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never had a finer lot of seedlings of the very best known varieties. We established a new record with our CYCLAMEN plants last fall when we shipped them in full carload lots to the East.

Remember—Our plants have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

CHAUTAUQUA FLOWERFIELD CO.,

O. Zeestraten, Prop., Bemus Point, N. Y.

VERY SPECIAL!

For $12.00 I will send 5000 selected bulbulets of the new pure white Gladioli Lilywhite and include 10 blooming size gratis. Lilywhite is the long desired pure white Gladioli of vigorous, healthy growth; great multiplying power; straight spikes opening six to eight blooms at a time; an ideal forcer, early as Halley and the best commercial pure white to date.

Awarded first prize by New York, Massachusetts and St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, Horticultural Societies and American Gladioli Society.

This variety will be grown eventually by the million and practical florists will get stock at once.

Send for our descriptive list of cut-flower varieties suitable for retail florists; also testimonials from leading growers.

SEEDSHYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price per 100 seed, fancy selected, $1.00
Price per 100 seed, Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener Co., Kentfield, Cal.

Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully,

Wm. McBrier.

GREENHOUSES

Here are our standard designs for steel frame houses.

Each standard design can be built to any width within the sizes given.

Each design has been scientifically laid out and tested for strength and stiffness with maximum light.

Each and every truss member has adjustment to make each connection taut and snug—no play—no loose fitting bolts. All holes drilled—not punched.

Pick out the width in which you are most interested and write for bulletin describing it in detail.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.
